Ky's Marines Clash With Da Nang Force

Unrest Also Erupts in Saigon

By ANDRE BOROWIEC

Saigon (AP) — About 1,000 South Vietnamese Marines from Saigon stormed the defiant northern city of Da Nang early today, seizing key installations. The Da Nang radio called on all Buddhists to fight the government forces.

The military junta led by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said it sent the Marines to bolster government units fighting the Buddhist "struggle movement."

Reliable sources said Ky himself has flown to Da Nang to take personal charge. Lt. Gen. Cao Van Vien, chief of the joint general staff in Saigon, went to Da Nang earlier with a Marine contingent.

The sources said the premier's plane landed at Da Nang airport sealed off by Vietnamese Marines. They said the Da Nang garrison barracks, city hall and the radio station were now in government hands.

The violence erupted in Da Nang as Buddhist, Catholic and labor unrest mounted in Saigon and police units moved in to check it.

In Da Nang at least 12 Marines were killed or wounded in midnorning clashes with the local garrison as the Marines moved in to seize the radio station.

The radio went silent after a broadcast, monitored in Saigon, urged Buddhists to take to the streets, said the station was "being attacked from three sides by government troops" and added: "All Buddhists to the streets."

Machine guns rattled and several mortar shells burst as the Marines closed in on the station.

The Marines, airlifted during the night by C47 planes from Saigon, 380 miles to the south, swooped down at dawn and seized the headquarters of the Vietnamese 1st Corps. First shots did not ring out until several hours after the swift move on Da Nang, center of Buddhist opposition to the Saigon regime.

In Saigon about 5,000 Catholics marched through the suburbs, toward Tan Son Nhut air base, chanting anti-Buddhist slogans and demanding the recall of U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. The Catholics accuse him of favoring the Buddhists.

Police guarded the Buddhist youth center, which government forces raided during the night. The venerable Thien Minh, head of the center, accused the government of seizing documents and said he will call out demonstrations.

Two huge labor federations called for a general strike tomorrow. They accused authorities of beating up women workers and demanded an apology.

In another development, Pvt. Theodore R. Vance, 19, of Eureka, Calif., was reportedly shot dead by his guerrilla captors near Bong Son. Another American, Airman 2C. Bennie Lee Dexter of Bend, Ore., was listed as missing after being kidnaped by guerrillas near Ban Me Thuot.

In Da Nang six tanks aided the government Marines as they took over the 1st Corps headquarters without gunfire. But later fighting broke out near the official residence of the Corps commander, Maj. Gen. Ton That Dinh.

The Saigon regime issued a communique saying a number of its forces in Da Nang "spontaneously rose up against the illegal struggle movement in central Vietnam."

Responding to a request for relief troops, the note added, "The general staff has sent reinforcements . . . to maintain security and order, protect the lives and properties of the population and to defend the key installations of the nation."

The northern part of the war-torn country, predominantly Buddhist, has been in a state of virtual rebellion from the central government several weeks. Dinh was appointed military commander for the area Apr. 10 to an effort to reinstate government control.

A month earlier the Ky regime ousted the previous 1st Corps commander, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, considered a rival for power in Saigon. Protest demonstrations against the move expanded into Buddhist and student demands for general elections and a civilian government.

Vance, a member of "C" Company, First Battalion, 17th Regiment of the First Cavalry Division, was captured Thursday near Bong Son.

He was taken prisoner as he rode a rented vehicle along Highway 1 in an insecure area. The vehicle he was riding was variously described as a bicycle, a motor scooter and a motorcycle. It has not been recovered.

Vance reportedly was taken to a Viet Cong village east of Bong Son, about 280 miles northeast of Saigon.

Col. Hal G. Moore, commander of the Third Cavalry Brigade, sent an entire battalion into the area Saturday, but found no trace of Vance. They killed seven guerrillas, however.

Moore said he had received a report that Vance was taken to a Viet Cong village and placed on display.

Romania Wants 'Out'

Bucharest, Romania (AP) — The Warsaw Pact, Communism's counterpart to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, was reported today to have Romania as a dissident member — just as NATO has France.

Unlike the French, however, the independent-minded Romanians have not actually told the Soviet Union and other members they will leave the Pact, but they were understood to have told Soviet Communist Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev they will resist plans for integration of their armed forces in the Warsaw Pact Alliance. France has informed NATO it is pulling its forces out of NATO's Military Command.

Golden State Freeway Yields Paper Treasure

Glendale, Calif. (AP)—A bag of money popped out of an armored truck on the Golden State freeway Saturday, prompting a spirited treasure hunt by 400 motorists for an estimated $10,000 in small bills.

Police said only $1,000 was recovered.

"I guess it was mayhem for 10 minutes," said an officer who arrived after it was all over.

No accidents or injuries were reported.

Police said the Armored Transport Co. drivers did not discover the loss until their next stop.

Backers See Wage Bill OK

Gives Coverage To 7 Million More Workers

Washington (UPI) — The largest extension of minimum wage coverage in the 28-year history of the federal wage-hour law is expected to win House approval this week.

The battle this time may be less than epic. The legislation, scheduled to come to a vote late Wednesday, would increase the present $1.25 hourly minimum wage to $1.60 by Feb. 1, 1968, and increase coverage from about 30 million workers to 37 million. Sponsors say it will pass by a healthy margin.

Six years ago efforts to increase the wage from $1 to $1.25 asd provide coverage of about 3.6 new workers locked Congress in a struggle that spilled over into the Presidential campaign. The bill passed in 1961 after a fight that required all-out effort by the new President, John F. Kennedy, and his seasoned Congressional allies.

Some Attacks

There is controversy this year but it does not approach the intensity of past battles. There is little dispute over the money figure although managers of the bill expect an effort to cut the increase to $1.50. They feel they can hold the line with an increase to $1.40 on Feb. 1, 1967, and to $1.60 a year later for the 29.6 million workers already covered.

About 6.5 million of the new workers to be covered would start with a $1 hourly minimum wage next Feb. 1, and progress, in 15-cent yearly steps, to $1.60 on Feb. 1, 1971.

About 485,000 of these are agricultural workers wno would start at $1 but go only to $1.30.

The major attack on the bill is expected to come on the farm coverage, which Congress never before has seriously considered.

Although the sponsors themselves went to pains to exclude from coverage most "family farms," they expect to face a strong effort to knock out all the agricultural coverage.

The other big group to be covered for the first time are in the so-called service industries—hotels, motels, restaurants, laundries, dry cleaning establishments, transit and non-professional hospital workers. These were considered during the 1961 battle when coverage was extended for the first time from the production and distribution industries to retail trade. But the managers of the legislation had to give them up to get votes.

Tip Incomes

A unique feature of the new bill is a provision for setting minimum wages for workers whose income derives partly from tips.

While the bill would exempt all "Ma and Pa" stores and service establishments operated by members of a single family, it would cover the employes of all laundries, dry cleaners, construction firms, hospitals and related institutions.

Other businesses would be covered in the first year if they did gross business of $500,000 or more and in the second year of $250,000 or more.

Astronauts Given OK For Complex Journey

Docking, Space Walking To Be Exploited

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 9 astronauts Saturday received go-aheads from the medics and a mission review board and set their sights on Tuesday's rendezvous and space walk mission—which Command Pilot Thomas P. Stafford terms "the most complex and sophisticated" manned space journey yet.

The astronauts passed a tough three-hour medical exam in the morning and then huddled for more than an hour with key Gemini officials. All aspects of the mission were discussed—the rockets, spacecraft, tracking stations, weather and recovery forces— and "the green light was flashed across the board," a Space Agency spokesman reported.

It will be the first truly operational flight in the Gemini program—exploiting the techniques of rendezvous docking and space walking pioneered on earlier trips.

Astronaut Eugene A. Cernan, who is to take a record space walk of 2 hours 25 minutes during the flight, said in an interview:

"On everything we do, we'll be evaluating new techniques for man in space—both for future Gemini flights and for Apollo flights to the moon."

Excellent Condition

Stafford,35, an air force lieutenant colonel, and Cernan, 32, a navy lieutenant commander, spent most of the morning with a team of medical specialists and were pronounced in excellent condition by Dr. A. Duane Catterson, Gemini flight surgeon.

Both were reported rested and eager for the flight.

In the afternoon the astronauts huddled with a mission review board—a group of key Gemini officials who discussed all aspects of the flight.

Launch crews also were busy preparing the two rockets for Tusday's double-header launching.

The ambitious mission is to start at 9 a.m. (CST) with the blastoff of an Atlas rocket which is to hoist an Agena target satellite into orbit. Gemini 9 is to take off in pursuit aboard a Titan 2 at 10.39 a.m.

Cernan's health is of special concern because his space walk will be one of the most daring and demanding tasks ever undertaken in space.

He is to step out of the orbiting Gemini 9 on the second day of the planned three-day flight, entering an eerie weightless world into which only two other men have ventured.

Man Can Survive

Last year Russian Cosmonaut Alexei Leonov and American Astronaut Edward H. White II took space walks of 10 and 21 minutes, respectively, and proved that man can survive for at least brief periods outside, protected by an adequate space suit and life support gear.

Cernan will check how well man can operate outside and for nearly an hour he will propel himself through space on the end of a 150-foot tether with a rocket-powered back pack called an AMU (Astronaut Maneuvering Unit).

The AMU has its own life support system and Cernan, in effect, will be an independent satellite while wearing it.

At one point he'll stroll over and touch the Agena orbiting 120 feet away from Gemini 9.

"We'll decide," Cernan said, "if the AMU is sufficient for transfer from one point to another. We'll learn if we'll need anything as sophisticated as the AMU—or whether we can do with something simpler."

Stafford and Cernan originally were Gemini 9 backups. But they were tapped for the flight when the prime pilots—Elliot M. See Jr. and Air Force Maj. Charles A. Bassett II — were killed in the crash of their jet plane in St. Louis Feb. 28.

The trouble that caused the swift ending of Gemini 8 in March—a stuck jet thruster that spun the craft out of control—has prompted several mechanical and electrical changes.

"We don't anticipate a similar problem," Stafford said.

Pakistan, India Are On Edge

New Charges Are Lodged

New Delhi, India (AP)—Much of the fine print in the India-Pakistan Tashkent declaration of peace, signed just four months ago, appears to have been rubbed out.

There were clear signs Saturday that, although neither side was engaging in significant military operations, an escalation of charges and countercharges was underway.

An immediate result was increased tension. Inherent was the danger of renewed border clashes which the declaration—signed Jan. 10 by the late prime minister of India, Lal Bahadur Shastri, and president Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan—sought to avoid.

Pakistan charged Shastri's successor, Indira Gandhi, with "inflammatory statements which could only result in a sharpening of relations" between the two nations. The objection was to Mrs. Gandhi's warnings a week ago that India must be prepared for possible trouble on the frontier.

"Frequent references to the possibility of another armed conflict by such a high personality cannot but make a real impact on the public mind and may help recreate war hysteria," the protest note said.

"This is quite contrary to India's responsibility under the Tashkent declaration and a retrograde step."

The Pakistani note also charged that Indian forces in Kashmir, the Himalayan border state the two nations have quarreled over for 19 years, fired on two unarmed Pakistani civilians Apr. 29, killing one.

Indian officials in recent weeks have charged Pakistan with provocative moves near the frontier and Defense Minister Y. B. Chavan told parliament Friday that India could not rule out the possibility of "joint action" by Pakistan and Red China.

Tashkent Quake

Moscow (AP) — Pravda reports that 35,000 families—about 100,000 people — have been made homeless by earthquakes in the central Asian city of Tashkent. It said shocks are still rocking the city and the atmosphere is "uneasy and tense."

Top British Minister Here for NATO Talks

London (AP)— A top minister of Britain's Foreign Office is flying to Washington today hoping to overcome American objections against new British plans for revamping NATO.

The minister, George Thomson, has drawn up far-reaching proposals for a "new look NATO" as a consequence of President Charles de Gaulle's decision to pull France out of the allied military network.

British informants said last night the plan envisages:

—Drastic streamlining of Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (shape) and its transfer to Brussels, Belgium.

—Withdrawal of NATO's political high command, the North Atlantic Council, from Paris to some other allied capital in Europe — preferably London, as there seems to be no room in Brussels to accommodate both the Council and SHAPE. It is understood Washington would prefer both to be together in Brussels.

—The establishment of a new International Executive Agency (IEA) to carry out the plans, directives and decisions of NATO political chiefs. These are functions now performed by SHAPE and Britain's aim is to leave SHAPE as the center of a chain of operational theater commands without planning responsibilities.

—Abandonment of the Washington-based standing group of NATO whose American, British and French members supervised allied strategy in a global sense.

London Shoppers 'Have a Go' At Thwarting Jewel Thieves

London (UPI)—Led by a doughty 79-year-old man with a cudgel and a lady with an umbrella, a phalanx of Saturday shoppers gave furious battle to a band of ax-wielding jewel robbers off London's elegant New Bond Street.

An alert tourist recorded the battle on movie film as the thieves, much the worse for wear, escaped with $42,000 worth of jewelry.

The gang of four men, their faces wrapped in bandages, drove into New Bond Street in the heart of Mayfair—London's most fashionable shopping district. They jumped from the car carrying long-poled axes and hacked quickly through the glass and metal protective grill of Kutchinsky's jewel store.

Mindful of a recent request by Scotland Yard officials to citizens who witness a crime in progress to "have a go," motorist Frank Freeder, 79, swung into action as the thieves scooped diamond necklaces, rings and other jewelry from the display window.

"I jumped out of my car and grabbed a big stick I carry in the back in case I ever meet up with this sort of thing," Freeder said later.

"I ran at one of the men and hit as hard as I could. I blew a police whistle I carry as hard as I could"

'Freeder's courage stirred pedestrians.

"One man broke the windscreen of the gang's car," Lionel Dessar, manager of the jewelry store said.

"One woman attacked the robbers with an umbrella. Another tried to beat them them over the head. The shouts, screams and sounds of breaking glass were ear-splitting," said another witness.

"Other people just seemed mesmerised until the old man leaped in and took them on by himself," said Claude Payette, a tourist from Montreal. Payette stood off to one side and filmed the entire incident with his movie camers. The film was rushed to Scotland Yard.

Reward Was Paid But Goes Unspent

Anniston, Ala. (UPI)—Jimmy Glenn Knight, whose testimony helped convict a white man in the nightrider slaying of Negro Willie Brewster last year, has been paid $20,000 in reward money, a state investigator revealed Saturday.

Check for $20,000

Harry Simms, chief investigator in the Brewster murder, said Knight, 28, was handed a cashier's check for $20,000 while being held in protective custody earlier this year during the trial of a second white man charged with Brewster's murder.

Although Knight's testimony helped convict Hubert Damon Strange of second-degree murder, he was not expected to have much chance to spend any of the reward money for at least two years.

Begins Sentence

Knight awaits transfer to Kilby Prison in Montgomery to begin serving a two-year sentence for burglary. He was denied probation Thursday.

Both Knight and Strange were in the same jail during the week. Strange was released Friday on $5,000 bond on charges of assault with intent to murder a white man riding with a Negro. He also was free on $10,000 appeal bond in the Brewster conviction.

Knight was paid the money during the trial of Johnny Ira DeFries who was acquitted of murdering Brewster. A third white man, Lewis Blevins, was to be tried later this month.

Reward Raised

The reward money was offered by some 260 local citizens angered by the slaying which occurred shortly after a "white man's" rally last July 15. Brewster died three days later.

Gov. George C. Wallace posted the maximum state reward of $1,000 but Simms said at last report the money had not been paid.

Knight was the state's star witness in the Strange trial. He said he had heard Strange boast of the shooting minutes after Brewster was ambushed as he drove home from work at a local plant

"I got me one, I got me a Nigger," Knight quoted Strange as saying.

Strange was sentenced to 10 years in prison by an all-white jury last December.

'Real' Good Counterfeit Job

Paris (AP)—The top financial authorities of France today hailed Czeslaw Bojarski as the greatest counterfeiter of all time. But a judge decided that was no excuse and sentenced him to 2 years in jail for passing $550,000 worth of false francs.

For more than 15 years Bojarski, 54, formerly an officer in the Polish army, printed and spent his own money.

Everything went well when he handled his own spending, passing out one bill at a time.

Then it started worrying him to see all the money at home, doing no work. He thought it would be better to have bonds that paid interest. He enlisted a friend. The friend brought in a third man. Bundles of 10 notes were put out, and the volume distribution made it easier to trace.

The prosecution charge sheet said "Bojarski succeeded where normally it takes 12 specialists."

Near Perfect

The chief of the Counterfeit Money Squad of the police told the court: "I pay homage to the exceptional qualities of Bojarski. Since the start of my career I have never seen bills with such a degree of perfection."

The secretary general of the Bank of France said no warning could be issued that the counterfeit money was circulating.

He testified "It was impossible for the public to detect them, and for treasury agents, too. If we had published a warning, we would have risked seeing people mistrust all bills which would have caused serious difficulties."

Bojarski proudly told the court he used a mixture of tracing and cigaret paper. He learned engraving, and how to make plates, and he invented his own engraving which astounded the experts.

He explained why he did it this way: "I had no resources, and was married to a young woman who came from a wealthy family . . . I didn't have a choice of 36 solutions. I didn't know how to steal and I couldn't be a killer."

One of Bojarski's accomplices was given a suspended five year sentence. The other was acquitted.

Soviets Accuse U.S. of Spying

Moscow (UPI) — The government newspaper Izvestia has asserted some American scientists who visited Russia under the Soviet-American Cultural Exchange agreement were working as spies for the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

The newspaper did not name any of the alleged scientists-spies but said several had been found out while visiting here and were frightened off with "hints."

Freeman:

Put Factories in Rural America

Hot Springs, Va. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman urged big business today to locate its new factories in the fields and small towns of rural America.

Addressing the spring meeting of the Business Council attended by the heads of more than 100 of the country's largest corporations, Freeman announced the establishment of a new "rural industrialization program" to help companies find favorable plant sites where the jobs will benefit rural residents.

His plea won the enthusiastic endorsement of the Council's chairman, President W. B. Murphy of the Campbell Soup Co. Murphy told reporters his company has found that rural sites provide inexpensive land, water supply, good facilities for industrial waste disposal, and "good people" to hire.

Advice From Staff

Freeman said he has formed a staff to meet with businessmen "in their own offices or in Washington" to advise them on the opportunity for profits which can be earned while "stemming the migration from country to city."

"It is folly to stack up three-fourths of our people in the suffocating steel and concrete storage bins of the city," he said, "while a figurative handful of our fellow citizens rattle around in a great barn full of untapped resources and empty dreams."

Freeman noted that he was not encouraging the pirating of industries from the communities where they are now established. The aim of the program, he said, is to encourage the establishment of "sound, new plants which can operate profitably in the country-side, and promise rural America parity of income and opportunity."

Earlier, Secretary of Commerce John T Connor appealed to the industrialists to advise him on how the Commerce Department can be reorganized to "play a more important and meaningful policy role than it does now" in furthering domestic business and foreign trade.

QUOTA NOT REACHED

Meat Imports Up 34% Above 1965

Washington (AP)—Imports of meats are running 34% ahead of a year ago, but still are below a level that would require the government to impose restrictions.

Government foreign trade reports Saturday showed imports of all red meats during the first quarter of this year totaled 275 million pounds, compared with 205 million in the like period last year.

Imports of beef and veal totaled 172 million pounds, up 30 million pounds. If they continue at this rate, imports of these meats for the year would be about 685 million pounds, up from the 630 million pounds brought in last year.

In 1964, when cattlemen blamed low prices on increased imports, Congress enacted legislation requiring the President to impose quotas when imports of beef and veal reach a level determined by a formula in the law.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has determined that level to be the import of 979 million pounds of beef and veal. Thus, imports would have to increase considerably to trigger quotas.

Imports of pork, which do not affect the quota decision, have increased from 55 million tons in the first quarter of 1965 to 83 million tons in the first quarter this year.

Beef and veal imports from Australia top all other nations at 68 million pounds, compared with 67 million a year ago.

Imports of cattle during the first quarter this year totaled 295,000 head, up 103% from a year earlier.

Reds Ask Summit Conference

Chou Assails Russia, U.S.

Tokyo (AP)—Communist China and Albania have issued a call for a world summit conference to outlaw nuclear weapons. They also urged revolutionaries to continue fighting the United States and the Soviet Union—terming the Russians "Agents of Imperialism."

"The whole world is in the process of great upheaval, great division and great reorganization," said a joint Chinese-Albanian communique broadcast by the New China News Agency from Peking.

The communique was signed in Peking by Premier Chou En-Lai and visiting Premier Mehmet Shehu of Albania Wednesday, the day Shehu departed and two days after the Chinese exploded their third nuclear device. Albania is Communist China's ally in Eastern Europe in the dispute between Moscow and Peking on how to spread Communism around the world.

Ban Nuclear Weapons

"The two sides reiterate that nuclear weapons must be completely prohibited and thoroughly destroyed and that, first of all, the use of nuclear weapons must be banned," the communique said. "The Albanian side reaffirms its full support of the Chinese government for a summit conference of all the countries of the world to discuss the question of complete prohibition and thorough destruction of nuclear weapons."

There was no elaboration on that point.

Earlier in the week, Chou assailed the United States for rejecting Peking proposals for an exchange declaration that neither power would be the first to use nuclear weapons.

In response, State Department Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said the U.S. government turned down the Chinese proposal because Washington did not feel the Chinese "have a legitimate and constructive interest in disarmament."

Interfaith Monastery Evokes Frown From Vatican Official

Wien, Mo., (AP)—The leader of an interfaith monastery said today his group had received a letter from the Vatican saying "The congregation believes it is not expedient that the experiment (the monastery) be continued."

The Rev. Robert Starmann, a Roman Catholic, declined further comment. Starmann, aided by an Episcopal priest, the Rev. Robert Bollman, founded the Ecumenical Brotherhood of Christian Unity in 1961.

A Roman Catholic newspaper, the St. Louis Review, reported in this week's edition that the letter to the brotherhood came from Cardinal Alfredo Ottaviani, prefect of the Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith, formerly the Holy Office, in Rome.

"There was no specific objection to any feature of the community, no condemnations of anything," the Review quoted Starmann.

The newspaper said Starmann said he had written to the congregation asking if it would be possible to continue the brotherhood after making organizational changes.

No Action Yet

Starmann was quoted as saying the letter from Ottaviani said "only that it is not expedient to continue the experiment as a Roman Catholic monastery with non-Catholic members."

The order's leader said he would await further communication from Rome before taking any action.

The Review also reported that Ferdinand Demara, known as "The Great Imposter," had left the interfaith order Easter Day. The newspaper said Demara was discouraged because of the communication from Rome.

Starmann, Bollman, an Episcopal layman and a Roman Catholic layman are now the only members of the order. A Syrian Orthodox priest who served as an oblate left the brotherhood last October.

The monastery is in Wien, a farming community in north central Missouri.

Congressmen Say Funds Sufficient

Washington (AP)—There are members of the House of Representatives who think their $30,000-a-year salaries plus allowances are enough, and who manage to run their offices without dipping into outside income.

Although Congress has taken no steps toward requiring public disclosure of members' sources of income, a majority of the Representatives say they favor such a law.

These sentiments were reflected in a pool of a representative cross-section of Democratic and Republican members from almost every state.

Dodd Investigation

The congressional cost-of living has come under public scrutiny as a result of the statement by associates of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., that it costs $15,000 to $20,000 more than the $30,000 salary to meet the expenses of public office

The assertion was made in connection with the claim that between $100,000 and $200,000 raised for Dodd was intended as tax-free gifts to help him make ends meet.

Some of the members polled provided answers for statistical use only and would not allow identification. Others didn't object to being quoted.

Replies

The replies included these observations:

Rep. Mark Andrews, R-N. D., a farmer, said he couldn't run his office without outside income, "but it's my choice; nobody asked me to take the job."

Rep. Joseph G. Minish, D-N. J., said he has to keep within the allowable budget because he has "no outside income whatsoever."

Rep. Page Belcher, R-Okla., wasn't enthusiastic about financial disclosure. "If the people elect honest men, this is not necessary," he said. "If they elect dishonest men, such men would find some loophole."

Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., said he couldn't live within the allowances because he must maintain two homes, educate his children, pick up the meal checks of visitors, contribute to almost every charity appeal and put out a newsletter and a weekly radio show. The result, he said, is that his wife has to help out by selling real estate.

Sen. Kennedy Predicts:

Political Extremism To Stay a Long Time

Washington (UPI)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., predicted Saturday political extremism will be part of the American pattern for a long time.

"As long as these . . . groups feel that they cannot have confidence in the judgment of democracy or the American people, we're going to have extremism," he said in a televised panel discussion (Metromedia's Opinion in the Capital).

He agreed with Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., and Morris Abram, president of the American Jewish Committee, that the Vietnam protest demonstrations are hurting legitimate debate on serious issues.

Kennedy said he thought it "healthy for the country" that the young people were taking an active interest in the situation but he added: "Some of of the demonstrations have weakened the position for those who advocate a particular cause."

Case commented: "Where provocative action is involved in these Vietnam demonstration, there is likely to be a lessening of rational discussion . . . this doesn't contribute to the kind of discussion that ought to go on continuously in this country about everything that we're doing, including foreign policy, including Vietnam."

Student Protest

Chicago (AP)—Students kept their sit-in going past the 12 hours mark at the University of Chicago's administration building. They are protesting the University's policy of providing class ranking of students to draft boards if the men involved consent.

Transplant OK

Rome (UPI)—A young man who underwent the surgical transplant of a Chimpanzee kidney a week ago has been pronounced "in good condition." The operation, believed to be the first of its kind in Italy, was performed by a team of doctors led by Prof. Paride Stefanini.

Congressional Elections

It is that time of year when all good men are urged to come to the aid of their party. In Washington, President Johnson keynoted a congressional election $100-a-plate campaign dinner.

• • •

His formula for winning was to tell the country that America will stand with honor, courage and patience in Vietnam. He said, "Go out and tell them this fall that America will persevere until peace comes to Vietnam."

• • •

The President also urged the Democratic congressmen to stand on their records, saying, "I defy any Congress or any administration to ever equal that record."

Many of the congressmen would feel a bit more comfortable if they could have LBJ's coattails for a ride this fall. They know all too well that while most Americans have supported the President's Vietnam policy, there are deep doubts.

The record of Congress has been a remarkable one, but the cost of that record may be a tax increase once the elections are over, if not before. Persons who might not vote against the President himself, will not hesitate to attempt to trim his powers by cutting down his majority in Congress.

The war in Vietnam may be an issue in November, and as Richard Nixon says, largely "because the Democrats have made it so." The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has been one of the President's severest critics.

• • •

An issue carefully avoided by the President, inflation, may be a crucial one. The long hot summer of politics has been launched.

College Doors Closing

Remember the old warning, "It could happen here?" That was a dire warning that had something to do with communism and it was enough to send chills down the spine. Whatever it was didn't happen.

That warning in another context comes across the Colorado border. All of Colorado's state colleges are raising standards for freshmen entrance requirements. The junior colleges, traditionally committed to "open door" policy, were the last to announce enrolment would be limited next fall.

The Denver Post says, "they are slamming—reluctantly—the 'open door' in Colorado's higher education systems. This sort of thing has been happening for the last several years, but the legislature has done nothing about it."

Surely Colorado will take steps to correct this situation but in the meantime many young Coloradans must suffer for the lack of foresight in their state government.

It can be hoped that it will not take a similar experience in Nebraska for the people and the Legislature to come to grips with the educational problems here.

• • •

They have been forewarned that the demands and needs are going to be great and now know the fallacy of underestimating those needs as occurred in the University budget at the last session of the Legislature.

A WORLD OF HUMOR — By ART BUCHWALD

Guess Who in 1972?

Washington—When Gov. George Wallace couldn't change the Alabama constitution so that he could succeed himself, he did the next worst thing. He ran his wife in his place for the governorship, and in last week's primaries she had a big win. This sort of thing has opened up all sorts of possibilities for politicians who can't succeed themselves, and I just hope President Johnson didn't read about it, because if he did . . .

Buchwald

"Wal, Lady Bird, ah see where Mrs. Wallace got a big vote in the Democratic primaries in Alabama."

"Yes, Lyndon, I read about it."

"Let me ask ya something, Lady Bird. You ever wondered what we'd do in 1972?"

"I thought we'd go back to the ranch, Lyndon. The girls will be married by then and you can work on your book and we could finally take life easy."

• • •

Eight More Years

"Exactly what ah was thinking, Bird. Let me ask you one question. Have you ever thought of running for some high public office?"

"What on earth are you talking about, Lyndon?"

"Ah don't know if ah ever told you this, dear, but you'd make some man a fine President."

"President?"

• • •

"Why sure, Bird. Ah've only got another term to go, and ah'm not going to be able to build the Great Society the way ah want it between now and 1972. Now, if you ran for President, we'd have eight more years in the White House. Do you know how many trees you can plant in eight years?"

• • •

"I wouldn't know how to run for President, Lyndon."

"Ah'd help you. Ah'd be by your side during the entire campaign. Ah might even make a few speeches for you. Don't forget, in 1972 ah'll be the titular head of the party, and people will be interested in who ah'm going to support."

"But why me, Lyndon? There must be somebody else more worthy of the job."

Behind Every Man

"Bird, we used to have a saying that behind every man there's a woman, and now after Alabama they have a saying that behind every woman there's a man. Ah want to be that man."

"But what would people say, Lyndon?"

"What did Hubert Humphrey say?"

"He said he'd like to think it over. Ah'm sure he'll come around. Ah told him, if he'd support you for President, ah'd support Muriel for Vice-President."

• • •

"Lyndon, I just don't know what to tell you. I don't even know what to do about Vietnam."

• • •

"Don't let that bother you, Bird. Ah don't either."

"But if I were President, what would you do?"

"Ah'd keep busy, Lady Bird. There's always plenty for the husband of a President to do."

"Well, we don't have to make up our minds tonight, do we?"

"Of course not, Bird. You sleep on it. Ah'll call Nick Katzenbach in the morning, just to make sure it's constitutional."

"I was so looking forward to retiring to the ranch, but anything you say, Lyndon."

Drugs Need Control

Universities and colleges throughout the land have been warned by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) of what it says is a dangerous increase in the use by students of hallucinatory and stimulant drugs. The warning was part of an overall program by the FDA to protect the American public against such drugs.

• • •

Several national magazines have devoted considerable space to the discussion of this problem. The FDA warned specifically against use of such drugs as LSD-24, mescaline and psilocybin.

• • •

All of these drugs produce hallucinations, a means of escape for those who might be tempted into using them. But the FDA also notes that use of the drugs can cause serious mental changes, psychotic manifestations, nervous breakdowns and suicidal tendencies.

• • •

FDA is quoted by Congressional Quarterly as saying: "Unless strong concerted action is taken, an untold number of our students may suffer permanent mental and physical injury.

"Both students and members of the faculty are being secretly approached to engage in hallucinogenic 'experiences.' There is direct evidence of widespread availability of a number of drugs . . ."

The FDA now has in operation four new field offices with 28 drug abuse investigators to attempt to control this problem. Also, the FDA is engaged in a crackdown on the distribution of drugs that have harmful side effects.

From the direction of FDA efforts, it is assumed that a problem of some proportions exists particularly on college campuses. Perhaps college campuses are a natural place for such a development since they are frequently the focal point of new and different things.

• • •

But there is a substantial difference between pioneering thought and expression and pioneering use of drugs. As the center of learning in the country, such campuses ought to be the last place where these harmful drugs would find an outlet.

Reports that have been made on the subject show a number of reasons for taking drugs. Some individuals simply want to experience the sensation of hallucinations, some want to escape a reality with which they cannot cope and others just follow the pack.

But in using harmful drugs, these people are subjecting themselves to a likely future of misery and suffering. They run the risk of destroying both their minds and bodies, many of them without ever thinking of the consequences.

• • •

Whatever educators and parents can do to discourage this development and to stop it where it has started should certainly be done. Careless and indiscriminate use of harmful drugs is a waste of human resources that the nation cannot afford.

• • •

It goes without saying, of course, that drug manufacturers need to police themselves to assist in the control of unwarranted drug consumption. The alternative would be a stronger and stronger federal role, which should be avoided if possible.

U.S. Communist Party Again Active

Provocative EDITORIAL — Topic in News FEATURE

By SID MOODY, AP

"THE SUN," beams Gus Hall, America's No. 1 Communist, "is shining more brightly on the Communist party."

It may be the sun, or the realities of a new American society, but the party has melted down some of the graven images of Karl Marx which thundered that religion was the opium of the people, that capitalism was doomed because of its built-in excesses that would cause increasing misery, wars and ultimately and inevitably a revolt of the masses in a bloody dawn of socialism.

For on occasion, the CP-USA sounds as if it were getting downright soft on capitalism. Capitalism in the U.S., says the CP's proposed new platform "is a marvel of social collective effort."

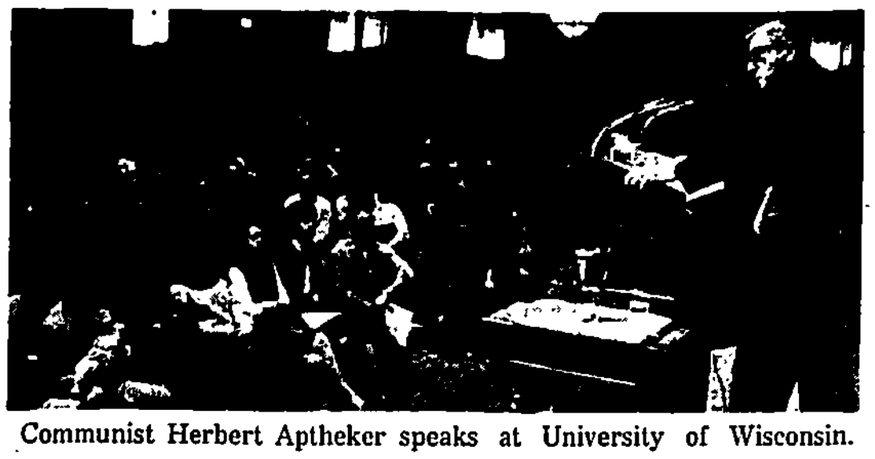
"We recognize many positive, humanist values in the ethical and moral precepts of the several religions," says the same document. And, in one of the greatest reversals since the Yankees lost the pennant, it adds:

"It strikes us as folly to think that monopoly can be overcome and revolutionary transformation of society be undertaken without the sanction and participation of a majority of the (American) people . . . we Communists are defenders of the constitution in principle and practice."

Since the party's founding in America in 1919 any one who has followed its party line has traveled a crooked path, indeed. When Moscow called the turns, the CP-USA turned, even if it meant marching back through the rubble of yesterday's certitudes.

The anti-Fascist line of the 1930's, the Hitler-Stalin pact and the German invasion of Russia forced the party to about face three times in a matter of months, causing numerous comrades to fall out of step.

Moscow currently is attempting to coexist with the West. So the CP-USA is trying to coexist with the USA. And it is doing better than it has for over 15 years.



Communist Herbert Aptheker speaks at University of Wisconsin.

Despite its "new look" and its softer approach, the party is still carefully watched by government agencies.

". . . They are not just another group telling Americans what to do," says an aide to U.S. Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach. "The reason for our interest in them is their attachment to a foreign power."

"The CP-USA is probably more pro-Russian than any party in the world," said an FBI spokesman.

"They are a Trojan horse in our midst," he added. But the Bureau doubts it is a horse filled with spies.

"Espionage is carried out directly from Moscow," the FBI says. "The party would be too risky. Moscow knows we know who the members are."

Says the FBI: "Hall puts membership at 12,000, up 2,000 in recent years, with another 100,000 state-of-mind Communists. He's probably right."

That sounds slight compared to the estimated 100,000 card carriers only two or three decades ago.

There is little evidence that it has much influence among Negroes engaged in the civil rights movement. Intellectuals couldn't stand the switchbacks of the party's forward march and strayed off, few to return.

The hard line anti-Americanism of post-war Stalinism cost the party key positions it had gained in the big labor unions, and the party all but split itself into oblivion when Stalin, its former hero, was desanctified by Nikita Khrushchev in 1956.

The party that once polled 100,000 votes for its presidential candidate in 1932 won less than 1,000 votes for New York City Council 25 years later.

So when a government official says the party doesn't have great influence "but more than is generally believed," he is paying a compliment to the CP's tenacity. In fact, it's lucky to be alive at all. Yet it has not been all the party's doing.

Not the sun but the courts first began to shine more liberally. After World War II, the CP-USA began to burrow underground to escape the Smith Act of 1940, which made it a crime to conspire, advocate or teach the violent overthrow of the government, and the McCarran Act of 1950, which required the party and its members to register as Communists.

But by the mid '50s McCarthy had faded and died. After many climbs up and back to the U.S. Supreme Court, the Smith Act, says a spokesman for the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, "has been all but gutted." To secure a conviction under it, the court ruled, actual efforts to instigate subversion must be proved.

"Congress has outlawed the party as far as it can under the constitution," said a Senate aide. "Anything more would be a bill of attainder which could as well apply to the Elks or B'nai B'rith as to the CP."

Therefore the party has re-emerged into the light of day. The money that went for legal fees is now free for agitation and propaganda.

Disquiet over civil rights and the war in Vietnam is not Communist inspired, says the FBI But both issues provide handy outlets for the CP's marchers, mottoes, and mimeograph machines.

With its softer line and a broadening pond in which to cast it, the Communist party plans to hold a national convention in New York next month, its first since 1959.

What the party says it would like to see — as of the moment—is labor participation in management policy; price controls; nationalization of utilities and new industries that have arisen from government research and contracts such as atomic energy and electronics; repeal of the McCarran Act; a sharp cut in funds allowed for political campaigns; uniformity in state civil rights and welfare laws; mass rapid transit; urban renewal; guaranteed income to the small farmer; end of "CIA interference overseas" and a foreign policy "that will secure peace."

The standard bearer for this not so brave new world, says the CP, will be a party of workers, Negroes, independent farmers, intellectuals, youths and small businessmen. Ballots, not bombs, will be their weapons.

Downtown: Shopping Centers Here

By MAGGIE BELLOWS, UPI

ATTRACTIVE shopping centers in the suburbs—with their weatherproofed malls, beautiful landscaping and plenty of parking space—have grabbed the shoppers away from the downtown streets, leaving them empty, listless and wounded.

• • •

Today some of these cities are swiping that business back again. They're building supersized, super-glamorous shopping centers of their own, right in the middle of town.

Shopping Glamor

• • •

The most glamorous of them boast carpeted floors, supervised playgrounds for children, expensive sculptures, amusement centers and art displays and stage parades, carnivals, exhibits, political rallies, folk dances, choral shows and concerts.

"Shopping centers, attractively designed, can redevelop the cores of our cities," says Lathrop Douglas, one of the first regional shopping center architects, designer of 60 major retail complexes in this country and abroad.

The newest, air-conditioned in the summer and heated in the winter, rise two or three stories high with dramatic malls connected on various floors to hotels, high-rise office buildings, executives suites and luxury apartments. All provide parking, either at sublevels or high-rise. Most of them avoid the jam of delivery trucks by hidden underground delivery tunnels.

"Shopping centers must be attractive to compete today," says Douglas, whose Wanamaker Cross County Center in New York made news as the first large regional center.

"The shopping habits of women are changing. Ten years ago the one-stop could be ugly and junky, but they'd draw trade anyway. Today you just can't bat them out cheaply — the women just won't go there."

• • •

Even convenience doesn't mean much any more. With improved highways circling the cities and leading downtown, women will shop around wherever the most attractive displays and bargains are. And they won't slush through snow and rain when they can shop in comfort in year-around spring-like malls, protected from the sun in summer and the wind in winter.

"In 1966 more than 80% of the centers that open for business will have climatized malls," Douglas says.

Fact or Fantasy?

Lincoln — To those of us who spent 20 years studying the rise and fall of Hitler and Germany, the letter by Robert C. Olney, M.D., president of the Elizabeth Dilling Foundation (Readers' Views March 27), made interesting reading.

His statement that stories about Dachau, Buchenwald, etc., are pure fiction should surprise no one. Many people in Germany did not believe it at the time. Some in Germany do not believe to this day it happened. Some of the victims refused to believe it even after they had become inmates of the camps.

More astonishing, perhaps, some people in Germany, then or now, do not believe there was anything wrong in the government doing such things.

The best educated people in the world, so well-disciplined, orderly and industrious; how could this happen? The very heart of the Christian world—art, culture, theology — this should have been the last place on earth such barbarism could take place.

A detailed study by people of different nationalities, cultures and backgrounds has resulted — with proper allowance for individualism—in gravitation toward certain common conclusions:

1. A people are inclined to believe that which they wish to be true.

2. Generations of militarism and conscription as basic philosophy had conditioned the German people to total authority.

3. Religious affiliation of German people was concentrated in three denominations, each strongly authoritarian and theologically-oriented.

4. There was conclusive evidence of general decline of civilization.

5. The whole thing, in retrospect, seems outrageous and grotesque. However, beginning with 1930, and tracing the events in Germany with the people step by step, the weaving of the giant web in each little part seemed quite plausible.

6. Protest to be effective must come early. There is a point of no return in the course of a nation on the road to totalitarianism. Lucretious said: "When all mankind lay grovelling in the dust, one man stood up and walked at length along the flaming walls of the world."

It makes a great difference when the man (or woman) stands up. The character of the man who stands up then becomes the responsibility of the entire nation — indeed, the entire world.

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

Election results and the tax referendum sparked editorial comment from Nebraska's fourth estate this week.

"The victory of Norbert T. Tiemann over Val Peterson, three-term governor of Nebraska, was truly astonishing," remarked the Falls City Journal. Reasons for the victory may have included Peterson's being "too closely identified with the university'," the Journal suggested, adding, "Several generations of Nebraskans who never heard of Peterson as governor have come of voting age . . . voters wanted a younger man . . . Tiemann did a tremendous amount of work in Omaha and Lincoln—the big vote centers."

Tiemann's "well-planned, well-financed campaign did what many political observers felt could not be done—that is, overcome the Peterson advantage of 20 years of political activity and administrative experience at the state and national level," commented the Norfolk Daily News.

While Tiemann was attracting support from a new generation of Republicans, the Daily News continued, "Peterson had to rely principally on friends of long-standing." Summing up, the Norfolk paper added, "It means the GOP should be in a good position for the fall campaign."

Focusing in on the fate of the income tax referendum, the Nebraska City News-Press commented, "thanks to a district court ruling throwing out the petitions, it appears that Nebraska will have an income tax unless another set of petitions can be circulated before the law goes into effect in 1967."

Taking another view of the tax referendum decision, the Alliance Daily Times-Herald observes, "the people's right to referendum also obligates petitioners to follow a well-defined set of rules. The Omaha-based movement to place the income tax on the ballot never attempted to follow these guidelines."

Vietnam Elections

The best hope of an orderly and honorable outcome in South Vietnam lies in the formation of a government in Saigon which can make peace with the Viet Cong and with Hanoi

Few can believe that an unrigged election in South Vietnam will produce a government which is determined to fight for a military victory. That there is little chance that the Vietnamese people would elect such a government is attested to by the fact that Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky is doing his best to put off the elections to an indefinite future.

Lippmann

Walter Lippmann on Issues — EDITORIAL FEATURE

Despite Secretary of State Dean Rusk's view, which he expressed on Sunday, that Gen. Ky had been misinterpreted and that he is not really opposed to U.S. policy, the truth is that Gen. Ky has not been misinterpreted. The Associated Press interviewed him all over again and Gen. Ky said all over again that he expected to remain in office at least until the middle of next year. He added that if the "neutralists" win the election he will fight them.

Difficult Choices

In this situation we are confronted with exceedingly difficult choices of policy. If we let Gen. Ky talk about staying in power and continue to support him, it is likely that the existing political truce in South Vietnam wil disintegrate. Central Vietnam may break away from Ky's government, and there would be continuing disorders in the streets.

• • •

On the other hand, it would not be easy for the United States to discipline the military junta on which it is depending for the prosecution of the war. The result of doing that might well be to leave us with the whole burden of fighting the war.

• • •

Opinion Analysis Of Author

It is a difficult dilemma before us, and it is likely to remain unresolved unless there is a clarification of our own intentions and policy. The reason Gen. Ky talks as he does, defying the official views of the American government, is that he knows that the American government is of several minds in regard to the whole business. What he is saying out loud is what many influential officials are thinking privately.

For while the official position is to support elections and to abide by the result, this official view does reflect an unequivocal decision by the President. There are plenty of officials around him who do not want an election, who do not want a negotiated settlement, who indeed do not intend, if they can help it, ever to reach a settlement which calls for the withdrawal of American military forces from the mainland of Southeast Asia.

• • •

Protecting the Majority

The great decision which has still to be taken is whether it is, in fact, the United States' policy to favor the holding of elections and the acceptance of the results. If and when the decision is taken that this is our policy we shall act accordingly.

We shall recognize the fact that in a country where there are a quarter of a million American soldiers, a country which is wholly dependent on American support, it is impossible for the United States not to take a position in regard to an election To refuse to take a position would be to let the election be rigged by those who have the most guns and the most money.

• • •

The most straightforward and promising position for us to take is, after studying the situation carefully, to protect those whom we believe to be the majority and to restrain those who would conspire to nullify the will of this majority.

• • •

The alternative to making a judgment of this kind would amount to conniving at a clandestine effort to rig the elections in favor of Gen. Ky, or of someone like him. On this course there is almost no likelihood that internal stability can be produced, and there would be no prospect of bringing the war to an end.

Heart Patient Explains Money

New Orleans (AP)—An elderly man whose heart stopped beating for two minutes earlier this week, putting him into a four-day coma, has revived and told of how he came to be carrying $55,600 stitched into his clothing.

"It is for my sister. She's destitute. She lives in a shack in Buenos Aires and I want to build her a home," said 69-year-old Albert Jarkin from his bed in a ward at Charity Hospital.

Sniper Shoots Into Girls' Dorm

Silver City, N.M. (AP) — A sniper's bullets ripped into a girls' dormitory at Western New Mexico University in the early morning darkness wounding a campus policeman and just missing one coed twice. Campus Police Chief Bill Loshbough said several students were being questioned but that no arrest had been made. He said the shots were believed to have come from a car occupied by two men.

400,000 Students Seek Draft Exemption

New York (AP)—Amid scattered picketing and protests, nearly 400,000 college students took examinations Saturday that may determine whether they will be called to military service or be allowed to remain in school.

It had been feared that demonstrations would be staged at many of the 1,200 colleges and universities where the draft-deferment tests were given. But pickets showed up at only about a dozen test sites.

Results of the tests will be turned over to local draft boards as a yardstick in filling draft quotes that have been rising because of the Vietnam war.

Two City College of New York students, Peter Gewandter and Al Samuel, said the test was "easy." Samuel said, "everyone was ready to run out after the second hour."

Science-Oriented

They said the test was science-oriented, even in the reading comprehension and verbal analogy sections.

Students had three hours to complete the test and needed 70 to pass. Graduate students needed a grade of 80.

One student taking the test was arrested at the Cornell University Campus at Ithaca, N.Y. Approximately 3,000 students took the test at six on-campus centers as about 30 students and several faculty members demonstrated.

Campus patrolmen arrested Harry Teitelbaum of Brooklyn, a student in the State Agricultural College at Cornell, after they said he pounded on a desk with a metal object and refused to leave the room. He was charged with disorderly conduct and released in $50 bail.

Protests Dwindle

A three-day sit-in at the University of Chicago dwindled to a token group Saturday as 300 students turned out for the test. Some of the 75 demonstrators on the Wayne State University campus at Detroit scuffled briefly with police Friday, but no incidents were reported Saturday.

About 25 persons picketed at the University of Wisconsin at Madison. One sign said: "Stay here and fight ignorance." Another asked: "Why are the poor fighting the war?" Then about a third of the pickets put down their signs and joined 2,600 other students in taking the examination.

WIREPHOTO

Oklahoma City University coeds concentrate on sample of Selective Service test given across the nation Saturday to some 400,000 draft-age college men. Seven of the 16 failed to get 70% of answers correct, the grade considered passing for the men.

'Dodge City' Often Ringed With Bombs

Saigon (AP) — They call it "Dodge City." American pilots pin that label on Hanoi in mock protest against the policy decision that keeps them from attacking the North Vietnamese citadel.

Since regular raids on the Communist north began 15 months ago, American fliers have edged toward Hanoi and its port, Haiphong, pouring increasingly larger loads of explosives around them.

The supersonic jets could hardly come any closer without hitting the cities themselves. They've plastered missile sites 15 miles from Hanoi and 12 miles from Haiphong, a power plant 14 miles from Haiphong and highway and railroad bridges only a few miles more distant.

Such attacks are called stabs at the enemy's industrial heartland because most of North Vietnam's existing industry lies either in or near the two cities.

Besides serving as the seat of government, Hanoi has small machine factories, textile plants and chemical facilities. Haiphong, beyond its importance as the country's major port, produces machines, textiles and chemicals and has small shipbuilding yards.

A coal-mining belt stretches north of Haiphong from the industrial town of Hon Gay on the gulf of Tonkin to Bac Giang, where fertilizers are produced. Midway between Hanoi and Haiphong lies the textile center of Hai Duong.

By Western standards, North Vietnam's industry is Lilliputian.

But it is a source of pride to the country's Communist rulers and they emphasize the importance of the Hanoi-Haiphong complex by the defenses they have put up. The two cities are also the country's chief population centers, sitting astride the fertile Red River delta, the chief rice-growing area. Hanoi has a population of 645,000, Haiphong 370,000.

The bulk of North Vietnam's estimated 60 Soviet-built anti-aircraft missile launchers ring Hanoi and Haiphong. Most of the MIGs of North Vietnam's 75-plane Air Force are based at airfields in the area, with the principal base at Phuc Yen, 20 miles northwest of Hanoi.

U.S. intelligence reports no large troop concentrations in or around Hanoi or Haiphong. However Communist sources describe both cities as virtually garrison towns, with children evacuated to the countryside and workers at their jobs with guns nearby ready for use. Appropriately, Haiphong means Sea Fortress in Vietnamese.

Party Secretary Brezhnev Labeled 'Consensus Type'

By HENRY SHAPIRO

Moscow (UPI) — If ever there was a 'consensus type" of top leader in the Communist world he is Soviet General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev Chosen hastily by his colleagues on the ruling party Politburo (then Presidium) Oct 15, 1964, when they ousted Nikita S. Khrushchev, Brezhnev consolidated his position at the recently concluded 23rd Congress largely by his own efforts.

He is not the unquestioned leader that was Lenin—organizer of the Russian revolution and founder of the Soviet state, who stood above any political rival.

He is not the absolute ruler and tyrant that Stalin became years after he painfully, laboriously and bloodily monopolized Soviet power through his office of party general secretary

Nor is Brezhnev the unassailable chief of Soviet communism that Khrushchev appeared to become after he ousted the majority of his fellow presidiumers of the Molotov-Malenkov group in June, 1957.

Chairman of Board

Brezhnev may be described as the chairman of the board of the world's largest and most powerful corporation—the 12-million man Communist party of the Soviet Union.

He rules with the advice and consent of the other 10 members and may be overruled or replaced by a majority of them.

As far as can possibly be ascertained since that fateful 1964 day when Khrushchev disappeared into the limbo of Soviet "unpersons," Brezhnev has strengthened his position with the Politburo.

Evidence is provided by the fact that the man most likely to succeed Brezhnev, the dynamic former security chief Alexander Shelepin, organized the 23rd Congress which endowed Brezhnev with the title only Stalin once held—general secretary.

The economic reforms introduced after the fall of Khrushchev, east-west relations in the context of the war in Vietnam, the Sino-Soviet split, and the reassessment of Stalin's role are believed to have caused lively and continuous debate in the Politburo.

Brezhnev, as party leader, presides.

According to Soviet sources, Brezhnev acts like a moderator when opinions vary.

After a matter has been debated, a vote is taken. The majority opinion, under party rules, becomes unanimous. Every member is then duty-bound to help its implementation. Further opposition can be expressed only at the risk of expulsion from the leadership and party.

Although formally he is the first citizen of the country he usually shares whatever public acclaim there is with his two co-leaders of the collective team of rulers, Premier Kosygin and President Nikolai Podgorny.

After two heart attacks Brezhnev is not in top health.

But if it does not deteriorate and he shows no inclination towards "personality cultism," according to qualified observers, he will stay at the helm of Soviet power.

Military Merger Scored

Reserves, Guard 'Vital'

Washington (UPI) — The Senate preparedness subcommittee, provoking an argument with the Pentagon, recommended unanimously Saturday that the proposed merger of the Army Reserve and Army National Guard be scrapped as unwise and undesirable.

Defense Secretary Robert McNamara first proposed the merger in late 1964 and still is trying to get it approved. The subcommittee, did not like the idea now "in this time of heightened international tensions and when we are engaged in actual hostilities."

The eight-member group strongly criticized the army's decision last fall to deactivate 750 Army Reserve units. It also suggested that Army Reserve training divisions be called to active duty for training purposes.

On all these points the Pentagon announced its dissent.

A statement said, "The reserves are a vital component of the military readiness program. There is no need at this time to call reserves to active duty, and thereby make them a perishable asset to our national defense.

"Because of their importance to our combat readiness, it is essential that we continue to modernize the reserve and national guard. To do this, we must change outmoded concepts that result in waste and degraded readiness."

As for McNamara's role, it said the merger plan "was developed under the direction of the chief of staff of the army and was approved by the secretary of the army."

In its report criticizing the deactivation of 750 reserve units last fall, the eight-member subcommittee said an amazingly small number of reservists have voluntarily transferred to the national guard. It cited only 783, or less than 1½%.

Nevadans Inspect Gambling Revenue

Reno, Nev. (AP)—Nevadans are being forced to take a close look—perhaps the most penetrating ever—at their 35-year-old prodigy: legal gambling.

No longer is gambling considered an experiment in Nevada. Harrah's and Harolds, the Dunes and the Desert Inn are now an integral part of the Nevada scene

But gamblers (Nevada dialect for casino operators) are being pressured to prove they are paying their share of taxes in the face of mounting demands for state revenue.

The fuss started a year ago when a rumpled, out-of-work north Las Vegas man launched an initiative petition drive to increase the state's special gross tax on casino winnings by nearly 300% on the big clubs.

Joe Matthews, a stocky, 53-year-old immigrant from California, was a virtual unknown. Not many thought his movement would last long. But Matthews persisted and now claims he has some 11,000 of the 14,000 signatures he needs to force action in the legislature next year, or at the polls in 1968 if the legislature fails to act.

The gamblers are worried. Their defense is headed by two major casino organizations — one of them established since Matthews came on the scene, the other rejuvenated in the past year. The spokesmen for each say a tax increase of such proportion would ruin the gambling industry and take a lot of Nevada business down with it. That is also the view of Gov. Grant Sawyer, a Democrat, who first won election in 1958 on a platform of tighter gambling control.

'Something Wrong'

Matthews says he is not out to destroy gambling. But he adds:

"There's something wrong when you can produce $300 million in one year on gambling and can't support a school system. Las Vegas has three times the police force of any city of comparable size. If crime is brought in here by the gambling industry, then the gambling industry should carry a part of the cost."

Nevada has led the nation's crime rate statistics, based on population.

A report made last fall for Gov. Sawyer by the Nevada Gaming Commission, the Nevada Tax Commission and the Nevada Gaming Control Board said the 75 casinos which did 96% of the business during the preceding year had net profit of $12 million on total sales of $408.3 million, including food, drinks and room prices as well as gambling receipts.

The casinos paid nearly $15 million to the state in special gambling taxes and fees in addition to another $15 million in taxes levied only on gamblers by federal, county and city government.

Control Was Slow

Nevada was slow in taking full control of its 1931 cure-all brain-child — devised as one way to control illegal gambling and to boost Nevada business out of the depression doldrums.

It was 1945 before there was any concerted effort to tax gambling on a statewide basis. Not until 1955 did the state have an effective control apparatus.

The state is now in the black, but its general operating balance is evaporating under the pressures of additional money demands, mostly from education. Gambling taxes and fees account for about 30% of general income. The largest income is from the 2% sales tax.

The big special tax Nevada gamblers pay—the one Matthews seeks to change—ranges from 3 to 5½% of gross receipts. This brought the state $16 million in 1965 on gross winnings of $311.4 million. Possibly $3 billion crossed the tables to provide the actual casino take.

Atom Turns Detective

Seatle, Wash. (UPI) — The Seattle Police Department has engaged the University of Washington nuclear reactor as an "atomic detective."

A pilot program is under way to develop techniques for using the reactor in identifying chemical elements that might have a bearing upon physical evidence gathered in crime investigations.

This method provides a more precise analysis than is now possible using chemical methods.

Three Accidents Here Kill Four

Four persons died in three separate accidents Saturday in Lincoln. The victims:

Henry C. Gropp Jr., 28, 219 C.

Miss Jessie McCallum, 86, 1313 Eldon Drive.

Mrs. Rachel Portenier, 41, Guide Rock.

Traffic Fatalities	1966	1965
Nebraska	138	101
Lancaster County	21	1
Lincoln	9	1

Ralph W. Hedden, 38, Omaha.

The fourth victim was a 27-year-old Lincoln laborer, Mr. Gropp. Police said he was killed in a near head-on collision on the 10th St. cutoff to Hwy. 6.

Police Lt. Dean Leitner said Mr. Gropp's west-bound vehicle went out of control and collided with an east-bound pickup truck driven by George F. Robinson, 62, of 2700 No. 27th.

Robinson suffered shoulder bruises. He was treated and released from St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

The accident occurred at 5:43 p.m.

Police said Mr. Gropp suffered severe brain damage in the accident and died less than two hours later in a Lincoln hospital.

Two women, Miss McCallen and Mrs. Portenier, were killed in a car-train accident at 11:50 a.m. Saturday at 27th and Capitol Parkway.

Police said the car in which they were riding was traveling northwest when it stopped on the Rock Island Railroad tracks.

Engineer Willard Hill of Fairbury said warning lights were flashing. He said he sounded the train whistle but the women apparently did not see him until just before impact.

The train was traveling about 30 m.p.h. at the time of the collision, the engineer said. The train dragged the car about 165 feet.

Mr. Hedden, an employ of the Monroe Shock Absorber Co., was killed in a one-car accident at Baker Ave. and Interstate 80 about a half-mile outside city limits.

The Lancaster County Sheriff's office said his car went over the guard rail of the overpass and smashed upside down on the road below.

Editor Puts Finger on Challenges

Science, Cities Pose Problems

Roger Tartarian, editor of United Press International, said Saturday night the scientific explosion and urban concentration are posing new challenges and problems to occupy journalists of the future.

He said one of the dangerous side effects of the proliferation of scientific activity had been best expressed by Sir Charles P. Snow, the British scientist and author, in his celebrated lectures on "the two cultures."

Speaking at the annual journalism Awards Dinner at the University of Nebraska, Tatarian, summarizing Snow's thesis, said this danger lay in the fact that as scientific learning and investigation intensified, "scientists can become more and more engrossed in their own specialties and have less contact with, if not interest in, the nonscientific activities around them."

"And as this specialization increases," Tatarian said, "so does the incomprehension of the non-scientist. Each for different reasons becomes so overwhelmingly absorbed in his own world that the interplay between them diminishes."

The press, he said, would have an increasingly important role in bridging the gap between these two worlds.

"The journalist's role as a catalyst of society will be more difficult as the process of polarization flourishes on every side," he said. "The journalist himself will not be exempt from the demands for greater specialization."

Tatarian said the transit workers strike in New York last January had raised a vital question that was likely to recur more frequently as cities grew in size and complexity and individual citizens became more interdependent and "more and more helpless to cope for themselves."

The question, he said, is how to reconcile the right of the many to certain vital services with the right of the few to better their conditions of work.

"It is important in a democracy that a majority not do violence to the minority," he said, "but it is no less important to keep the opposite from happening in certain vital areas."

Watts Riot's Roots in 1940s, Meet Here Told

The Watts riot that shook Los Angeles last August and caused millions of dollars in damage was not the result of a single incident, according to the Rev. St. Paul Epps, former Presbyterian minister in the Watts area.

"The riot, or revolt in Watts began its buildup in the mid-1940's," the Rev. Mr. Epps told a luncheon meeting of the Lincoln Kiwanis Club, with an influx of Negroes.

The Rev. Mr. Epps said Watts may not be the last riot this country will see if attitudes and communications are not improved between Negroes and whites.

"Human relations must change," the Rev. Mr. Epps said," or there will be another Watts."

Lindy and the "Spirit of St. Louis"

Lincoln Recalls Lindy's Fame As This Is Where He Started to Fly

By RON GIBSON

He was called, at various times during his young life, "Slim," "Swede," and "The Flying Fool," but since one day in May the world has known him as "Lindy."

Charles A. Lindbergh, a man of triumph and sorrow, has made many stops in his amazing life and one of them was Lincoln, Neb. It was here that he learned to fly in 1922, at the old Ray Page Airport south of the city.

The airport is now part of Lincoln Memorial Park Cemetery. It was at this site that Lindbergh, probably the most famous aviator of all time, took his first airplane ride.

This week will mark the 39th anniversary of the electrifying trans-Atlantic crossing by Lindbergh in the tiny "Spirit of St. Louis." Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt Field, New York, on May 20, 1927. He landed at LeBourget Field outside Paris some 33 hours later, completing the first New York-to-Paris non-stop flight.

The hectic days of ovation and acclaim which followed were the pinnacle of Lindbergh's career, from a standpoint of publicity. But that career was to have other heights and other depths.

Personal Tragedies

One of the great personal tragedies of the century was his, when his infant son was kidnapped and murdered in March, 1932. Following the subsequent manhunt for the murderer, the capture of Bruno Hauptmann and Hauptmann's trial and execution, Lindbergh and his wife went into seclusion and travelled in Europe.

There was to be more bitterness for "The Lone Eagle," the son of a Minnesota Congressman. In the pre-World War II days of the 1930s, and even early in World War II, Lindbergh was widely reproved for his allegedly isolationist viewpoint, and was accused of pro-Nazi feelings.

Lindbergh opposed President Roosevelt's policies and urged America to stay out of the conflict in Europe, proposing instead a negotiated peace. He was also decorated by the German government—much to Lindbergh's surprise.

When President Roosevelt implied early in 1941 that Lindbergh was an appeaser, Lindbergh resigned his commission as a colonel in the Air Corps Reserve. Yet after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in December of 1941, Lindbergh volunteered almost immediately for the Air Corps. The President would not change his mind, and Lindbergh was not recommissioned.

War Role

Not widely known is Lindbergh's role during and after World War II. This is What he did:

—Worked as a technical adviser at the Ford bomber plant in Detroit in 1942, at a salary equal to what his pay as a colonel would have been, even though he could have written his own ticket.

—Flew P-38s and Navy F-4U Corsairs in the Pacific later in World War II, technically in his role as a consultant aircraft marker and to the War and Navy Departments. While officials looked the other way, he flew 50 combat missions; shot down two Japanese planes; dropped bombs; and showed American pilots how to double the effective range of the P-38 escort fighter.

—Served as a consultant to the Defense Dept., helped select the site of the Air Force Academy and contributed substantially to the U.S. missile program.

—Served as a consultant to Pan-American World Airways and to the Library of Congress

In his lifetime Lindbergh has received official honors perhaps without parallel, at least as far as variety. They include the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Pulitzer Prize for his book "The Spirit of St. Louis," the Wright Brothers Memorial Trophy for high public service to aviation, the Guggenheim medal and several foreign decorations.

Seven Hours

Lincoln was the firsts top on this fabulous career. "Lindy" came to Lincoln in the spring of 1922 after dropping out of the University of Minnesota.

He came to Lincoln on a motorcycle, to enrol in Ray Page's Lincoln Flying School south of town along what is now Highway 77. He purchased 10 hours of instruction from Page but used only seven of the hours.

When it came time to solo, Lindberg didn't have enough money to make the deposit required for him to take a plane up alone—or so the story goes. He took the rest of his hours of training in parachute jumping and left town, completing flight instruction in Montana.

"Slim" was the name his Lincoln fellow students knew him by. After Slim left Lincoln, he bought a World War I Jenny biplane and began barnstorming. Then came flight training in the Army, night flying with the U.S. mail—and the fateful decision to fly the Atlantic alone.

Lincoln Considered For Nazarene Junior College

The Church of the Nazarene announced plans in Kansas City Saturday to start two junior colleges in the 1966-67 period. Lincoln is considered a possible site for one.

A denominational publicist said one college will be in Ohio and one in the Kansas-Nebraska area.

Church officials, including Dr. Willis Snowbarger of Overland Park, Kan., educational superintendent, said the area being considered for one college has not been narrowed down to just Kansas and Nebraska, however.

Dr. Snowbarger said the college will be located somewhere in a zone including Nebraska, Kansas, both Dakotas, Minnesota, part of Missouri and part of Iowa.

A selection committee will be appointed at a May 26-27 meeting in Kansas City.

Selection of Lincoln Air Force Base as site for a Nazarene junior college — with plans to expand into a four-year liberal arts college — hinge on further Job Corps negotiations for base use, the Rev. Melvin Laws of Lincoln's First Nazarene Church said.

Engineers Elect

Omahan G. W. Ballard, a 1949 University of Nebraska graduate, was elected president of the Professional Engineers of Nebraska at the group's annual meeting at the Nebraska Center. M. K. Hobson of Lincoln is president-elect and Walter Kreuscher of Lincoln is treasurer.

Change in Nebraska's Attitude Called Vital

15-Year State Income 'Loss' Is $6.7 Billion

By DICK HERMAN

Nebraska has paid a staggering multi billion-dollar penalty for its economic failure to diversify and grow at a rate at least equal to the nation in post-war years, a University of Nebraska researcher-instructor has calculated.

Over the 15-year span from 1948 to 1963, the state's cumulative net loss in personal income was an amazing $6,674,000,000!

These were dollars "lost" in the sense Nebraska families never got them to spend, unlike millions of other American families.

This loss, says Ronald A. Wykstra in an NU doctoral dissertation, traces essentially to two surface causes:

1. Nebraska's continued heavy reliance upon agriculture as a direct source of income.

2. Nebraska's inability to blend into the mainstream of American industrial development.

Leadership Task

To change the situation requires fundamental shifts in basic Nebraska attitudes, in Wykstra's judgment.

And this he sees as a task for political leadership, one which has not won many passing marks for economic improvement in the past.

Wykstra is now in the final stages of preparing his study. It will stand as the first searching inquiry into Nebraska's 20th Century economic growth and manpower development.

There have been small indications the work might spur a new look at the importance of economic thinking among the state's business and civic captains.

Two weeks ago The Sunday Journal and Star published Wykstra's findings that Nebraska had a net out-migration from 1890 to 1960 of 785,000 people.

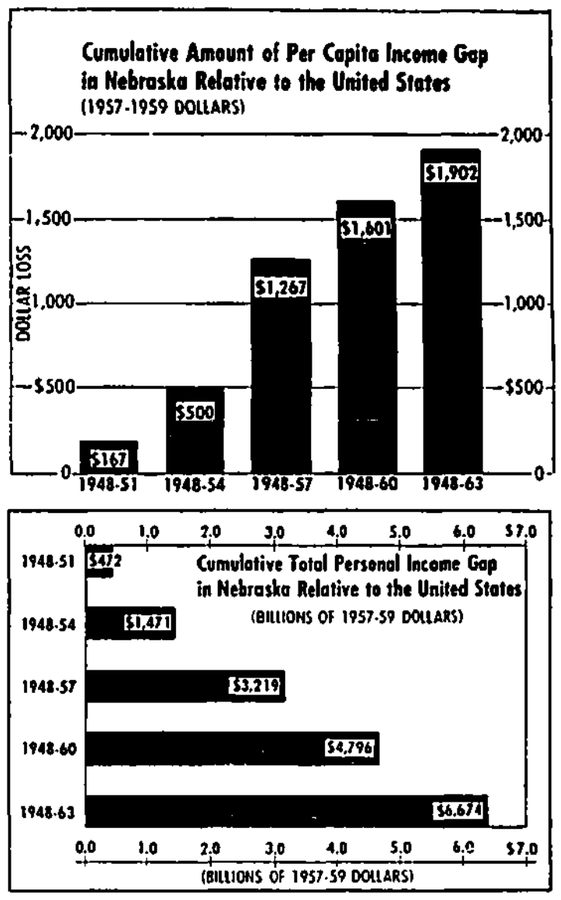
Gloomy Statistic

Wykstra also uncovered the gloomy statistic Nebraska's prime male labor force declined 3.1% from 1940 to 1960, contrasted with the national increase of almost 20%.

This was also against a background where women, many in the low-salaried ranks, are becoming an ever-increasing factor in the state's labor force.

Wysktra's depressing conclusion was that Nebraska's future economic health is imperiled by the loss of its most valuable treasure, its productive people.

Lack of solid employment opportunities within the state, generally considered a basic responsibility of private enterprise, was recognized as a major force impelling young Nebraskans to move.



Total Personal Income, 1880 to 1960
Nebraska and the United States
Measured in millions of 1957-59 dollars

	Nebraska	U.S.	Nebraska as a pct. of U.S.
1880	$ 198	$ 24,413	0.81
1900	746	50,792	1.46
1920	1,034	99,251	1.04
1940	1,184	160,905	0.74
1960	2,934	387,030	0.76

Using well-established economic reports, Wykstra learned total personal income in Nebraska "over the entire 60-year period since 1900 . . . has increased at a rate less than one-half that of the United States."

293% Gain

Nebraska's personal income rose 293% to nearly $3 billion in 1960.

"In contrast, the national increase was 662%, a rise from $50.6 to $387 billion," the researcher says. "This represents an average annual growth rate in real income in Nebraska of 2.28%, compared to 3.45% for the nation."

Thus, while Nebraska's pool of dollars has grown, this rising stack is a shrinking portion of the national greenback ocean.

Says Wykstra

"There are several possible explanations for the overall substandard rate of growth in Nebraska personal income.

"The two most conspicuous and likely explanations are Nebraska's heavy participation in a declining industry—agriculture—and a concomitant failure by the state to participate in the developing of manufacturing activities to the extent this development occurred at the national level.

". . . While agriculture has become relatively less important to the Nebraska economy as an income source from 1880 to 1960, it is, at the same time, nearly four times more important an income source for this state than for the nation as a whole."

Another measure of economic well-being is per capita income.

Lincoln Statue Starts Losing Weathered Look Tomorrow

Early Monday morning, barring an order from Gov. Frank B. Morrison or someone else high, the green patina on the Statehouse statue of Abraham Lincoln will start coming off.

Long and successfully defended by art lovers, the patina is a natural chemical change which developes in exterior bronze sculptures.

Saturday, Statehouse Supt. R. C. Newell revealed the 1965 Legislature granted his request for a $3,000 appropriation to turn the famed Daniel French statue from green to brown.

Upon the recommendation of University art gallery boss Norman Geske, Newell said he obtained Joseph Ternbach of New York City to do the job.

While Geske submits the patina dosen't offend him and unquestionably will return in another decade or so, the art director said Ternbach is "the best possible man" for the cleaning task.

Matter of Taste

"Patina is largely a matter of taste," Geske commented. "Some of the greatest pieces of bronze work are covered with a green patina and nobody in their right mind would think of removing it."

It is the patina which often heightens the dollar value of bronze work on the art market, a sure mark of aging.

Unveiled in 1912 and dedicated with a speech by William Jennings Bryan, the bowed Lincoln statue grew green as rain water coursed over the brooding head and down the torso.

But no change occurred in the brown color of the eye sockets, giving the Great Emancipator something of an owlish look.

Hideous to Brooks

One who didn't share that opinion was the late Gov. Ralph Brooks. He remarked the Lincoln green made him "see red . . . The statue is hideous the way it is, with the eyes black and all the rest a sickening green."

Per-Pupil Aid Okayed

NSEA Group Makes Decision

Any state aid to schools should be distributed on a per-pupil basis, the Nebraska State Education Assn. legislative commission adjudged informally.

After a long discussion of state aid formulas, the commission agreed to support their 1965 formula using a per pupil basis

Opponents want any possible state aid to be distributed according to census.

This method would take into account the number of all persons of school age living in the school district, including both parochial and public school students.

Commission members have noted this census method of distribution would mean higher state aid for each public school pupil in districts that had a large number of parochial students.

In effect, this would mean lower school district taxes in areas with a high concentration of parochial students, all else being equal.

The commission also voted to support a proposed state constitutional amendment that would give 20% of income and sales tax, or both, income to the schools.

T. A. Filipi Asks $1 Million Grant Approval

State Sanitation Engineer T. A. Filipi said Saturday he has urged federal officials to approve applications for federal grants totaling more than $1 million for water and sewer projects at Chadron, Kearney and Lincoln.

The federal funds, which would pay about half the costs of each project, are available under the U.S. Housing and Urban Development program.

The Lincoln application seeks $254,100 to construct a trunk sewer line south of Hwy. 2 from 27th to 56th and to construct a water main to serve developments north of Hwy. 6 from 35th to 56th.

Ranchers Talking Reduction In Western Land Valuation

One of the state's leading ranchers, Don Hanna of Brownlee, confirms Nebraska Stock Growers Assn. representatives have been visiting western and Sandhills county boards of equalization in recent days, talking about reducing real estate valuations.

But Hanna denied the ranchers are deliberately encouraging defiance of the State Board of Equalization or are attempting to torpedo scientific reappraisals.

"We just think the valuations on land are too high," Hanna said.

Rush Apparently On

That same morning State Tax Commissioner George Dworak revealed the rush is apparently on among Sandhills and Panhandle counties to ignore or reduce state-approved appraisals or roll back valuation increases directed last summer by the State Board.

To date, 11 counties have taken action completely or partially wiping out the effects of 1965 State Board valuation increases or reducing appraisals, Dworak said.

In Thomas County, the three-man county board of May 9 passed a resolution finding "the actual value of all real property in Thomas County . . .to be identical with the actual value of all real property on the tax rolls as of Jan. 1, 1965."

That was the level which existed before the State Board in August, 1965, raised the tax valuation of Thomas County rural lands and improvements a whopping 79%, to $9,642,840.

Then in March of this year, Dworak approved a scientific reappraisal of Thomas County hiking rural values yet another 27%, to $12,269,770.

Asked for comment about the Thomas County board's action in light of his approval, Dworak opened a lawbook and read from the reappraisal statute.

The section the tax commissioner cited was a state law which requires results of a commissioner - approved appraisal be "binding upon all political subdivisions."

Thomas was one of six Sandhills counties which had scientific reappraisals of real estate and improvements. All were blessed by Dworak March 1.

Other counties involved were Hooker, Grant, Arthur, McPherson and Blaine.

Appraisal Reduced

Dworak last week displayed a copy of a McPherson County board resolution, dated May 3, reducing the McPherson state-approved real estate appraisal by 25%.

In that reappraisal, rural lands and improvements were given a 63.5% increase, urban lands and improvements a 12.6% boost.

This was on top of the 42% increase in the tax value of rural lands and improvements mandated for McPherson County by the State Board of Equalization last year.

Dworak said these have been the actions of either county boards or assessors in other counties:

Dawes—The State Board raised rural tax values 24%, urban values 11%. The county board has directed the increases on improvements only be rolled back to values as they existed Jan. 1, 1965.

Cherry — The State Board ordered rural values increased 40%, urban values 13%. The county board has ordered a roll back on all improvements and, Hanna said, is also considering knocking out State Board increases of land tax values.

Loup—The State Board made no change in urban values, but hiked rural land values 52%. County board action in recent days completely reverses the state's directive.

Sioux—The State Board raised rural values 26%, urban values 10%. Action recently by the county board entirely rolls back these increases.

Rock — Rural values were boosted 30% by the State Board, while urban values were accepted without change. The county board has cancelled out rural value increases entirely.

Keith—Rural values raised 43% by State Board, urban values upped 12%. These have been completely knocked out by the county board.

Brown—The State Board increased rural values 50% and left standing county-determined urban values. The county assessor rolled back the state's increases for the coming tax year.

Douglas—Where the State Board ordered a 10% increase on all real estate and improvements outside city limits, County Assessor Joe Stolinski knocked out the increase for 1966 insofar as it affected suburban residential real estate and improvements. Stolinski is also trying to add approximately $98 million to the taxable value of some Douglas County real estate this year, Dworak said.

Hall—Rural values were jumped 20% by State Board. Assessor Charles Tillman has reversed these increases only upon suburban properties.

The tax commissioner says county boards are completely within their rights fixing equalized valuation totals above or below those directed by the State Board for the 1965 tax year.

But the matter is not the same with counties which seek to undermine commissioner-approved appraisals, he asserted.

Plans Discussion

Dworak said he plans to discuss the matter with the Dept. of Justice

The five-member State Board, of which Dworak is one member, has authority to make blanket increases or reductions in classes of county tax values, he pointed out.

Hanna reported the stock growers are interested in seeing the western county-submitted valuations this year are approximately in line with each other.

This, too, is the professed objective of State Sen. Ramsey Whitney of Chappell.

He confirmed he has personally discussed the level of real estate values with some western Nebraska county officials in the last few weeks.

Whitney and fellow lawmaker Chester Paxton of Thedford have been critical of scientific reappraisals in the Sandhills and other western Nebraska counties.

Paxton's complaint has been the reappraisals establish too high a tax value on grazing land.

15-Year Loss Heavy

ending in 1963, Wykstra's data demonstrates, "the average rate of per capita income growth was 2.04% for the nation in contrast to an average of 1.45% in Nebraska."

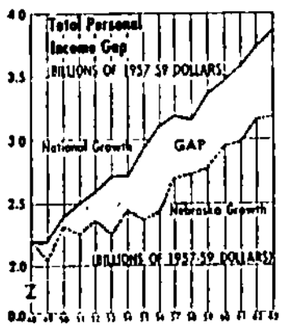
Some Improvement

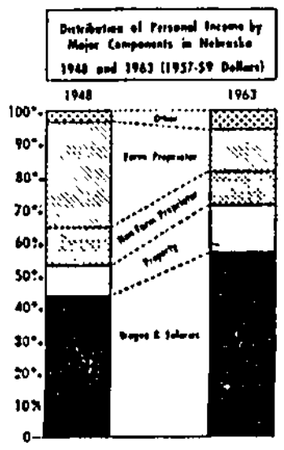
Some rate of improvement was noted in the latter years of the period.

Still, the cumulative per capita net income "loss" in Nebraska for the 15 years is put at $1,902.

(Figures published by federal authorities two weeks ago placed Nebraska's estimated 1965 per capita income at $2,573, or 94% of the national average. The gap traced by Wykstra apparently still exists and could be widening.)

Actually, Nebraska's large number of out-migrants may be artificially helping the state's per capita income figure stay as high as it is: More dollars, statistically, can be distributed to each person if there aren't so many people to go around.





Wykstra puts it this way in his dissertation:

"For the six decades from 1900, the national per capita income growth rate is slightly greater than the state's, whereas the rate of growth in total income for the nation was one-half again as large as Nebraska's.

"This increase in total income has been instrumental in assuring Nebraska residents of a higher standard of living, but the population 'exporting' which has been occurring and may have contributed to this end is one of the major concerns of the state today."

In comments aside from his academic work, Wykstra questions "political lip-service" paid efforts to expand and diversify Nebraska's non-agricultural base.

"Nebraska's political leadership must respond to important problems the populace does not see or refuses to see in their totality," he commented.

"The vogue in Nebraska is to complain of relatively insignificant agricultural price problems. This allegiance is prompted by selfish political motives by so-called political leaders who have been and remain in literal bondage to the agricultural power bloc. This bloc represents a sector of the state which is shrinking and will continue to shrink as an economic base."

In Wykstra's view, Nebraska "may now be on the threshhold of the 'take-off' towards economic growth."

And looking toward possible brighter economic days, the NU instructor quoted national economist W. W. Rostow's famed work on energizing economically backward areas.

The first requirement, according to Rostow is ". . . a political leadership that, at last, means business.

"Until a definitive political transformation occurs which harnesses (national or state) energies, talents and resources around the concrete tasks of economic growth, the take-off is likely to be postponed."

Wykstra's conclusion:

"No more appropriate charge can be set before the people of Nebraska, unless, of, course, they continue to minimize or ignore their ailment."

Hastings College Adopts Budget

Hastings (AP) — A budget of $1,611,560 for the 1966-1967 school year has been adopted by trustees of Hastings College, holding their semi-annual meeting here.

Dr Theron B. Maxson, president of the college, said this represents an increase of about $50,000 over the current year.

Dr. Maxson said groundwork for a new physical education building was laid when the board authorized the executive committee to proceed at once with completion of architectural studies and a program of financing. He said the site has not been chosen and no cost estimates have been made.

He also pointed out that physical education classes are now held in the old library building and plans call for remodeling that building for an art center.

Dr. Maxson said a study of student housing will be undertaken with view to constructing a new dormitory on the college campus in the near future.

Omahan Picked

North Platte (AP) — Members of District 24 Toastmasters Saturday elected George Ireland of Omaha as district governor. Other officers include educational lieutenant governor, Harold Vogt, Omaha and lieutenant governors, Norm Byddecke, Omaha, and, Carl Leising, Lincoln.

Elephants Take the Cake

Three Pachyderms, Girl, Become Sweet 16 During Shrine Circus

Ask any kid who has been to the Shrine Circus what he liked best, and he's likely to tell you the elephants take the cake.

Saturday night the elephants did take the cake—literally. And why not? It was their birthday.

Elephants Tillie, Jenny and Minnie were the guests of honor as the Gil Gray Shrine Circus closed its week-long Lincoln run at the Fairgrounds Coliseum Saturday night. By owner Gil Gray's reckoning, the big animals were 16 years old.

"That's the most important birthday in a girl's life," Gray said

So he arranged for a huge cake—of elephant proportions. And he arranged for it to be sliced by three white-hatted chefs from the Lincoln Hotel, and served to the kids in the audience at the Saturday night performance of the circus.

The cake was passed around as far as it would go. Jenny, Tillie and Minnie had a piece—elephants love cake, Gray says—and it was a fine party

Since the Shrine Circus plays Lincoln about this time every year, the elephant girls have celebrated just about all of their birthdays here. But it was never with such fanfare before.

They say elephants never forget, and if that's true, Jenny, Minnie and Tillie must remember some unhappy birthdays in Lincoln.

When they were tiny (as elephants go) and fresh out of a Siamese herd, these three elephants arrived in Lincoln. One had a severe cut from a tiger attack back home. The other had two scratches on her back from a leopard.

Massive penicillin doses administered in Lincoln healed the wounds, Gray says.

One of the elephants had a wart removed from her nose—pardon me, trunk — in Lincoln.

When Gray wants to figure up just how old the elephants are, all he has to do is ask one of his performers, blonde Kandra Craig. She's the same age as the elephants and Saturday was her 16th birthday too.

Born and reared in the circus, Kandra too has had many of her brithday parties in Lincoln But hardly ever one like Mr. Gray threw for her Saturday. There was a huge cake for her, with all the circus performers getting a share.

After all, as Gray says, it's the most important birthday in a girl's life.

Second Protest March Fails Doane Students

BY DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Crete—A second protest march by some 150 students failed to budge Doane College's executive committee Saturday afternoon from its $50 raise in room rates.

The five-man group reaffirmed its stand in a tense 90-minute session with Student Council representatives Len Wettergren and Tom Atherton. Both are from Illinois.

Meanwhile, chants of "We won't pay" and "We'll go to Wesleyan" echoed from the demonstration outside. Coeds, notably absent from the first massing three nights ago, this time joined the orderly cross-campus parade.

"We either had to accept a rent rate as recommended by the federal loan agency or there couldn't have been new housing," explained trustee president Merle Jones of Beatrice. Also present were President Donald Typer, David Osterhout and Ed Pallett of Crete, and Dr. Fred Register of Lincoln.

Only New Dorms

Applying only to the new 64-bed Colonial House and a 128-bed dormitory set for fall completion, the $50 change would mean a $1,900-per year total cost to next year's freshmen. Other classes pay under a much-publicized "guaranteed annual cost" plan that the school is accused of violating.

"We feel this is like a contract," objected Wettergren. "We know the college needs more money, but don't feel it should come out of our pockets."

Also critical of "off-campus housing that is largely subpar," the spokesmen were told by Typer that "nine accommodations are adequate for every one that is inadequate." Approximately 35 students now reside in leased off-campus apartments and 24 in converted barracks to be torn down this spring.

Bulk in Dorms

The bulk of the 550-member student body is housed in separate men's and women's dormitories, approximately 35 years old. Also utilized for 24 students is 82-year-old Gaylord Hall.

Some of Jones' remarks approached a scolding as he reminded that $150,000 in annual contributions is required to help fund the college. All dormitory fees go back into the operation, he continued, and additional funds have been required as well.

"The student body doesn't run the college," he said. "Since when has it come about that you fellows have a veto power?"

James Specht Is Winner of Keim Award

James E. Specht, University of Nebraska junior from Lyman, was announced as winner of the $500 F. D. Keim memorial scholarship for the 1866-67 school year.

Also at the Agronomy Club banquet:

Jerome Criswell of Chappell was named outstanding senior in agronomy.

William J. Amen, sophomore from Lincoln, was announced as winner of the club's speech contest.

Criswell, along with Joe Beals of Cambridge and Robert Schaffert of Aurora, were named the club's essay winners.

Norman Helzer of Aurora received the club's first advisors award for being tabbed by club advisors as the member contributing most to the student organization during the year.

Myron Rogers of Lyons, Lloyd Reeder of Shelton and Vic Lechtenberg of Butte received trophies as division winners in the club's annual crops and soils identificaiton contest.

Boy, 14, Is Found Delinque

A 14-year-old boy was found delinquent and placed on probation this week by the Lancaster Juvenile Court on a shoplifting charge.

According to juvenile probation officials, this was the first time the boy had been in trouble. They said he did not have any use for the article he had stolen. Other cases:

Boy, 16, unlawful operation of a motor vehicle, found delinquent, placed on probation.

Chest Meeting

Future Study Topic

Merrill Krughoff of New York City will be here Monday noon to discuss a future study of local agency services with representatives of the Community Chest and Council at the Lincoln Center.

The visitor is director of the Institute of Community Studies, a service set up by the national United Fund organization to assist communities facing the same question Lincoln now asks itself:

What services are private and public agencies providing, are there duplications, what about recreation vs family and children's services, and should priorities be set on program values?

Evaluation of services given, not the agencies, would be the major yardstick in such a study.

If a go-ahead is determined, the work would be done by a local citizens committee and staff Chest-Council members. Krughoff would be a resource person for the job, seen today as an 18-month one.

STATEHOUSE LETTER

Rain. Snow. Rotten weather, generally, especially for May.

Add 'em up and they spell the major reason for last Tuesday's astonishingly heavy primary election turnout, says Deputy Secretary of State Al Beermann.

Where 240,000 voters had been anticipated by Beermann's boss, Frank Marsh, the final tally may exceed 300,000.

Beermann says checks with county officials suggest bad weather chased farmers and ranchers away from field work, into polling places. To that was added the impetus of special issues in Omaha, Lincoln and the central Nebraska region voting on an area vocational-technical school.

Modern Trend

The Nebraska Supreme Court was following a modern trend when it recently reversed a long-standing judicial rule about the immunity of non-profit hospitals from lawsuits brought by patients.

California's Supreme Court did exactly the same thing in 1961. But it took a still more historic step at the time. The Pacific Coast justices concluded the rule of general governmental immunity was "mistaken" and "unjust."

In intervening years, other state supreme courts have accepted the persuasiveness of California's decision. The basic issue now, some state government students think, is not retention of governmental immunity for all time, but whether legislatures will act before judicial patience wears impossibly thin.

In One Paragraph

An engaging story Gov. Frank Morrison tells concerns the foggy night he couldn't fly back to Lincoln from McCook and also missed the Zephyr by five minutes. So the chief executive rocked home in a caboose of a freight train.

Twenty-four Nebraska counties do not permit women on district court juries, mainly because the courthouses have no separate toilet facilities for women.

On the morning after the glorious night before, Mrs. Norbert Tiemann, wife of the Republican gubernatorial nominee, confessed she had a terrible time getting the kids off to school.

A prize possession on the wall of Supreme Court Clerk George Turner's office is a hand-lettered English will, dated Sept. 10, 1692.

About the only man in the Statehouse who still rolls his own is Arnold Tuning in the state tax commissioner's office. It would help the tale to report Tuning administers the state's cigaret tax. But he doesn't.

Ak-Sar-Ben last year reported a net income of $56,994 after subtracting expenses of $5,906,969 from income of $5,963,963. Included in expenses was a $531,281 lay-away for depreciation.

Mrs. Kara Lee Eikleberry and Training School Supt. William Ettinger discuss the need for foster group homes to relieve overcrowded Kearney.

Group Foster Homes TalkedforDelinquents

By MARJ MARLETTE

What some delinquent youngsters need may be a state-provided aunt and uncle—and a new home.

Such homes are being proposed in a plan now being prepared for consideration by the 1967 Legislature.

Called "group foster homes," the new units would consist of couples licensed to care for from four to six—or possibly eight—youngsters in their own homes.

The couples would provide supervision and a warm family environment for youngsters released from the training schools who have no suitable homes to return to.

The teen-agers would go to school and church, possibly hold part time jobs, and participate in community activities like any other youngsters.

Increase In Number

"Predictions are that in 1970 there will be twice as many in juvenile institutions as there were in 1962. This will mean that we will have to enlarge our institutions by that time—or expand toward more foster placements.

"Even the best institutions are not cure-alls and cannot possibly take the entire place of a home," declared the superintendent, who very much favors the foster home plan.

While there are some work homes available for older boys released from the school, Ettinger said there were many kids in the 11 to 15 year bracket "who are too young to support themselves or get jobs in working homes. They need to continue their schooling, and should live in a home where they could have part-time jobs and the common sense guidance of an interested family."

He estimates there are 80 boys at the training school right now who could use foster home placements.

The Nebraska Group Home study committee, headed by Mrs. Kara Lee Eikleberry of Lincoln, is drawing up a plan for the foster home program and preparing legislation for its enactment.

After a trip to Wisconsin and Michigan—states which already care for many delinquent children in foster homes or faifway houses—the committee decided that Nebraska's present needs would best be met by hiring carefully chosen couples to care for teanagers in their own homes.

This is also the least expensive method.

Cost Less

Estimated cost of caring for a child in a foster home would be from 25 to 50% less than the cost in the training schools. Professionally staffed halfway houses would proobably be more.

Whether to include homes for children direct from the juvenile courts—without sentence to a correctional institution—has not been decided.

It is expected, however, that some of the first foster homes established will be in rural areas, as well as in Lincoln and Omaha.

Members of the committee includes representatives from the State Departments of Welfare and Institutions, Lincoln and Omaha laymen, Douglas County Juvenile Judge Seward Hart, and two state senators—Edward Danner and Harold Moylan, both of Omaha.

Bosses, Labor Give Joint View

Back Private Radio Network

Telephone company management and labor joined hands before the Legislature's interim budget study committee Saturday in advocating Nebraska draw on the capabilities of the private telephone industry to provide any coordinated statewide communications network needed to serve state agencies.

A Nebraska state communications study committee currently is studying the needs and possibilities.

The budget committee hearing served to provide a progress report and, in the words of committee chairman Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, "clear the atmosphere" of some misunderstandings that have developed.

State Adjutant General Lyle Welch told the committee that the question of whether the system should be publicly or privately owned has not been answered but that a recommendation one way or the other should be available by September.

The question of what agency or department might manage such a system also remains under study, he indicated.

Harlan Will Ask Safety Measures

Amber Lights On Equipment

Lancaster County Board Chairman Ralph Harlan said he will recommend to the county engineer Tuesday at the board meeting that flashing amber lights be installed on county road equipment as a safety measure.

Harlan said flashing lights, and also possibly triangular reflectors, should be installed to warn people that slow-moving graders and bulldozers are at work.

The need for some type of warning device is apparent after the Wednesday morning accident just east of Holland when a car came over a hill and struck a motor grader, Harlan said.

In the accident near Holland, the grader was working up a hill on the south side of the road heading toward eastbound traffic, which is legal for road equipments.

An eastbound car came up the other side of the hill, clipped the grader, swerved across the road and struck another car head-on.

Falter self-portrait . . . water tower is nearly a trademark.

Homecoming Event

Home Town Boy Made Falls City Good to U.S.

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Falls City—Even one John Falter can't paint all of a homecoming into one picture.

If he could, the composite might well jacket a best seller or appear as a cover of the Saturday Evening Post—he's done approximately 100 of the latter. But undoubtedly his visit will be memorialized in artistic tidbits of the future, just as his home town has been since '28.

It was that year that young Falter packed his brushes and an FCHS diploma into a bag also bulging with boyhood memories. He made the big time soon after art school—and started sneaking into his scenes Falls City people and standpipes and such.

"After you have lived in parts of the United States as I have, you appreciate the kind of town you have here," related the illustrator at an honorary luncheon. "It's great to look around and see things reminding you of a happy childhood."

If a hunk of old water tower can be nostalgic, certainly it was as presented John by Utilities Supt. Russell Pollard. The Pennsylvania transplant (Landsdale) not only admitted some kid sketching atop the tower, but even several nights of sleeping on its catwalk.

Trademark

"Our old standpipe appears in so many of his works it is almost a trademark," reflected Mrs. Tom Davies, library board chuirman who arranged a homecoming exhibit attracting several hundred persons.

"Through the years we've enjoyed picking out familiar faces from John's published works. Once there was lumberman Fred Graham, for instance, and the artist's Uncle John has been very plainly portrayed."

"Uncle John" and the 50th anniversary of his clothing store were among the big reasons for the painter's return, another being an exhibit of works at nearby Atchison, Kan. Still a third John Falter (the uncle's son and partner) joined in reminiscing of the store's 1916 start by the illustrator's late father, George.

"The family moved to Atchinson when John P. graduated, but he had taken his schooling here from kindergarten through high school," recalled the clothier. "As an anniversary prize we're giving his original painting for the cover of a Huckleberry Finn book."

One personal treasure that John W. would never give up is Falls City's highly-detailed main street as depicted as a "Post" Christmas cover in 1946. Proudly displayed in the Falter show window, it has even more appeal when spiced with this explanation:

"For years John had promised to give me that original. When he finally got around to shipping it, I guess he was in a hurry. He paid $35 to send it air express."

$28,000 Exhibit

Stopping for only a day, the modest visitor spent less time before the public than in showing seven-year-old daughter Suzie his old haunts. His humor charmed several school groups, however, as he elaborated on his 20-piece, $28,000 exhibit.

Born in Plattsmouth 56 years ago, Falter left as a preschooler and understandably thinks of Falls City as "home." His art training was at the Kansas City Art Institute and New York Art Students League.

The visit brought the promise of a special painting for the local Paul Weaver home, incidentally, if plans materialize for its preservation as a tourist attraction. The old mansion is also part of that 1928 bag of memories.

Bid to Close Memorial Drive Will Be Heard

The Lincoln Park and Recreation Advisory Board will meet Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. at City Hall.

One of the key items of business is a request by a neighborhood citizens group asking to close Memorial Drive between South St. and 33rd in Antelope Park.

The petition asking the closing says one of the main reasons is for safety.

The board also has scheduled an appearance by Tom Carroll, representing the Community Playhouse Foundation, regarding a possible future project not yet announced.

In other business the board has a policy recommendation on golf permit refund requests and the progress reports of the recreation and park departments.

Education Board

Meeting Tuesday

The Board of Education will meet Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. in the Board Room, Public Schools Administration Building, with an agenda which includes a proposed 1966-67 basic salary schedule for certified personnel and an election of board officers.

Other items for consideration are:

—Proposed salary schedules for maintenance personnel and for operational personnel for 1966-67 fiscal year.

—Letter from the Advisory Committee to the Lincoln Public Schools.

—Proposed federal projects under Titles I and III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and Title II A and B of the Economic Opportunity Act (Operation Head Start and Adult Basic Education).

—Summer music program.

Quotas Reached

Seven counties have reached or exceeded ticket sale quotas for the May 19 Republican Testimonial Dinner in Lincoln, according to Jack Schuetz, state coordinator and dinner chairman.

Counties which have met their ticket sale quotas are Douglas, Colfax, Dakota, Keith, Dawson, Grant and Perkins.

Michigan Gov. George Romney is the featured speaker.

TECHNICIANS

If you want to keep learning—

consider becoming an IBM Customer Engineer

Here's a job where you're learning every day. You must, to keep pace with the fast-growing industry of information handling and control. Better still, you earn an excellent salary while you learn.

You would start in a training program. You would be taught how to install and service IBM data processing equipment. Later you would be assigned your own territory to handle. But that's only the BEGINNING of your education!

Throughout your career as a Customer Engineer, you would attend meetings and classes to keep you informed of latest technological advances. This education prepares you for greater professional responsibility, too. Customer Engineers average more than a month each year in IBM educational programs.

What do you need to qualify? A mechanical aptitude plus a good knowledge of basic electronics. A minimum of two years of technical school (or equivalent experience). And an ability to get along well with people.

If you're interested in a job with continuing built-in educational and advancement opportunities, write or call for an appointment.

Football Scrimmage

Husker Whites Top Reds, 28-10

By HAL BROWN

A tall Texan led the Whites to a 28-10 victory over the Reds in Nebraska's intrasquad football game Saturday afternoon at Seacrest Field and there were strong indications that the Husker pass defense that leaked badly against Alabama in the Orange Bowl was vastly improved.

Al Fierro, a 6-2 sophomore from Big Springs, Tex., directed a 100-yard touchdown march that put the Whites out front 13-16 late in the third quarter and the Whites went on to win their second of five intrasquad games since coach Bob Devaney came to Nebraska.

Statistics

	Whites	Reds
First downs	13	7
Yards rushing	100	32
Yards passing	135	65
Total yards	235	97
Passes	11-30	7-33
Passes intercepted by	2	2
Punts	7-24.0	7-29.1
Yards penalized	120	25
Fumbles lost	3	1

"Fierro was the outstanding quarterback today," Devaney remarked as the game ended. "He did a good job all around. He used good judgment, ran the team well, mixed his plays up well and did a good job of throwing the ball."

Fierro was largely responsible for the first three White tallies with his passing and play selection.

Three plays later, he sent Mick Ziegler over for the TD with 8:13 left in the first quarter. Larry Wachholtz' conversion kick gave the Whites a 7-0 lead.

After the Reds came back for a 10-7 halftime lead on an 11-yard touchdown run by Harry Wilson with 14:13 left in the second quarter and a 34-yard field goal by Ron Poggemeyer with 9:53 to play in the quarter, Fierro again answered the challenge.

With the Reds threatening to score again, defensive back Marv Mueller intercepted a Wayne Weber pass in the end zone and got out to the one-foot line.

Fierro kept the Reds' defense off balance with a varied running and passing attack. The biggest hunk of yardage was gobbled up on a 33-yard scamper by Ben Gregory that moved the ball from the White 11 to the 44.

The sophomore quarterback hit Tom Penney for 11 yards, passed to Dick Davis for 10 and Gregory gained another 11 on the ground.

Huskers Win Big Eight Track Title

Greene Wins Schulte Award; Crook Runs :45.9 Quarter

By CURT MOSHER

Columbia, Mo.—Nebraska found a higher peak than Pike ever did here Saturday as the inspired Cornhuskers of coach Frank Sevigne ended 15 years of frustration to win the 38th annual Big Eight Conference track and field championships.

With Dave Crook running the fastest quarter mile in Big Eight history in 45.9 and sprinter Charlie Greene and hurdler Dave Kudron scoring double victories, Nebraska ended a three-year stronghold on the outdoor title held by Kansas.

The Rampaging Huskers had six athletes reaching a seasonal high and amassed 113 points to 103 for Oklahoma and its talented band of sprinters.

Behind this duo came Oklahoma State with 80, Kansas 77, 48 each for Missouri and Colorado, 37 for Kansas State and 21 for Iowa State.

Greene was the repeat winner of the Henry Schulte award as he erased one Big Eight record and tied another to lead the assault on the record books.

In all, seven records fell, plus the tie which Greene scored in the 220-yard dash in 20.8. Greene's other record came in his specialty. Running in a sparking field, Greene cruised to a 9.3, to douse the 36-year-old standard erected by Iowa State's Hubert Meier in 1930 on the Nebraska track.

Aside from Crook's incredible 45.9, the outstanding time of the day was the 880 record set by Oklahoma State's John Perry. His 1.47.7 was the fastest half mile in the world this year and he went across the finish line neck and neck with teammate Jim Metcalf and only a stride up on Nebraska's Peter Scott, who was clocked in 1:48.1.

The other records established here Saturday in sunny 60-degree weather were the high jump at 6-11 by Oklahoma's Ron Tull; the three-mile in 14:03.9 by Chris McCubbins of Oklahoma State the mile relay in 3:08.8 by Oklahoma's Tom Melton, Jim Shields, Jim Hardwick and Bill Calhoun; and in the mile where Kansas State's Conrad Nightingale ran 4:00.9.

The last race eliminated the record of 4:04.9 set by Nebraska's Ray Stevens at Kansas in 1963.

There could hardly be one place selected where Nebraska won this meet, but it would be difficult to overlook Kudron's double in the 120-yard highs and 330-yard intermediates.

This was the one place where Nebraska had faltered in the preliminaries as Ray Harvey, who had won both indoor hurdle events, came up injured and couldn't run up to form.

But Kudron took both and in doing so came up with his best times of the season in both events. The Columbus sophomore won the 120s in 14.2 and the 330s in 36.9. Lonnie Sherlock scored a sixth in the 120 highs.

Scott's half was his best of year, so were both of Greene's efforts, and Dennis Walker's sixth place quarter effort of 47.6.

And of course, Kent Tarbutton, who did his work Friday in the javelin, reached his all-time peak to nail down second place with a heave of 209-7½.

Four Nebraska school records also went under with marks falling in the 100, 440, 880 and 330 intermediates.

It was strictly a Nebraska effort as Oklahoma did about all it could.

Koufax Wins Fifth

Mets' Singles Curtail San Francisco Streak

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seventeen singles signaled the end of San Francisco's 12-game winning streak Saturday as the New York Mets crushed the Giants, 11-4

The Mets collected 17 hits, but there wasn't an extra-base blow among them. Still they were enough to halt the red-hot Giants and also Jack Fisher's 12-game losing streak. Fisher needed relief help in the eighth inning but nevertheless gained his first victory since last August.

Cleon Jones rapped three hits and drove in three runs while John Stephenson and Ron Hunt added three singles each for the Mets.

The surprising Houston Astros continued their hot pace, gaining their 13th victory in the last 16 games with a 6-5 decision over Philadelphia in 11 innings.

Joe Morgan, who earlier hit a two-run double, drove in two 11th-inning runs with a triple and scored on Sonny Jackson's single Sandy Koufax scattered seven hits for his fifth victory as Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh, 4-1. Maury Wills triggered the triumph, singling in the sixth inning, stealing two bases and scoring the first of three runs in the inning on Willie Davis double.

A double by Don Pavletich drove in Pete Rose in the 14th inning and gave Cincinnati a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs. The Reds were held scoreless by Dick Ellsworth until Tony Perez singled across a run in the ninth.

Cleveland nipped Baltimore, 2-1, extending the Orioles' losing string to four games, as Pedro Gonzalez doubled, tripled and scored twice to back Sonny Siebert's seven-hit pitching.

Gene Freese drove in four runs with a homer, double and single as the Chicago White Sox walloped Detroit 13-3 behind Gary Peters' six-hitter. Peters also singled in two runs.

Washington withstood Minnesota's four-run rally in the seventh inning and edged the Twins, 5-4. Paul Casanova rapped three hits for the Senators, including a sixth-inning homer that was the decisive run.

In night games Boston was at California, New York at Kansas City and Atlanta at St. Louis.

In the only NL night game, Denny Lemaster pitched a four-hitter and singled in a run in Atlanta's 3-0 victory over St. Louis. Eddie Mathews hit a solo homer for the Braves.

The Kansas City Athletics defeated the New York Yankees 4-2 as Dick Green, who had four hits, and Ken Harrelson hammered homers.

Ed Kirkpatrick's two-run single in the sixth inning brought the California Angels a 6-4 victory over Boston. Bob Rodgers, Bobby Knoop and Rick Reichardt hit homers for the Angels, George Scott for the Red Sox.

Ford's Arm Gets Check

Kansas City (AP) — Whitey Ford, dean of the New York Yankee pitching staff, flew back to New York Saturday for an examination of his ailing left elbow.

Ford started Friday night's game against Kansas City but had to leave after two innings. The veteran left-hander, who has not won a game this season, said the elbow first started bothering him a week ago in California.

Ralph Houk, completing his first week as manager, said the condition appeared to be tendonitis — an inflammation of the tissues of the elbow.

Ford will be examined either Sunday or Monday by Dr. Sidney Gaynor, the team physician. Houk said he expected Ford to rejoin the club in Detroit Tuesday provided Dr. Gaynor's examination does not reveal something serious.

"I want to get to .500 by the All Star game," said Houk whose team won four of its first five games after he took over from Johnny Keane last Saturday.

Driver Rodee Dies; Andretti Sets Mark

Indianapolis, Ind. (AP)—Young Mario Andretti set a new speed standard for the 57-year-old Indianapolis Motor Speedway Saturday and veteran Chuck Rodee was killed in one of four wrecks that blemished the fastest qualification session for the Memorial Day 500-mile race.

Andretti, native of Tieste, Italy, who won the U.S. Auto Club's national championship last year, captured the No. 1 starting position for the 500 at an unchallenged speed of 165.899 miles an hour for the 10-mile run and 166.328 for one lap around the 2½-mile asphalt track.

A. J. Foyt of Houston, twice winner of the race, held the year-old records of 161.233 and 161.958. He was one of the four rivers who slid into the concrete retaining wall Saturday. He was hot hurt.

Rodee, 38, whose home is only a short distance from the old track, became the 57th fatality there. His car swerved tail first against the wall coming out of the main stretch in view of a large part of a crowd of about 175,000. No official attendance figures were given, but police estimates ranged up 200,000.

Carl Williams of Kansas City, rated the hottest rookie at the track this year, also escaped injury in a crash, and Art Malone, Tampa, Fla., suffered only minor burns when his car hit the wall and caught fire.

Eighteen drivers qualified, leaving 15 starting spots open for the qualifying sessions Sunday and the following weekend. They averaged 160.743 m.p.h. for the tests, compared with 156.032 for the 1965 field.

Rodee Andretti Snider Clark

Andretti, who resides in Nazareth, Pa., will share the three-car front row with Jimmy Clark of Scotland, the 1965 Indianapolis winner and world road racing champion, and George Snider, Fresno, Calif., who will be making his second 500 start.

As a rookie last year, Andretti finished third in the 500.

Clark, one of the day's last runners, averaged 164.144 in a new Lotus-Ford, sponsored by the Chemical Division of Studebaker Corp., which quit making autos this year.

Snider, who ran before Andretti, briefly held the 10-mile record at 162.521 and the one-lap mark at 163.014. He drove the Lotus-Ford in which Bobby Johns of Miami, Fla., finished seventh in last year's 500.

Parnelli Jones, the 1963 Indianapolis winner, salvaged the reputation of the new supercharged Offenhausers by using one for the day's fourth best time, 162.484.

Another driver who bettered Foyt's record was Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., in one of the new Gurney Fords, with a 162.484 mark. Gordon Johncock, Hastings, Mich., just missed breaking the mark in a new Gerhardt-Ford, with 161.059.

Dave Crook Winning 440

I May Be Wrong

By Curt Mosher

Columbia, Mo.—Notes and quotes from the site of the Big Eight track and field, golf and tennis championships, starting with the lost putter.

Colorado basketball coach Sox Walseth hasn't had too good of a year except for the night he knocked Nebraska out of the Big Eight basketball championship.

In fact he noted as much when he said: "I knew it was going to be a bad year when I spent $60 getting my cat well, and he got run over the following week."

Sox's luck continued here Thursday. Without clubs to play in his foursome with Nebraska's Joe Cipriano, Oklahoma State's Sam Aubrey and Iowa State's Glen Anderson, Sox borrowed NU publicity man Don Bryant's clubs.

He lost the putter. "I can't understand it," said Sox. "Don't worry about it," said Bryant, "My lawyers will contact you Monday . . ."

Bryant was taken care of however, when he was awarded a putter at the dinner Thursday night.

Barbs Were Flying

Tex Winter of Kanas State, who played in his pajamas, it was so cold, watched Aubrey off a tee and told the disciple of the deliberate basketball game that golf was a game of offense

Winter was reminded that if he had basketball players who could hook like he does off the tee, the Wildcats would be tough to beat

Tippy Dye, the Husker athletic director, played with Field Scovell of the Cotton Bowl, one of five post-season games represented here at the Big Eight business meetings.

Scovell reports that a new Cotton Bowl is not some kind of a dream, but something which will "soon" become fact, perhaps within three years. Scovell says the thinking is in terms of 81,000 seats with about 60,000 of them covered and with arm-chair type seating.

Lovelies Aren't So Lovely

"Why?" you ask would the Cotton Bowl tear down an excellent facility and start over again.

"It's like the guys who sit by the office window and watch the two lovely girls walk by day after day," Scovelle says. They look pretty nice and you get used to seeing them. Then suddenly some day Liz Taylor walks by. And those two don't look so good anymore.

"That's what happened to us when they built that thing (Astrodome) in Houston. Ours doesn't look so good anymore." He points out there's more to it than that, however. The parking and the roads leading in and out aren't adequate.

Financing could come from three sources—the city, the state and possibly federal funds.

"We're not going to put a dome over it," he says emphatically. "This is a football field. It's not a baseball park. If we get major league ball, we'll build a ball park somewhere ese. We've been in major league football for a long time and we're going to keep it that way."

Tie-up Talk Premature

The Cotton officials note that the earlier talk concerning a Big Eight tie-up with the bowl was premature. It was on the agenda only because these possibilities had never been discussed.

There doesn't seem to be much sentiment among Big Eight people for such a move.

There will be another round of meetings next week for Dye, who is going on to the Big Ten spring sessions and to look at press boxes at Indiana and Ohio State.

The Huskers are serious about building a new one, a must now that Nebraska is in such demand by television and national coverage. It could become a reality as early as the 1967 season.

Cipriano's stay was short. He returned to Lincoln Thursday evening so he could be there to entertain some recruits coming in for a visit.

Husker Cagers To Tour?

Columbia, Mo.—On the track or in the conference room, it made little difference here Saturday as it was a day when the University of Nebraska figured prominently in action taken during the business meeting portions of the Big Eight Conference faculty representatives and athletic directors.

Nebraska was granted permission for its basketball team to make a five-week tour of South America in the summer of 1967. The Cornhuskers need only approval of the NCAA for this request and conference executive secretary Wayne Duke said he understood it was forthcoming.

Nebraska would play 20 games on the tour and be allowed a 10-day practice period prior to leaving.

Along the same lines Nate Branch was granted permission to make a tour of the Orient in the summer of 1966 as part of the "Venture for Victory" program. This is a religious organization and another Big Eight player, Jeff Simons of Kansas State, took part two years ago.

Nebraska was also granted two of the conference meets for next year.

NU will host the gymnastics meet March 17-18 and the Big Eight wrestling championships March 9-10-11, providing there is no conflict with Nebraska high school championship events. Since these dates conflict with the state basketball tournament, it is likely that another site will be selected.

The only negative aspect in regard to Nebraska involved several Big Eight schools and centered around the NCAA's new 1.6 legislation and the Big Eight's own scholastic requirements for athletic grant-in-aids.

Mid-term enrollees who had not by May 14 qualified under the new stipulations must be taken off aid or be declared ineligible. Any mid-term enrollees who had qualified by May 14 may retain that aid and are eligible.

Nebraska has two athletes who thus far have not met the requirements for aid. They are basketball players Earl Page and Mike Jordan. It was explained here that if the boys are taken off aid and at some future date measure up to the scholastic requirements they may regain both eligibility and aid.

The Big Eight will have a new 10-week Saturday afternoon basketball television series this winter, starting in January.

Each team will have at least one home game televised and will appear on the program twice. No team will be on more than three times. The station lineup and schedule will be worked out later by the Big Eight television committee, composed of Oklahoma State's Henry Iba, Kansas State's Bebe Lee and Duke.

Pairings were set for the first round of the Big Eight pre-season basketball tournament scheduled Dec. 27-30 in Kansas City. Nebraska will play the first night in the feature game against Kansas State.

The Big Eight cross country meet was awarded to Missouri on Nov. 5 and the outdoor track championships will be held at Oklahoma May 19-20. The swimming meet goes to Missouri March 2-3-4.

In fiscal action the Big Eight reviewed its bowl policy and raised the ante for participating teams going to the Orange, Cotton, Sugar and Gator bowls. A flat allocation of $75,000, plus $25 per mile one way via the most direct air route, will be granted.

Any team playing in the Bluebonnet, Sun or Liberty bowls will receive a flat allocation of $50,000 plus $25 per mile one-way allowance.

Scott Boosts Huskers Before, During Climb to Championship

Columbia, Mo.—Nebraska half miler Peter Scott got the Cornhuskers off on the right foot with a pep talk on the bus out to Missouri's Memorial Stadium.

"You, may think I'm a jerk," he told his teammates. "But I'm going out and try to win."

An exaggeration perhaps, but not here on this day in the minds of coach Frank Sevigne's track squad.

Winning a championship was ample reason for getting carried away. And that's what happened to Sevigne and NU sports publicity man Don Bryant, the pair being toted off and dumped in the shower.

"It's the happiest day of my life," said Sevigne. "I've never had a group of athletes all rise to the occasion like this at one time."

And that was the way the Big Eight outdoor championship was won here and Scott was so typical of the Huskers. Both his talk on the bus and his performance in the half mile where he ran third only a step back of John Perry's 1:47.7.

Who can say Scott's talk didn't mean something to the team which got seasonal peaks from six athletes.

"He showed me something," said Tom Millsap who ran a leg on the 440 relay team.

"Scott kind of said it for all of us," said Dave Crook, whose 45.9 quarter was the fastest ever by a Big Eight athlete. "He just said we've gone a long time at Nebraska with a good team without getting any recognition. It was time we did something about it."

Scott's efforts of 1:48.1 for third in the half was 4.6 seconds faster than he had ever run. And when they announced over the public address that Perry's time was the fastest in the world this year, Scott said:

"And it could have been me. I could have won that race."

Scott was running strong at the finish and tried to get in between Perry and teammate Jim Metcalf and failed. Instead Perry took a tumble and with it came severe burns and some spike wounds.

Some of the fans were upset with Scott.

"People just don't understand," he said. "People said I was pushing. I was just leaning at the tape to get through."

Metcalf, who ran second to Perry, agreed. "The thing is," said Metcalf, "when your running that fast you're blind."

"That's right, said Scott. You don't see men. You just see blurs. You're in limbo."

Perry was not too tickled about the whole thing." "He just knocked me down and stepped on me," Perry said.

Cowboy Tom Von Ruden congratulated Crook:

"I can't figure how you set such a fast pace so easily. You looked just great."

"I finally got one off," the jubilant Crook said. "I thought some day I might. I try not to worry about what I'm going to do. I just waited and figured someday it would come. You don't plan these things, they just happen."

Crook was super strong and made his move against the brilliant field early. "The last 150 yards I felt real strong," he said.

Charlie Greene, who became only the third athlete in history to cart off the bulky Henry Schulte award for the outstanding performance of the meet a second time, was reminded it was difficult to carry home.

"That's the kind of luggage I like," he said. Charlie's 9.3 time in the 100 surprised him. "I don't think the race was that quick in the process," he said. "I was more worried about (Lynn) Headley getting second. I didn't want (OU's Phil) Aldridge in between us.

"I wasn't pressing it. I didn't know how strong my leg was. If I'd have pressed it I could have gon on down to 9 . . . you name it.

"I haven't been running much lately," he said of his leg injury which took him out of the duel meet with Missouri here last weekend"

Kansas had won the last three meets and 12 of the last 14. Oklahoma won it back to back in 1961-62. NU had won it last in 1950 and Missouri in 1951.

But Saturday it was all Nebraska.

Al Fierro (11) passes to Tom Penney (first panel); Penney catches the pass but can't avoid collision with Red defenders Barry Alvarez (33) and Adrian Fiala (47).

Devaney Praises QB Work Of Fierro in NU Spring Game

The touchdown was scored from four yards away by Dennis Galbraith with 2:07 left in the third quarter and Wachholtz' extra point kick attempt was blocked by Ron Poggemeyer, leaving the Whites with a 13-10 edge.

Another short punt into the wind gave the Whites the ball at the Red 31 early in the fourth quarter and after three passes fell from receivers' hands, Fierro found Sherwin Jarmon at the five-yard line.

Poggemeyer was taken off the field with an injured arm and Galbraith kicked the extra point for a 20-10 White lead with 10:18 left in the game.

Sophomore Frank Patrick passed to Dennis Morrison for the final score from five yards out with 50 seconds left and Galbraith passed to Nestor Yannon for the two-point conversion.

One of the most impressive statistics of the contest was the 26 incomplete passes against seven completions thrown by Red quarterbacks Wayne Weber and Bob Churchich.

While expressing some disappointment in his top offensive unit that wore Red jerseys, Devaney also opined that part of the cause might have been the White defense, the noted Black Shirts, who took a beating from Alabama's Steve Sloan's passing arm in the Orange Bowl Game.

"The Red offense made a lot of mistakes," Devaney noted after watching the game from a press box seat. "Their timing appeared to be a little bit off and they weren't executing very well."

However, this is where the defense might have come in.

"But you have to give a lot of credit to the White defense," the Husker coach quickly pointed out. "The pass defense was real good and they broke up a lot of good passes that would have been completed except for some outstanding defensive efforts."

Devaney cited Larry Wachholtz, Al Kuehl, Lynn Senkbeil and Marv Mueller for their efforts in the defensive secondary.

Junior Ben Gregory, the game's leading rusher with 44 yards in six carries, came in for praise from the Husker head coach.

"Except for Fierro, Gregory was probably as outstanding as anyone in the game," he observed. Gregory saw duty as an offensive halfback and fullback and as a defensive halfback.

Fierro hit nine of 19 passes for 121 yards and he had several others that were dropped after hitting receivers hands.

This prompted Devaney to frown a bit.

"Our ends, with the exception of Dennis Richnafsky who made some good catches, didn't look good today," Devaney said. "They haven't caught the ball very well all spring.

"We still have a lot of problems, but this is probably one of our biggest problems—finding someone to catch the ball."

Top Iowa State Defense Wins

Ames, Iowa (AP) — The Red team, anchored by the No. 1 defensive and No. 2 offensive platoons, ended spring football practice at Iowa State Saturday with a 23-14 victory over the Whites in the second intra-squad game.

Last week the Reds lost, 14-6.

No. 1 quarterback, Tim Van Galder gained 236 yards passing for the Whites whose big weakness was defense. Defensive halfback Larry Carrell ran back the opening kickoff 89 yards for the Reds' first touchdown. They got another on an 80-yard drive in the first period and linebacker Ron Halda kicked three field goals

Sport Signals

By Hal Brown
Sunday Sports Columnist

Nearly every golfer who has played the Lochland Country Club course with its 260-yard, par-3 hole, and its vast body of water which must be crossed not once, but twice on No. 18, comes away shaking his head at its toughness.

The standard reply when you ask a golfer just coming off the course about what club he used on the long par-3 is "for which shot?"

But as if it weren't tough enough already, it'll be even tougher when golfers tee off there in July for the Nebraska State Amateur Championship.

Safety Measures

However, two of the steps that are being taken that will toughen the course are being done as a safety measure, Lochland pro Jack Weingart points out.

The state's amateur golfers likely would rather pay a higher insurance premium on their life and take their chances with being hit by a golfball.

The changes for safety's sake are making balls hit to the left off the No. 1 tee in the 14th fairway and to the left off the No 4 tee into the ninth fairway out of bounds.

"Someone could get hurt if golfers started hitting their balls into those other two fairways," Weingart points out.

It's just a coincidence that by making those two fairways out of bounds golfers will not be able to cut corners on the dog legs of Nos. 1 and 4, both 505-yard, par-5s.

Since sand can hardly be a safety measure on a golf course, Weingart admits that a couple of holes could play a bit tougher than they are at present.

Traps For Television

Traps are being built around the greens on the first and 18th holes and will be completed by state tournament time

"We are going to televise the finishing holes on the last round and there isn't anything exciting about watching a golfer chip from grass to a green," Weingart notes.

"But there is a little excitement in watching a golfer blast from a sand trap," the Lochland pro continues.

Sand on the 18th hole is appropriate and it would be even more so if they ran it from the green to the edge of the huge lake. Many a golfer will come to the 18th green preferring to lie on a beach rather than putt for a triple or quadruple bogey.

The campaign to transplant trees on the course has been completed and golfers will find 48 trees that have been brought in and placed at strategic spots on the 6,945-yard layout.

Not All Sand, Trees, Water

But it won't be all sand, trees and water for those competing in the state tournament.

The misery won't get under way in full force until Thursday, July 21 and before that Lochland has lined up activities that should sooth the golfers' problems.

Lochland has scheduled a pro-am for Monday, July 18 with July 19 set for qualifying with the banquet that night. A stag party is slated for Wednesday, July 20 with the tournament proper getting under way the next morning.

Seventy-five golfers will qualify for the tournament with the top 50 in the championship flight and the remainder in the Lochland Country Club flight. Eighteen holes will be played both Thursday and Friday with the final 36 on Saturday.

Worcester, Mass. (AP)—Harvard's unbeaten heavyweight crew led a Crimson sweep with its 23rd straight victory in collegiate competition Saturday in the Eastern Spring Rowing Championships.

The Harvard heavies beat Brown by one length in the blue ribbon event of the 21st annual regatta watched by a crowd of 20,000 over the 2,000-meter course—about 1¼ mile—on Lake Quinsigamond.

Prep Parade

By Don Forsythe
Staff Sports Writer

Notes and quotes collected from here and there while wondering just what connection printers ink has with success in athletics.

Some of the state's top prep athletes come from newspaper families. The Southern Nebraska Conference has a pair of good ones in Pawnee City's Sam Martin and Hebron's Tracy Long.

Martin, son of Max Martin of the Pawnee Republican, was an all-state basketball selection and captured medalist honors in the state sand greens golf tourney.

Long, last year's state Class C 880 champion, is the son of Tom Long of the Hebron Journal-Register. Before long, we'll be hearing more from another Long, freshman Ben.

Others coming from newspaper-connected families include Gregg Wilhelms of Stromsburg and Bill and Bob Madden of Scottsbluff.

Sprinters in Spotlight

Roland Carter, coach of Aurora's defending Class B track champions, has a couple of reasons to be smiling these days, even though he looks for Hebron to unseat his Huskies as title winners in this week's state meet at Kearney.

Of immediate value is the return of sprinter John Henthorne, who won the Class B 220 a year ago. He was sidelined several weeks with a leg injury, but qualified for the state meet in both the 100 and 220 Friday and helped the Huskies win the district 880 relay.

Of future importance is the fall arrival of Jim Lehn of Gibbon, a freshman who has qualified for the state Class C 100-yard dash. Lehn's father has signed as a music instructor at Aurora next year.

Rival Central Ten Conference coaches claim that Aurora already has one of the top freshman crops in the conference and look for the Huskies to be tough in the next few years . . .

It might not show up in the state meet, but another Central Ten member, Seward, has made rapid strides in track this year. Coach Charley Thorell's club lacks top-line talent, but has scored well in all of its encounters. With most of the leaders on the squad underclassmen look for the Bluejays to continue their climb in 1967 . . .

Distance Prospect

Lincoln Southeast track coach Roy Churchill will probably be on the welcome wagon committee this summer.

Word from the east indicates that Roy Baldwin, son of Prof. and Mrs. Joseph Baldwin, is the Mercer County, N.J., junior high mile champion. A member of the faculty at the University of Nebraska, Prof. Baldwin is on a leave of absence this year and will return to Lincoln this fall . . .

John Curtis, Brady High School and Kearney State grad, will coach football at Bertrand next season. John, who shared the Class D high hurdles record with Dennis Thorell of Loomis until last spring, was on the staff at Valentine this year . . .

South Sioux City High School has offered its football coaching job to ex-Cornhusker Larry Kramer, who has been helping on the University of Nebraska staff this spring.

Jack Weyers, who won the state Class C cross country and mile titles last year as a sophomore, qualifies as one of the hard luck athletes of the current school year. He came down with the flu the week of the cross country finals last fall and a chest cold handicapped him as he failed to qualify for the state meet in the mile this spring.

Nicklaus, Lema Take Golf Lead

New Orleans (AP)—Jack Nicklaus and Tony Lema muscled back into the lead after 54 holes of the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament Saturday, but Gardner Dickinson moved into contention with a blistering sub-par 66.

Bob Goalby, the second round leader, slipped on the front nine but rallied after the turn to remain in the race for the $20,000 first prize money.

Nicklaus shot a two-under par 70 over the 7,020-yard Lakewood Country Club course, while Lema, who has been in a slump for six months, carded a 69. Goalby had a 71.

Nicklaus and Lema both had 54-hole totals of 208.

Second Time as Host

Kearney Set for Track Finals

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Kearney rolls out the welcome mat for the state high school track championships this weekend, its second year as host of the giant meet.

The Foster Field layout served as the plant for the 1964 state meet, first ever held outside of Lincoln. The state championships moved back to Lincoln last year, but additional construction at Memorial Stadium prompted the move back west.

Omaha Central, Aurora, Bayard and Amherst are the defending champions in Classes A-D, respectively. Each may find the route to repeat titles difficult.

Swiftly improving Omaha Tech threatens the Central reign in Class A. The Central bid hinges on the return of Joe Orduna to his early-season effectiveness.

Aurora, lacking field event punch, appears to be outclassed in Class B.

Bayard, always a threat, retains hope for a return to the Class C throne in what shapes up as a multi-team race. Grant, winner of two of the last three Class C crowns, has another strong lineup and seeks to return to the top.

Amherst, which won the Class D crown on the efforts of John Eckhout last year, will not be a factor in the small schools race this time, but a pair of schools from the same Fort Kearney Conference which has produced a state champion in the last two years are solid contenders.

They are Overton and Wilcox, who made strong showings in the Kearney Invitational.

Both the state meet hosts and competitors are hopeful for a break in the weather.

District competition was plagued by cold, wet weather, as was much of the regular season.

Many of the standouts in the 1966 field were state meet entries a year ago, but didn't get a chance for possible record-breaking attempts because of the downpour which ruined the Saturday finals in Lincoln.

Heading the list of returnees is two-time state pole vault champion Randy Reeves of Omaha Benson, Nebraska's first and only 14-foot high school vaulter.

The only other state record holder included in the 1966 crop is Omaha Central's Orduna, whose :14.2 effort in the preliminaries last year stands as the state record in the high hurdles.

The Friday portion of the meet will be devoted primarily to preliminary events in the dashes and hurdles.

The only track finals on opening day will be the 880-yard run. Eight field event finals are also scheduled Friday.

Finals Tuesday

Pius X, Southeast Get District Wins

Pius X and Southeast will battle for the Lincoln ticket to the state Class A baseball tournament at Sherman Field Tuesday.

Pius X seeking its first trip to the state meet, stopped defending champion Lincoln High, 2-1, while Southeast eliminated Northeast, 8-5, in semifinal round action at Muny Field Saturday.

The championship battle is set for 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

John McEniry, the starter and winner for Pius X as the Thunderbolts whipped the Links for the first time in three starts this year, delivered the big blow for coach Tom Carey's club in the bottom of the sixth inning.

His two-out single to center field, the only hit allowed by loser Mike Delaney, brought Dana Stephenson in from second base for the tie-breaking run.

It was the second run scored by Stephenson, who had reached second base when left fielder Chip Maly couldn't handle his long fly ball. Stephenson scored from third base in the fourth inning as the Links tried to make a play on Mike Bohaty as he broke for second base.

The Links scored their only run in the first inning as both McEniry and his mates got off to a somewhat shaky start.

Butch Bowler and Jack Galusha reached base on errors after one was out, then McEniry hit Delaney and Mike Voss to force in Bowler.

The loss dropped the Lincoln High record to 6-3, while Pius X advances to Tuesday's title game with a 7-4 mark.

In the second game the hitters took command, Southeast salting it away early as it erupted for three runs in the first, added two more in the second and third frames and another tally in the fourth inning.

Dick Hawley led the Knights with three hits in four trips. Winner Leland Sasse aided his cause with a two-run homer in the first innings.

Operation Outdoors

by Chuck Roberts

If you ever drive by the South Lake at Hickman on a nice Spring day when the wind's blowing 30 mph and the thermometer's standing at about 40, don't laugh at the two parka-clad fishermen you see standing in waist-deep water—the two of them have personally decreased the bass population of the lake by about 150 so far this year.

The two all-weather fishermen, Dan Wright of Lincoln and University of Nebraska linebacker John Strohmyer, are waging a personal war against the black bass population of the lake and they're winning.

They have a pretty productive philosophy: The best way to catch fish is to go fishing. And they do. All the time. They go at 4:30 a.m. and again in the evening. They try it when the sun's shining and when it's not. They throw blueworms and surface lures when the lake is still and also when there's a two-foot chop.

The two of them wade around the south end of the lake like it was their living room and if their wives had been questioned, which they weren't, they'd probably testify the two fishermen spend more time at the lake than they do at home. (My wife testifies loudly)

Blue Worms Used

Both use spinning rods and most of the time blue plastic worms which they stick a hook through and throw into the thickest bunch of brush or sunflowers they can find. And then they twitch the worm back toward them with an irregular retrieve until something hits it. Their success would indicate that something does hit it more times than not.

The bass over at Olive Creek Lake near Kramer probably wish Strohmyer had reported to his Washington pro football camp a few months early. One day a couple of weeks ago Strohmyer was wading around in the south end of the lake looking for bass. His success had been nil until he heard a bunch of trashing around back up in the sunflowers. He thought it was mud hens but went over and investigated anyway. Let him tell it:

"There were bass coming out of the water all over the place. They were chasing dragon flies and some of them would come out of the water two feet and grab one. I didn't have any flies or surface lures with me since it was early in the year. I called my fishing partner over and we started throwing blue worms into the sunflowers.

"The worms would hit the water, which was only about two feet deep, and then we'd let them sink to the bottom. As soon as we'd raise our rod tip to start the retrieve we'd have one. We both limited out pretty quick."

Hitting Surface Lures

Some of the fishing information in last week's column which said bass should hit surface lures in two weeks was two weeks wrong. Wright caught five and missed about 25 on a surface lure in an hour last weekend. The 25 short-strike misses he had oftentimes occur before spawning season gets under way or when the weather is going to change. It changed.

Conservation officer Dale Bruha reports Oak Lake was stocked with bullheads on Wednesday. A city ordinance limits the amount of poles per person to one with two hooks. The limit is five.

Fishing has generally been slow but some hand-size bluegill are being pulled out of Pawnee Lake northwest of Emerald on worms according to conservation officer Leroy Orvis.

J. W. Rempe of Lincoln and his boy (they are the ones who pulled in that 14 pound 4 ounce, 37½-inch northern last March in Sprague) took two walleye around three pounds and a 3½-pound bass out of the southwest corner of Sprague Lake last weekend. They used Lazy Ikes.

That's about all. It's the same old story: unsettled weather.

New Sport: Sailboat Regatta Watching

By RICK AKIN

Sailboat racing wasn't listed on the latest sports attendance figures. That's funny.

There's nothing to see, you say. Hah. There's plenty.

In a way watching a sailboat race is much like watching a distance runners in a track meet. You not only look to see who is ahead but after some experience you begin to watch for the coordinated stride, the smooth pumps of the arms, and still shoulders and head.

There is, you see, something to watch besides who is in first place and who is last.

It's true in sailing, too. And the best sailors in this area will be at Capitol Beach Lake next Sunday when the Lincoln Snipe Fleet duels the Iowa-Nebraska Snipe Fleet, composed mainly of Omahans.

Back to what to watch for.

An excellent sailor will keep his boat level. That is it won't tip from side to side.

"Secondly, I'd say the thing to look for is that the sails are not fluttering. That means that they're full of air," Dick Wadlow, who won the high point championship in the Lincoln Sailing Club last year, says.

The sailor who hasn't maneuvered his sails into a position that keeps the sails full is not taking advantage of what wind he has.

Also watch for smoothness of the crew in executing "coming about." This occurs when a sailboat goes across wind and must shift its sails to fill the sails again.

And jockeying the boat into a favorable position during the race is another facet which bears watching.

A windy day will provide more entertainment for spectators. Wind has the knack of making it more difficult for sailors to navigate their Snipes. And that means leaning out of the boat to keep it even.

So it's not like just sitting a little dinghy and letting the wind take you where it may.

The 25-30 boats who will enter the Sunday regatta will show why.

They'll run three races, each approximately three miles long but with varied courses. The first one will start at 10:30 a.m. the second at 1:30 p.m. and the third at 3:30 p.m.

A Snipe, by the way, is 15½-feet long, has a 20-foot mast and 117 square inches of sail and weighs 425 pounds without people.

Scoring is nearly as complicated as sailing the boat. The first five boats from each fleet will be awarded points on the basis of their finish. The Snipe which finishes first will receive the square of 40 or 1600 points and then so on down to the 10th boat which will get the square of 31 or 961 points. This system eliminates ties.

Permit Mailing In June

—The main order of business when the Game Commission meets Friday, May 20, will be the setting of fall seasons on deer, antelope, and wild turkey.

Applications for big game permits will be accepted as soon as the dates and bag limits are set. Mailing of permits will begin in mid-June. They are issued on a first-come, first-served basis with residents getting priority until July 1. Then nonresident requests will be honored in units where permits are still available.

Persons applying for big game permits should do so on the special envelope forms, which may be obtained from conservation officers, license vendors, county clerks, and Commission district offices. Applicants must be at least 16 years of age by the time the season opens. Check or money order must accompany the applications. If no permit is issued, money will be refunded. No refunds can be made once a permit is issued.

Hunters may apply for and receive one permit each for deer, antelope, and wild turkey. However, they must apply separately for each one, the Commission points out. Permits are issued only for the unit for which they are requested and are not transferable from one unit to another or from one person to another. Applicants may list a second choice of unit.

If they do not list a second choice and the unit for which they apply is filled, their money will be returned. Permits are issued only from the Commission's central office at the State Capitol.

Stanley Out

Detroit (AP) — The Detroit Tigers said Saturday that outfielder Mickey Stanley will be out of action four to five weeks because of a broken bone in his left hand.

Pool Heads Will Meet

A swimming pool operators conference will be held Thursday at the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department Auditorium, at 7 p.m.

The Conference is designed for both public and privately owned swimming pool managers, operators, and lifeguards in the Lincoln and Southeast Nebraska areas. Home owners of private pools are urged to attend.

SOLUNAR TABLES
WHEN TO FISH OR HUNT

The schedule of solunar periods for the following week as printed below has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your day so that you will be fishing good territory, hunting good cover during these times if you wish to find the best sport that each has to offer. The tables are not a guarantee you will catch fish or see game during the period, however.

The major periods begin at the time shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter, and are in black face type. The minor periods are somewhat shorter in duration.

Life Jackets Required Wear In State Waters

When the owl and the pussycat set out to sea, they probably did not have life jackets in their craft.

But, it is a different story in Nebraska. Every boat operated in Nebraska waters must have at least one life-saving device for each person on board. Three arrests for infraction of this law are included in the latest list of violations from Game Commission conservation officers.

No life jackets in boat—Cecil B. Lipham, Omaha; Gerald E. Kelley, Lincoln, and Harry S. LaBouff, St. Joseph, Mo., each $10 and costs.

Littering—Bernard French, Wellfleet, and Herman E. Bernhardt, Lincoln, each $10 and costs; Bernieee K. Gounce, Scottsbluff, $20 and costs; Dale L. Ferguson, Palisade, $25 and costs.

Littering and fishing without permit—Douglas W. Beahore, Kearney, $35 and costs.

Fishing without permit—Michael E. Leach 17, Norfolk; Jerald L. Van Winkle, Kearney; Robert D. Deyo, 17, Omaha; Gene L. Hunt, Nebraska City; John J. Ruzicka, 16, Grand Island, Randolph E. Carlson, 18, Central City, William R. Johnson, 20, Grant; Jose A. Danez and Blas H. Medina, both of Harlingen, Tex., and James E. Snyder, Ainsworth, each $10 and costs.

Returning trout to water—Michael E. White, 19, Omaha, $10 and costs.

Hunting game bird without upland stamp—Edward J. Soukup and Carl H. Schneider, both of Omaha, and Tom L. Traylor, Ainsworth, each $10 and costs.

Traffic violation on state area—Walter Armstrong, Jr., Omaha, $10 and costs, and Tom H. Holmes, 17, Hastings, sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Five Tourist Centers Open During Summer

To spread the word about Nebraska attractions, five Game Commission Tourist and Information Centers will again be in operation this summer, announced M. O. Steen, director.

In addition to the two permanent centers in the State Capitol and at the Crossroads shopping center in Omaha, three more will open for the season on Memorial Day, May 30. They are located in Kimball's Gotte Park on U.S. Highway 30, at Blair on U.S. Highway 30, and at the Greenwood Interchange on Interstate 80. They will remain open through Labor Day, September 5.

The stations will be manned by Nebraska college and university students dressed in appropriate western wear. They will be open seven days a week, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Supervised by the Information and Tourism Division of the Game Commission, the purpose of the centers is to dispense information about NEBRASKAland's myriad tourist attractions and facilities. A wide selection of maps, brochures, and informational pamphlets is offered at the centers.

Tiemann, Sorensen Are Governor Nominees

Sunday Journal and Star
Highlights From Home
Lincoln, Nebraska
MAIL-AWAY EDITION — WEEK OF MAY 8-MAY 14

NWU Building Gift

Nebraska Wesleyan President Vance Rogers, left, stands with two Olin Foundation officers, Dr. James O. Wynn of New York, center, and Dr. Charles L. Horn of Minneapolis. The foundation is presenting Wesleyan with a $2,347,248 grant to construct a new science building. The award was the largset foundation grant ever made to a Nebraska college.

Youth dominated the state primaries as Republican N. T. Tiemann of Wausa and Democrat Philip Sorensen of Lincoln were chosen to square off in the November governor's race.

As expected, U.S. Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Democratic Gov. Frank Morrison won their Senate primaries.

Congressional candidates are Robert Denney, GOP, and Rep. Clair Callan, Democrat, first district; Rep. Dave Martin, GOP, and John Homan, Democrat, third and Rep Glenn Cunningham, GOP, and Richard Fellman, Democrat, second.

Lt. Governor candidates are Democrat Ross Rasmussen of Hooper and Republican John Everroad of Omaha.

Most notable among the defeated was three-time former Gov. Val Peterson, who finished a distant second in the Republican race for the gubernatorial nomination.

Primary Chilly In Lancaster

Rain and cold weather failed to stop 30,125 Lancaster County voters in the Tuesday primary. This was the highest primary polling in four years.

Main county attention focused on the sheriff race, where businessman Bob Colin received the Democratic nomination and incumbent Merle Karnopp retained Republican backing despite a former deputy's challenge.

Legislative nominees for Lincoln districts in the non-political races were John E. Knight and Rudolph Anderson, 26th district; Charles E. Wilcox and Harold D. Simpson, 46th; and Roland Luedtke and James Weaver, 28.

In city charter amendments, voters rejected the much-publicized amendment to permit the city to set the annual tax levy as needed to raise revenue.

Fifteen amendments, however, were approved by margins ranging up to seven to one.

School Aid on Per Pupil Basis

The State Education Assn. legislative body said any state aid to schools should be distributed on a per-pupil basis.

The commission said it will support a proposed state constitutional amendment to give 20% of revenue from an income or sales tax, or both, to schools.

An alternate method of aid distribution, on a census count including both parochial and public students, would give an inequitable amount to districts with a high percentage of parochial students, some members said.

'W' Club Spring Competition Set

An annual spring sports roundup, the 'W' Club track, tennis and golf tournaments, are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Newlon

Tennis and golf competition is scheduled for Monday and the 'W' Club track meet will be held under the lights Tuesday evening.

Nebraska Wesleyan is the defending tennis champion and Hastings is the defending golf champion.

Coach Don Ewen will have his defending doubles champions back in Jim Burton and Henry Cox. Chris Kersting of Hastings won the singles championship last year.

Teams expected to compete in both the tennis and golf are Hastings, Doane, Dana, Concordia, Midland, NWU.

Tennis finals will be played at the NWU court and the golf is set for Holmes Park.

Coach Woody Greeno said he expects several records to be threatened as Doane and NWU have the favored roles in the 11th annual W Club track meet.

The Plainsmen and Tigers have each won five 'W' Club titles. The Plainsmen broke a five game Doane streak last year with a 106-93 victory.

Greeno said he looks for Dave Newlon to top his mark in the javelin and thinks the shot put and discus might be threatened.

Greeno's own two mile relay team has beaten the 8:05.5 mark in that event and Tom Bassett has bettered his own 9.8 record in the 100 and the 21.2 mark in the 220 held by Clint Skinner of Doane.

Hastings, Dana, Concordia, Midland and JFK will be entered in the meet.

Preliminaries in the track and field events begin at 3 p.m. Finals start at 6 p.m. in the field events and 6:30 p.m. in the track events.

Racing Tonight

Midwest Officials Buck Typical Lincoln Spring

Lincolnland car racing enthusiasts are quickly becoming part of the growing list of sports people dependent upon the weatherman.

But if the situation is depressing to the fans, think what it must be to the operators of Midwest Speedway.

Take last weekend as an example. The air conditioners in Lincoln were running full blast both Friday and Saturday. The mercury soared to well over 90 degrees the latter day.

And then what happened Sunday? A raincoat was absolutely necessary and one with a fur lining would have made it a little more comfortable.

But even more tragic was the indecision of the weather that day when the second night of racing was scheduled at the Lincoln oval.

Once in the afternoon the sun even tried to shine, but as evening approached it started to rain and a cancellation was necessitated by co-owners Jerry Gerdes and Jerry Biskup.

A move of this type is costly to say the least. But in addition the work that goes into the presentation is all lost.

Gerdes and Biskup head a fleet of workmen that begin at the track every weekend. Sunday's effort starts at daybreak and the green flag on Sunday night is the goal. When it doesn't fall all is lost.

And imagine concessionaire Orville Lenz. He and his family must eat hamburgers all week. Their work also starts early on Sundays. And a rain-out leaves them with plenty of food for thought.

This weekend started out the same way as last, but Midwest officials hope it will end differently. They are anxious to run their second show tonight.

The first show of the year was run with some 25 cars, but upwards of 30 are expected tonight. Many of the new cars are now ready for action.

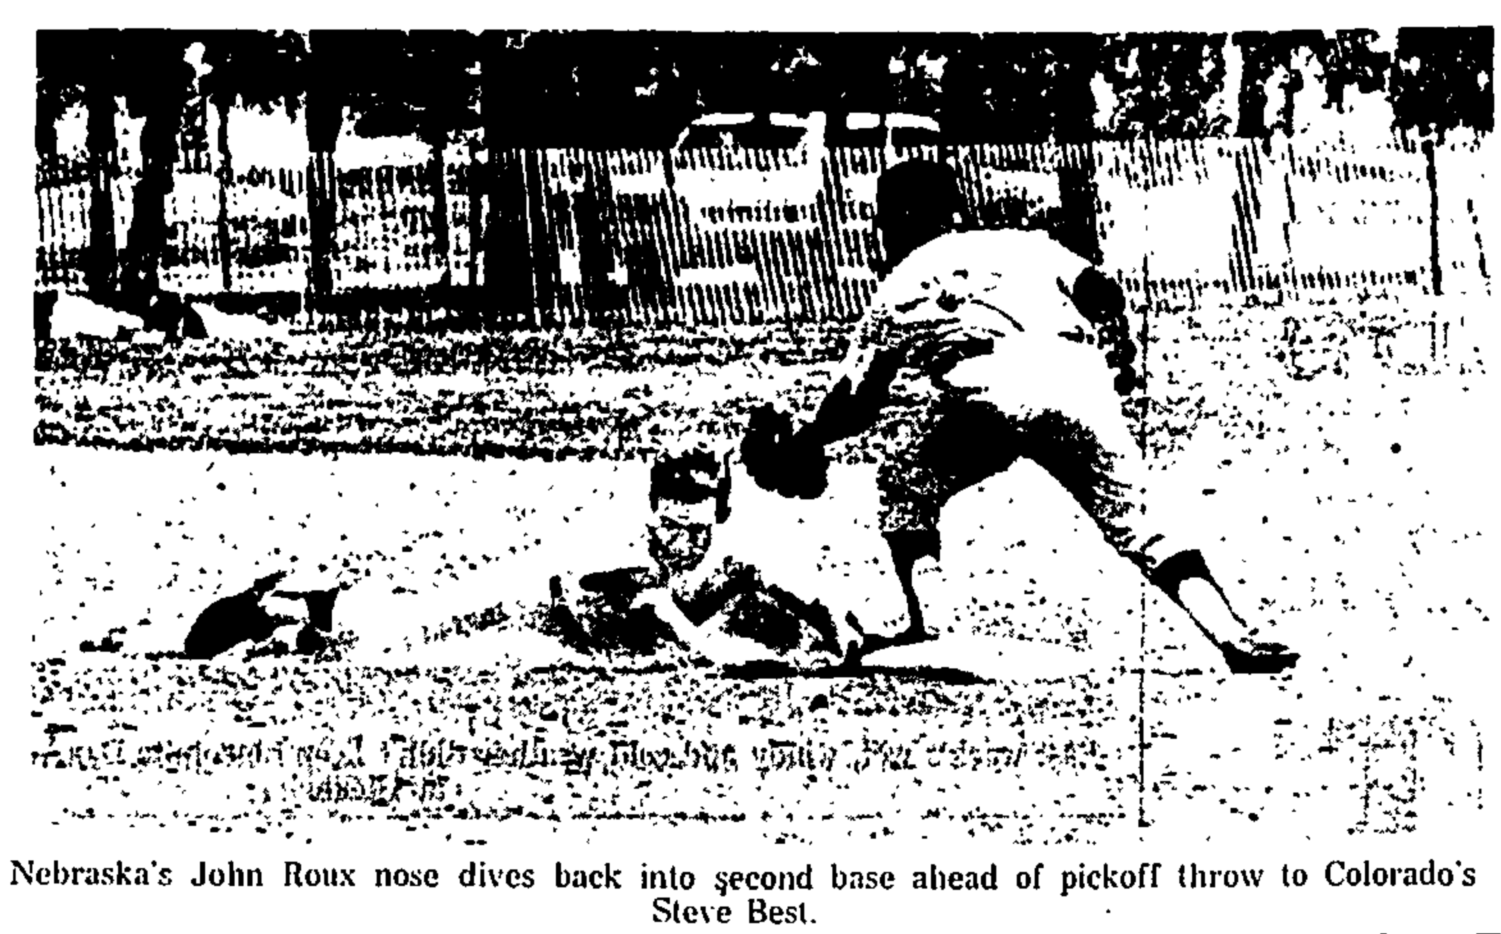
John Wilkinson was off and running that first night in pursuit of a repeat driving title. He won his heat race and the big A-Feature in Charlie Williams' top running car No. 24.

Racing resumes (hopefully) tonight at 7:30 p.m. Midwest Speedway is located at 4600 No. 27th St.

Lindgren Sets Mark

Seattle, Wash. (AP) — Little Gerry Lindgren of Washington State University beat his own American record and missed a world mark by only a six-tenths of a second when he won the three-miles in 12:53 Saturday in the annual Northern Division, Pacific Athletic Conference track meet.

The Washington State sophomore had set the American mark last July 10 in London, running behind Australian Ron Clarke, who set the world mark at 12:52.4. That Lindgren effort was 13:04.2.



Nebraska's John Roux nose dives back into second base ahead of pickoff throw to Colorado's Steve Best.

Before Capacity Crowd

Neibauer's 3-Hitter Stops Colorado, 7-2

By HAL BROWN

Nebraska right-hander Gary Neibauer, who specializes in pitching masterpieces before the home folks, turned in a three-hitter before the largest crowd of the season as the Huskers stopped Colorado, 7-2, at the NU Diamond Saturday.

A capacity crowd estimated at 1,000 was on hand as the NU junior struck out 14 and had only one bad inning while picking up his fourth victory of the season against two setbacks.

Neibauer earlier this season had pitched a one-hitter against Kansas and a two-hitter against Oklahoma State in the only other two home series on the NU schedule.

The Scottsbluff native's fast ball and slider were too much for Colorado batsmen and only a brief wind spell kept Neibauer from a shutout.

He gave up the only two runs in the fourth inning when he walked Dan Kelly and Jack Coppom. Don Alsup hit a slow grounder down the third base line and was thrown out by Husker third baseman Bob Churchich.

However, Kelly was running with the pitch and scored from second base, sliding in just ahead of first baseman Bob Brand's throw to catcher Clayton Luther. Duke Prentup then singled Coppom home with the second run.

Neibauer was in mild trouble in the seventh when he walked Marshall Greenstein, leading off the inning, and George Radovich followed with a single.

But Neibauer struck out the next three batters to end the threat.

Neibauer got healthy batting support from his Husker teammates with batterymate Luther providing the biggest bat. Luther had three hits in four trips and two runs batted in.

After Colorado had taken the 2-0 lead in the top of the fourth, Nebraska came back in the bottom half of the inning with five runs on two walks, two errors and singles by Brand, Luther and Randy Harris, who broke out of a hitting slump with two-for-five.

Churchich made it 6-2 in the fifth inning with a 370-foot homer over the left centerfield fence and then two innings later left the game to race to Seacrest Field for the football intrasquad game.

The final NU run scored in the seventh without benefit of a base hit. Alex Walter was safe on an error by shortstop Kelly, stole second and went to third when catcher Radovich threw the ball into centerfield.

Walter came home when centerfielder Coppom dropped Gary Tunnison's fly ball.

The win pushes the NU mark to 10-8 in the Big Eight and leaves Colorado at 6-12. Nebraska winds up play with a three-game series at Iowa State Friday and Saturday.

Oklahoma Clinches Title Tie

Norman (AP)—Larry Patterson held Missouri to three hits Saturday as Oklahoma downed the Tigers 3-0 and wrapped up at least a share of the Big Eight Conference baseball crown.

Iowa State, in second place, lost to Kansas, 6-5, Saturday in a 10-inning game at Lawrence, Kan., to give the Sooners their go-ahead chance.

The Sooners can sew up the title by winning one of their last three games, which will be played against Colorado.

Nebraska Captures Big Eight Track To Terminate 15-Year Drought

Nebraska's track team won the Big Eight Conference Track and Field Championships for the first time in 15 years, running up a total of 113 points to 103 for second place Oklahoma.

Charlie Greene won both sprints for the Huskers, turning in a 09.3 record 100-yard dash and tying the 220 record of :20.8.

Dave Crook ran off a blistering :45.9 in the 440 to establish a new record there, and Dave Kudron won both the high and intermediate hurdles.

For his efforts Greene was again named winner of the Henry Schulte Award, signifying the meet's outstanding performer.

Huskers Split, Take Single

Nebraska's baseball team split a doubleheader with Colorado, winning the first 1-0 but losing the second, 6-2 before coming back to take a single game, 7-2.

The Husker chances of gaining the Big Eight title were virtually eliminated, however, as they now own a 10-8 conference mark.

Bob Hergenrader and Gary Neibauer each threw three-hitters for Nebraska in the triumphs.

Prep Sprinters Qualify for State

State High school track men all over the state competed in district meets to earn places in the state high school meet in Kearney.

Lincoln High won the Class A district at Wesleyan with 46 points, followed by Northeast with 44 and Southeast with 43½.

Two New Shop Centers Planned

Business is making a nearly $16 million investment in Lincoln's future in two separate projects.

In one, Food Host U.S.A. president Larry Price said he will build a $10 million shopping center near 48th and Van Dorn in southeast Lincoln.

The center, if his 60-acre tract receives City Council rezoning permission, may be completed in two years.

In another project, American Stores packing plant here said it will triple its processing capacity in a $3.5 million expansion program.

NEBRASKAlandMarks

Central Nebraska voters approved a vocational-technical school for Hastings depot . . . A recent Supreme Court tax ruling reportedly will cost state-local governments $2.9 million annually . . . Legislators were split over whether a special session to consider state tax problems should be called . . . A District Court ruling against the state income tax referendum was appealed to the State Supreme Court . . . Fifteen-year-old William Jaeger of Blair was charged with first degree murder in the slaying of his sister, Hannah, 18.

Tax Opinion

A city-wide poll of 204 citizens indicated widespread support for a broadened tax base, either a sales tax, an income tax, or a combination.

Car Industry 'Boom Balloon' Leaking

New York (AP) — Is a small hole appearing in the booming automobile industry's balloon?

Production cutbacks announced during the week by the Big Three automakers indicated this may be the case.

Whether the outlook may become serious, the action was enough to jolt the stock market into its worst loss on Monday since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

This was the production picture:

General Motors Corp. said eight of its 23 assembly plants would be closed for periods ranging from one to three days for the rest of May.

Ford Motor Co. reduced its planned output in May by 19,000 cars to 242,000, which still would be a new high for the month.

Chrysler cut its June work schedule to 136,000 cars, which still was a high for the month.

American Motors was building cars on its regular production schedule.

'To Get In Line'

All of the companies said their cutbacks were to enable them to get their production in line with dealers' inventories, which are at an all-time high.

They also put some blame for a decline in sales in April on criticism of automobile safety. Arjay Miller, president of Ford, expressed belief that "harassment" on the safety issue had influenced sales.

Roy Abernathy, American Motors president, said indications were that the congressional safety hearings had "a negative effect on sales."

Sales reports for the first 10 days of May were mixed, with Ford reporting record deliveries for May and General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors reporting declines.

Ford dealers sold 59,065 cars in early May, topping the May high of 56,506 set last year.

General Motors sold 96,650 cars in the 10-day period, compared with 127,194 a year earlier.

American sales for May 1-10 this year were 5,829, compared to 8,029 for the same period a year ago.

Steel Output Off

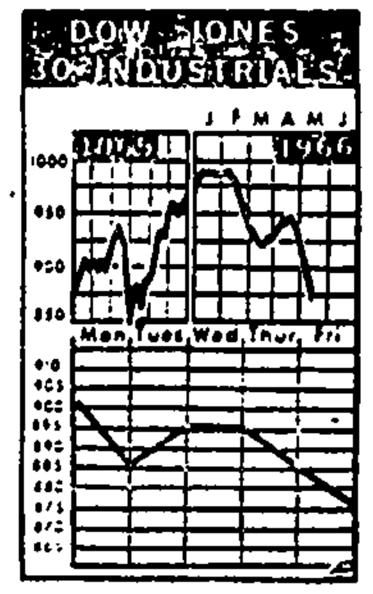
An estimated 190,600 cars were turned out during the week, off 2% from 194,588 the previous week and down 7.6 per cent from 206,370 a year ago.

Steel production for the week reached the highest level in a year with 2,765,000 tons being produced. This was a gain of 3.1% over the previous week.

Feeling the effect of a decline in automobile sales, retail sales fell during April for the first time in eight months, the Commerce Dept reported.

Sales of retail stores declined about 1 per cent from March.

Sales of durable goods dropped about 7% from March, led by a substantial drop in automobile sales although sales of most other durable goods fell.



Dow Jones industrials off 26.72 points in week.

Slump Continues In Stock Market

New York (UPI)—The stock market slumped again last week but the emotional swings which marked the previous week's trading died down considerably.

Auto news was still the market's sore spot and reports of lagging sales and production cutbacks triggered the week's three biggest selloffs.

The market was hit with very heavy selling Monday morning as traders re-evaluated last Friday's misinterpreted report that General Motors would resume a full work week on Monday.

Losses were cut sharply by 2 p.m. but new selling came in after Ford said it was lowering its estimate of May output. Despite the cut, the company pointed out that the output still represented a record.

A technical rally sent the list higher on Tuesday and Wednesday. However, a late selloff pushed the widely watched Dow-Jones industrial average down 0.05 although gainers outnumbered losers.

Further selling was seen Thursday morning, apparently in anticipation Chrysler and General Motors would report lower sales for the first ten days of May.

Some recovery was made but lost after Budd Co., a large producer of auto parts, said it was cutting output slightly.

After the close General Motors reported a 24% drop, Drysler 13.6% and American Motors 27.4%.

Top Gains In Wheat, Rye Prices

Chicago (UPI) — Wheat and rye were substantially higher; corn higher; oats irregularly higher and soybeans mixed last week on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat varied between easy and strong, turning strong again Friday.

In corn trading ranges were moderate. There was an upturn in new crop months.

Soybean prices gained some ground. Deliveries were liberal.

Rye and oats were featureless.

Traders and observers attributed much of last week's activity to unseasonable weather and reports from Washington of proposals to trade with Iron Curtain countries and congressional reluctance to go along.

Fat Cattle Lower; Butchers Uneven

Omaha (UPI) — The Omaha Livestock Foundation said in its weekly report that for the fourth week out of the past five, fat cattle prices at Omaha closed lower than for the previous week.

Fed steers and heifers were weak to 50 lower with heifers under the most pressure, instances 75 off on heifers. The steer top for the week was 27.50, the heifer top 26.50.

The butcher market was uneven and price trends mixed. With the outside top 25 lower, barrows and gilts under 230 pounds sold mostly steady with weights over that mark mostly 25 lower, instances 50 off. Sows were 25-50 higher. The week's butcher top was 24.50, the sow top 19.50.

Spring lambs were 50-75 higher last week, old crop lambs mostly steady. The top on spring lambs was 27.25, shorn lambs 24.00, with mixed shorn and wooled to 25.00.

The weekly report said there were several steer sales up close to the top of 27.40, and a number of sales at from 26.75-27.35. Choice steers varied from 25.25-26.50, in-between kinds from 24.75-25.50. Holsteins sold from 21.75-23.50.

SECTION D—MAY 15, 1966—PAGE 1D

By HOLLY SPENCE

When the Ernest Bedells say their "hobby hunting ground" is a stone's throw away, they should know for they've traveled many a rocky road in search of treasures.

Rockhounds for nearly four years, the Bedells first became interested in the sport while living in Florida.

"It was the children who first became attracted to it, and then the whole family joined in the hunting," said Mrs. Bedell.

The first interest was in fossils found near a railroad track "Then it went from shells to rocks," added Mrs. Bedell.

In Florida the family had as a close friend a retired geologist who classified shells at a museum. He helped further the Bedells' interest in the sport.

Prize Conch

"He gave the children some shells and told them to wash them out and see what they could find," said Mrs. Bedell, "and they came up with quite a prize"

The young Bedells found a strange specimen, which they took back to the geologist.

"It was a four-sided conch (square sea shell), which was a real rarity," said Mrs. Bedell, "and he had looked for one all of his life."

Upon moving to Nebraska, friends gave some rocks to the Bedell children and it "further whetted their appetite for the sport."

Vacation Fun

Paul said he often takes a part of the collection to school for exhibit, for toting the whole collection would be quite an undertaking.

Extensive reading keeps him is the know about his hobby and whenever there is a question, a quick trip to a museum usually satisfies any inquiries.

Vacation time finds the Bedells haunting the museums along the way and gleaning the countryside for additions to the collection.

"The family car is always loaded down on the return," said Mrs. Bedell.

Playreaders Determine What Goes on Playhouse Boards

By HELEN HAGGIE

It's really a never ending — but fun—task—that of being a member of the playreading committee of Lincoln Community Playhouse. Though, with next year's slate of plays chosen, it would seem the committee could sit back and relax. But this isn't the situation.

"True, there are no scheduled meetings, says committee member James Hewitt, "but we must keep an eye on new plays and keep up with what is going on in theater. We must think about the future."

The committee, comprised of Roland Reed, director of the Playhouse; Donald Hagerty, Taylor Greer, Hewitt and Mmes. Roger Dickeson, LeRoi Schoonover, Stephen Cole and W. D. Marting, has two things to keep in mind when selecting plays—the size of the cast and the number of sets needed to produce it.

"One joy is that we have never felt plays must be selected to cater to any preconceived attitude of the community," Hewitt says. "This indicates the interest of Lincolnites in theater."

40-50 Plays per Year

Each member of the committee reads 40 to 50 plays a year. Although the ideal situation is one in which each committee member has a playbook, occasionally this is impossible.

"When we don't have enough books, sometimes there are four or five people stacked up on the waiting list for one play," Mr. Hewitt explained. "But we have learned to read them rapidly."

During the winter months, the committee holds regular monthly meetings — and every play is discussed. Committee members bring their notes to the meeting and all pros and cons of each play are gone over. "The discussion of one play may last 15 or 20 minutes, before a decision is made whether to keep it on our list or eliminate it immediately," Mr. Hewitt said.

"When we get right down to the wire—we must submit our slate of the next season's plays to the Playhouse board before the fourth play of the season—we may be meeting weekly or oftener," Mr. Hewitt said.

The reason for two musicals next season, Hewitt explained, is that "The Fantasticks" has a very small cast—only one feminine role — and many people look forward to participating in a musical. So the next Playhouse season will not only close with a musical, but it will open with one, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum"

Actually, Playhouse regulars will see six plays in five performances next season. "The Typists" and "The Tiger" are one-act plays which will be presented on the same bill.

Ballots Cast

Playhouse patrons who attended "The Death of a Salesman" were given an opportunity to vote on two plays—"You Can't Take It With You" and "Life With Father"—for next season. "You Can't Take It With You" received the majority of votes. The other presentation will be "A Streetcar Named Desire."

Members of the committee agree that participating in the selection of plays is an interesting activity—"It makes you aware of what's going on in the theater."

Mr. Hewitt said that the Playhouse is generally aware of what performances are planned at the University of Nebraska's Howell Theatre and Nebraska Wesleyan University's Enid Miller Theatre.

The most difficult obstacle, an insurmountable one concerning new plays, Mr. Hewitt says, is that publishers will not make available to community playhouses current plays that are on tour in the area.

But, the Lincoln Community Playhouse patrons can rest assured that one committee of the Playhouse is constantly watching for productions which will please and delight the audience.

Complexion Beautifier

The complexion takes on a peaches-and-cream look through the use of a tropical moist oil with remarkable beautifying properties. It is isotonic in action, assisting the plasma colloids (the skin's water carriers) to retain a balanced moisture level at the skin's surface, so that the complexion acquires a glorious bloom. Smoothed over the face and neck before make-up is applied, this moist oil of Olay helps the skin to enjoy clear loveliness. Ask your druggist for a supply for your personal needs.

Male Modes: Men's Fashions Are Instrumental in Success of Some Hollywood Actors

A recent interview with film star Robert Taylor touched on men's fashions and their part in the success of some of the male stars in Hollywood.

When requested to select a list of those who would qualify as the best-dressed actors during his career, he unhesitatingly suggested Clark Gable, Gary Cooper, Fred Astaire and Cary Grant as being outstanding—as being able to look well in everything from sports clothes to white tie and tails.

Among the younger actors of today, he felt that Dick Van Dyke, Chad Everett and James Garner were among the best-groomed.

The interviewer noted that Robert Taylor would certainly have to be near the top of any such list—if one existed!

Trends: Formal wear has been dominantly black for the past few years, but according to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear, deep, rich blues are now being offered by the major manufacturers. Navy blue, slate blues and charcoal blues are growing stronger as raincoat colors. But the future lineup of colors in rainwear would seem to be (1) black, (2) natural, (3) olive and (4) blues . . . Hawaii bounces back! Sport shirts with huge floral patterns, bolder than anything Harry Truman ever wore, will be seen all over the beaches this summer!

Care of Clothes: Pencil marks around the pocket of a shirt should be erased before washing, or else the water will make the lead marks much harder to remove . . . Start the summer right by folding up your shirt sleeves, rather than rolling them up. They'll look better when unrolled — rather, unfolded! . . . If you loosen your collar while at work, it's best to take off the tie, rather than slip the knot. Even during a few hours of hanging up at the office, the tie can regain its shape.

Hit That Spot: Always try to remove as much of the built-up deposits as possible by scraping before applying dissolving fluids. But be careful not to harm the fabric. Have all stains removed as soon as possible. For example, wet paint is easier to remove than dry paint. Never press a stained garment. The heat of pressing can set many stains.

Dress Tips: If you find you have no time for a quickie p.m. shave, a bright tie will divert attention away from five o'clock shadow . . . If a tie knot shows minor perspiration stains, allow to dry, then lightly sponge the area with cool water . . . Why do so many men have trouble tieing a bow tie? Do it just like you tie the bowknot in a shoelace—and you won't even have to look in a mirror!

Odd Items: The singers — The group called Anthony & The Imperials features different sets of clothes in black, white, blue, purple and cream . . . Far-out mod trend — Young British men are fastening their ascot scarfs with big, ornate cameo brooches —like your Grandma wore . . . Another "Invasion" — The Irish Menswear Fashion Assn. came to the USA to show their wares earlier this spring and viewers were highly impressed with their heavy-knit fishermen sweaters.

Best-dressed sportcaster — Jack (CBS) Whitaker, whose own collection of sport jackets and slacks is the best in that business. No matter how hectic and trying the sport he is covering, Jack always looks elegant . . . In the stores—The range of male cosmetics has widened since the days when we had only cologne, after-shave and deodorants. Some of the new ones are A "cream" face mask, an emollient skin softener, an astringent, eye pads containing a formula to soothe the eyes, hand cream, tale tablet to dull shine on face or bald spots etc. And there are dozens more on the way!

Date With Dinner Begins the Day

By BESS JENKINS

Evening meals served at the Thomas Thorson home usually are started in the morning.

No, Margaret Thorson isn't a bride wearing out her first cook book

She, in fact, is an experienced dietitian, a graduate of the University of Washington.

Her problem is mobility. Margaret Thorson must do everything, including cooking, from a wheelchair.

She happens to be one of the half-million Americans living in hope today that continuing research will discover a way to help their common, incurable affliction — multiple sclerosis.

This is why 40% of community contributions in an eight-county area given this week during Lincoln MS Chapter's Hope Chest drive will go to help carry on this national research.

The remainder is kept by the chapter to provide services to patients like Mrs. Thorson. There are a known 176 afflicted in the eight southeast counties.

Looking back, the 49-year-old Mrs. Thorson says, "I know now that the multiple sclerosis began 20 years ago."

This crippling disease does strike its major blows against the young adult. It attacks the nervous system, though usually in so many variations that no two cases appear identical.

Some are completely paralyzed or incapacitated. Others are able to carry on normal or near-normal activities, despite brief relapses.

Medical authorities cite an average life expectancy of 25 years after onset of multiple sclerosis symptoms.

Mrs. Thorson suspected multiple sclerosis was her problem 11 years ago when her feet became numb. She is experiencing this same difficulty in her left arm today.

"The official diagnosis came six years ago at Mayo Clinic, "said the Lincoln housewife and mother.

Five years is looked upon as the average period needed to diagnose multiple sclerosis. Its symptoms such as numbness, tingling, sensory changes and poor vision also can be associated with other ailments.

More than a diagnosis of multiple sclerosis was given Mrs. Thorson at Mayo's. Doctors told her she also had cancer.

"I felt like I could handle the cancer, which took surgery, but I knew the other would be a continuing fight."

It wasn't until August, 1964, that Mrs. Thorson called a halt to her professional work as dietitian at Providence Hospital.

She apparently fought it all the way. She explains:

"You know the disease is gradually gaining on you. In the last six months at work I started using a cane, then a wheelchair to get up and down the hospital halls. Next the wheelchair seemed necessary from the time I drove up to the hospital until the day was over."

Margaret Thorson has some strong reinforcements within her own family: husband, Tom, a zoology professor at the University of Nebraska, is both Lincoln MS Chapter president and Hope Chest Drive chairman this year; daughter, Sharon, an NU senior, and son, Joel, a Lincoln Southeast High senior, help at home.

Mrs. Thorson at work on family's favorite angel food cake.

Jane Adkisson Is Bride-Elect

Miss Jane Adkisson

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Adkisson announce the engagement of their daughter Jane to David McMahill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don McMahill Sr. of Omaha.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska and member of Sigma Kappa Sorority, Miss Adkisson is attending Drake University Divinity School in Des Moines.

Mr. McMahill attends Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., and is a member of Kappa Kappa Kappa fraternity.

Hutchisons Say Vows

Southminster Evangelical United Brethren Church was the setting for the 2 p.m. Saturday wedding of Miss Rebecca Lee Chancellor and Jerry Richard Hutchison.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Chancellor and Mr. Hutchison is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hutchison.

The bride appeared in a floor length gown of silk linen styled with a crescent neckline and lantern sleeves appliqued in narrow bands of lace. The applique was repeated on the defined A line skirt and the Watteau train.

A bow of silk linen with pearl studded lace caught her veil, and she carried a white orchid with stephanotis on a Bible.

Miss Karen Capellen was maid of honor, and bridesmaid was Miss Elvena Gressley.

Gary Yakel served as best man and groomsman was Gerald Anderson. Ushers were Jerry Hahn of Kansas City, Mo., and James Harless of Indianapolis, Ind.

After their wedding trip, the couple will live in Lincoln.

Accutron by Bulova

The most important thing to remember about this calendar watch is that it isn't a calendar watch. This is an Accutron timepiece. And we don't even call it a watch at all. It has no balance wheel or mainspring. No staff. No screws. In fact, everything that can make a watch go fast or slow has been left out, and replaced by a tuning fork that keeps time so precise that Accutron comes with the first guarantee of accuracy ever given: accuracy to within a minute a month for one full year. Accutron with calendar is still the same Accutron. Guarantee and all. Only you get the date, too. The exact time. And the date. Not bad, considering Accutron isn't a calendar watch.

Woman Has Right to Own Identity

By CAY LACEY

"A woman has a right to her own identity, and should make her impact felt as a woman, not as a man," according to Sister Francesca, O.S.U., of Bresica College at Owensboro, Ky., speaking to a group of young married women enrolled in a three-part series of lectures on "The Eternal Woman" at the Cathedral of the Risen Christ.

The course, which is taught for a semester at Bresica College for two credits, was designed to help young women know who they are and their role in life.

"You don't have to do many things," said Sister Francesca, "you have to be!" She listed the goals of the course as women's knowledge of how important they are as women, who they are, why they're here and where they're going.

"Present - day education prepares a woman for everything but being a woman," Sister Francesca said.

Sister Francesca, who taught in Nebraska City for several years, said that the lectures must be given in a feminine atmosphere, adding, "It does something psychologically."

The idea for a class in femininity originated with Dr. Philip M. Law of Chicago, formerly an instructor at Notre Dame University at South Bend, Ind., and Loyola Medical School in Chicago.

Sister Francesca said she is probably the only Sister who has taken vows of poverty and still has an unlimited bank account. As organizer of the course, she has had to establish the content, method of instruction and the syllabus for the semester's lectures

The course was first offered three years ago and has generated enough enthusiasm that future plans include a similar course for the men on the Bresica campus.

Classes started Wednesday at the Cathedral of the Risen Christ, and lasted until Saturday. About 100 Lincoln women attended the lectures.

He Learned That Things Aren't Wrong When Different

Looking at slides at the Wiechert home are Jeannette Wiechert, Robert Schiel, Bill Wiechert, Mr. and Mrs. Wiechert and Annette Wiechert.

By JANET DAVIDSON

"This year has been a wonderful experience. The people have been wonderful," sighed Robert Shiel, an American Field Service student from Britain. Robert is a senior at University High School and lives with the Charles Wiechert family.

"I knew pretty much what to expect when I came, because we had studied the United States in school. I was surprised with the land in Nebraska, though. I expected it would be very flat. And the summer heat is terrible!" he laughed.

One might think the language would be no problem, but Robert is not quite convinced.

"The language is somewhat similar," he joked, "but there are differences. For example, in Britain, trucks travel on tracks, not roads, and nobody here has ever heard of a lorry. Pavement isn't used by cars, but by people. Here it is known as sidewalk."

Robert hails from a small farm in northern England, and his father is known as a "small holder." Similar to a truck gardener, he raises pigs, tomatoes, mushrooms, strawberries and brussel sprouts. Robert is the only child in his family.

Bob, as he is called by school friends, considers himself lucky to be living on an American farm. When he returns to his homeland, Bob will continue studying to become an agricultural advisor.

He considered the British education system much more complicated than that in the United States. He has always gone to boys' schools. At the grammar school level term marks have no significance and a child passes or fails depending on the results of twice-yearly exams.

When Bob was sixteen, he was required to take a test (ordinary level) issued by a university. Because he had passed at least five subjects, Robert was able to remain two more years in grammar school, studying only three subjects. He then took the advanced level test and after attaining certain grades, Bob is eligible to enter university.

Entertainment and recreation are much the same in England and the United States.

At University High, Bob was elected treasurer of his class. He participated in Uni's Senior Class Play, the All-School Play and the operetta. He is a member of Student Council, International Club and Chess Club. He also enjoys church and 4-H activities.

Bob has done a lot of traveling in the United States, as well as abroad. He has visited Belgium, the Netherlands, France, Turkey, Greece, and Italy. He made the trip from New York to Omaha last summer by bus. This year he had an opportunity to go deer hunting and see the Black Hills.

He journeyed to Halsey Forest to plant trees and attend the Dairy Cattle Congress in Waterloo, Ia.

Although his stay is nearly over, Bob intends to return to Lincoln. "One thing I've learned this year is that things aren't necessarily wrong just because they're different. That is the great benefit of American Field Service."

Family Is Center, but Not All, of Life to Lawyer's Wife

For a housewife of considerable talent and wide-ranging interests, keeping community activities to a minimum is a job in itself.

But Mrs. Norman Krivosha believes that most of her time should be spent with her family.

Besides, her husband explained, "she believes there ought to be only one active person in the family—and she can't control me."

Attorney Krivosha is Lancaster County Democratic chairman, a member of the Democratic state central committee, vice president (and presidential nominee) of Tifereth Israel Synagogue congregation and regional governor of Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity. He is also active in the Lincoln Red Cross; Nebraska State Bar Assn; Lincoln Jaycees; Nebraska Assn. of Trial Attorneys; Community Chest, YMCA and hospital solicitations.

Mrs. Krivosha has curtailed her own civic work so she can spend a great deal of her time with the couple's two daughters, Terri, 7, and Rhonda, 5.

Sewing for the girls is one of Mrs. Krivosha's favorite pastimes. She also loves to cook—and excells at it

Since Terri has been old enough to be a member of Blue Birds, her mother has served as a Blue Bird leader. And her group has been among those chosen to participate in a number of special Camp Fire programs. She also has been a room mother at Terri's school.

But if Mrs. Krivosha's activities are centered on her family, they are not limited to it.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska (and a Lincoln teacher for three years after her graduation), she remains active in her sorority, Sigma Delta Tau (SDT).

She was one of the group instrumental in re-establishing an active SDT chapter on the NU campus after the group disbanded in the early 1960s and, since reactivation, she has served as financial adviser for the chapter.

Volunteer Work

Elected to the advisory board of the Volunteer Bureau of Lincoln last January, she serves on the volunteer committee of that board.

She is recording secretary of the Sisterhood League at Tifereth Israel, where she also has served as a leader of youth groups.

Campaigning for last week's primary election took a great deal of Mrs. Krivosha's time—and she expects to be even busier with campaign activities until the November general election. She is Democratic precinct committeewoman, was a delegate to the last county convention and is again a delegate to this year's convention. She also served on the primary election board.

Of course, she's also been a volunteer worker in many community fund drives.

Mrs. Krivosha's "job" as wife and mother always comes first — but her hopes for the future include furthering her education and giving more service to her community.

Artists Guild Show Lively, Varied

By HELEN HAGGIE

Lincoln Artist Guild annual spring show opened at Miller & Paine Auditorium Saturday and will be on display this week during downtown store hours.

Viewers will find this one of the better shows the Guild has had on exhibit. It is livelier, more varied in media and diversified in subject.

Judges awards were made to Julia Saski's "Reeds," Mary Henderson's "Torso II," Wauneta Ray's "Bill Boards" and Lula Bartek's "The Great Plains." All are oils.

Honorable mentions were given to Don Frankforter's woodcarving "The Minstrel;" Sheri Decker's ink "The Garden" and Erika Garber's oil "Worpsweder Road."

"Reeds," a scene done in cool shades of blue and green, is in sharp contrast to "Bill Boards," an abstraction of brightest reds, yellows and oranges with but a touch of white.

"The Great Plains" shows fine perspective. The artist has chosen warm tones of brown to depict her subject.

In addition to the winners and honorable mentions, many other works are worthy of viewing. Shirley Martin's "1889 Red Brick" is a deft representational watercolor. Hortense H. Hagen's "Francis of Assisi" is a most sympathetic portrayal of the man who loved animals and birds. Stark as the winter scene it depicts is Woodrow Hull's "8th and K."

Of the 236 pieces entered, 114 were accepted for the exhibition, according to Mrs. Anna Semenec, president of the Guild.

Council Contact Limited With Evangelical Group

A reported national trend toward greater cooperation among church councils and their evangelical counterparts is not evident in Lincoln

National church leaders earlier said quiet, unpublicized conversations have been held for five years between members of the two groups.

Lemon

But Dr. Carroll H. Lemon, Lincoln Council of Churches executive secretary, said the Council has had limited contact with the Lincoln Evangelical Ministerial Fellowship.

Occasionally Council letters of general religious interest are sent to members of the Fellowship, he said.

"Nobody's adverse to his cooperation," he said. "The doors of the Council are always open."

Hill

But he noted there was a basic theological different functions, with his group, as its title implies, directed primarily toward fellowship.

More like the Council but with a theologically more conservative approch is the National Association of Evangelicals, he said.

There was talk of opening a Lincoln NAE office two years ago, he said, but churchmen decided the fellowship "seems to meet our present needs."

National conversations were revealed in a report scheduled for release this week by the United Presbyterian commission on ecumenical mission and relations. It states:

"Over the last five years, significant conversations have been carried on which in some measure at least have established confidence between separate groups and made some progress in resolving misunderstandings and distrust."

The report termed the discussions as important as those between the Protestant and Roman Catholic faith or those between Protestants of different denominations.

While "there has been no attempt to minimize the deep doctrinal differences that divided us, there has been considerable success in discussing these differences within the context of a common faith," the report said.

Church Halts 'Feasts'

By JOHN LEE
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Ashland — A drifter happened into Ashland a few years back, apparently out of funds and hungry.

He stopped at one of the local parsonages and had a story convincing enough to get some money for a bite to eat.

It wasn't until later, when the man was miles down some road, that the minister casually related the incident to his colleagues and discovered that each of them had also heard the tale of woe and contributed to a hot supper.

The drifter could have had quite a feast on the $38 he collected here.

"A person might convince me that he's a good Lutheran when he's here," noted the Rev. Wesley Brondin, pastor of the Lutheran Church and president of the Ashland Ministerial Association.

"But when he gets down the street, he might convince the Methodist minister he's a good Methodist."

But the ministers worked out a solution that has put a curb on panhandling efforts in this community.

Surplus proceeds—though not great—of ministerial association functions are kept by City Clerk George Grauerholz for needy travelers.

Between him and one of the ministers, a solution can usually be worked out to benefit a truly needy person without jeopardizing the benevolence funds of the local churches.

The Rev. Donald Webster calls it "a very satisfactory solution to a diffucult stiuation."

The plan also works as a double-check on the integrity of the solicitor, since, said the minister, "if he is willing to go to the city hall, he probably doesn't have anything to hide."

In most cases, the persons are taken down to buy the needed food or possibly to one of the local merchants to obtain parts to repair a disabled car.

Priest Honored

The Very Rev. Msgr. Francis P. Schmitt, head of the Boys Town music department near Omaha, will be honored today on the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Msgr. Schmitt, who has devoted his entire priestly career to boys and music at Boys Town, will be the celebrant of a solemn high mass at the Dowd Memorial Chapel at Boys Town.

Boys Town citizens and staff members will convene at noon Monday to pay tribute to Father Schmitt, a West Point native.

Rural Religion

Town and country churches today will observe Rural Life Sunday, opening the annual Soil Stewardship Week. Here, the Rev. Frederich Nolte of Emerald's Zion Lutheran Church visits with a church member, Vernon Lostroh, who farms near Pleasant Dale.

Texas Church Plans For Mass Exodus

By Associated Press

Nearly 300 members of the Church of Christ, most of them Texans, are preparing for a mass exodus this summer to establish a new church in New Jersey.

"We feel a need to be of service to our fellow man," says C. Larry Roberts, who will be the minister of the new church. He said the migration follows the church's concept of "spreading Christianity by spreading Christians."

Somerset County in New Jersey was selected after a year's study of rapidly growing areas in Midwestern and Northeastern states.

Roberts said the county, which has no Church of Christ, was picked because it is in a fast-growing industrial and population complex where thousands of people virtually are isolated from any existing church.

"This is the first time since pioneer days that we have had conditions like these," he said. "In many places, for instance, communities of 5,000 or more in population spring up almost overnight without a church of any kind."

"Somerset County is not a bad place—in fact is is a very fine place, but with its growing population it has spiritual needs," he said.

So far, 111 families, comprising 265 persons including children, have signed commitment cards saying they will move to Somerset County and Roberts expects others to join in "Exodus—New Jersey."

Most of the families are from Texas but six other states—Arkansas, Indiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, California and Michigan—are represented.

Forty vocations, many of them highly specialized, are represented in the colonizers and more than 65 adults already have jobs lined up in Somerset County.

Roberts now is minister of the Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland, Tex., which is sponsoring "Exodus—New Jersey."

The denomination now has only 29 churches in New Jersey. Its total strength is 19,200 churches and almost 2.5 million members, most of them in the South and Southwest, with the largest number in Texas and Tennessee.

Members consider the New Testament their sole rule of faith and practice.

Singing is emphasized as a form of worship but instrumental music is not used in religious services. Titles are not used in addressing or referring to their ministers.

The congregations are independent but collectively they operate four senior colleges, 10 junior colleges, 20 Bible schools and several orphanages and homes for the aged. The churches conduct extensive evangelism programs and have workers in 50 countries.

Unitarians Travel

Old Habits

Some of the white habits worn by Carthusian monks last as long as seven years. What do they use? The best material, they said, is tennis-ball covering. Practically indestructible.

Your Nurseryman Speaks

Mum Gaining New Popularity

Now is the time to plant chrysanthemums.

This autumn-blooming flower is slowly gaining popularity in Nebraska for several good reasons.

First, unlike many other ornamental plants, it will grow in most sections of the state.

Moreover, some of the most important experimental work on mums is being done in Nebraska.

Most important, mums somehow 'fit' into Nebraska's environment. Mums are tough which is a vital requirement in this state. Once they have hardened to frost, they will survive the worst winters. (Please do not confuse the hardy, perennial, outdoor mum with the hothouse variety that you buy from a florist.)

Toughest Place

One of the toughest places to grow plant material is on the south or west exposure of a brick, stone or aluminum-faced home.

Heat reflection turns such areas into a small Sahara. High evaporation drains every drop of moisture from the soil. Temperatures at all times of year may vary as much as 60 degrees in a single day. Blue grass, a pretty rugged plant, often dies in these locations.

Yet, it is precisely here that mums will shine if given minimal maintenance. Under most conditions this flower knows how to take care of itself.

Moreover, mums have built-in disease and insect resistance. In fact, the plant is sometimes processed into a fine powder and sold to protect other flowers.

Self-Propagating

In addition, mums are self-propagating. The 'mother' plant is continually developing young 'daughter' plants. If you want the best results from your mums, dig the entire plant every few years. Discard the mother and keep the daughter. This may sound cruel, but this is the way that Mother Nature works.

In recent years, many new varieties of mums have come on the market. Now there is an almost endless selection of hues.

Nebraska's winters are cruelly cold. Nebraska's summers are, plainly speaking, hell. Nebraska's springs are more often so short that if you fail to get outside for a couple of days you have missed the entire season.

But, Nebraska's autumns are one step short of heaven. And it is precisely during these golden days that the chrysanthemum comes into bloom.

Garden Gossip

Fungicide Effective

By EMERY W. NELSON
County Extension Agent

A fine, vigorous lawn mixed with warm, rainy weather are the ingredients for lawn disease problems. Under these conditions only a few short days are needed for a fungus disease to build to an alarming extent. The ingredients are favorable climate, susceptible grass and the presence of disease organisms.

Controlling lawn diseases is a preventive measure. Attempts to cure lawn diseases, once they are well established, are usually disappointing.

In some instances, high rates of fungicides may help arrest the disease developent and assist in hastening the return of healthy grass. However, waiting to apply fungicides until diseases are evident usually results in bare spots in the lawn.

Preventing diseases in lawns is accomplished by establishing a season-long protective spray schedule. Such program prevents the build-up of the fungus pathogen. However, the homeowner may find a spray schedule expensive and time consuming.

The alternative may be to apply a fungicide which controls many of the most prevalent diseases during the spring when conditions are right for many diseases to build up. The fungicide should be applied three or four times starting, ideally in April and repeated every two or three weeks during May and June.

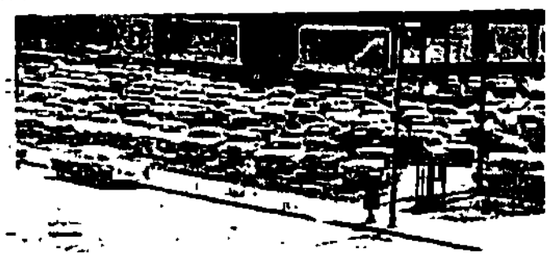
'Like Bible, Man!'



The Bible has been translated into the argot of city streets by the Baptist chaplain of Erie County Jail in New York.

The result of the Rev. Carl F. Burke's translation is expected to shock some staid church members.

"But those who remember Jesus Christ's passionate concern for the 'least of these, my brethren,' can hardly doubt the he would be delighted with this paraphrase of his parable of the lost sheep," United Press International said.

"There was a used-car lot at the corner of Main and Filmore. The owner had one hundred heaps on it. If one of the heaps was snitched, would the owner go and look for it?

"Suppose he found it at North and Main. What would he do? Well, he would rev it up to see if it's OK. When he gets it back to the yard he would show it to the gang to have it checked out.

"Well, this is the way it will be when one guy goes straight. One guy is just as important to God as 99 who have always been OK.

Color Line

Most of the nation's 1,500 Catholic hospitals or treatment centers accept Negro patients but "seem to draw the color line at some point," a National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice report said.

"Secret quotas for Negro patients, all-Negro wards, and the token Negro prominently displayed as a testament to open-mindedness are all commonplace," it said.

Rabbi Delegate

Rabbi Maurice A. Pomerantz of Congregation Tifereth Israel will attend the Rabbinical Assembly convention today through Thursday in Toronto, Canada. The assembly is the international association of Conservative rabbis.

House Of The Week — Good Traffic Pattern Allows Easier Housekeeping, Greater Livability

By Associated Press

Exposed beams following the roof line increase the feeling of spaciousness. The technique adds height to the rooms as well as setting an informal pace for interior decorating.

Although other materials could be substituted for the exterior, the plans of architect William G. Chirgotis call for a pleasing combination of brick veneer and random-width, V-joint, red cedar vertical siding.

A built-up white gravel asphalt roof is specified for its reflecting insulating value. The free and uncluttered exterior is in perfect harmony with the open living pattern within—a pattern characterized by maximum use of every square foot of floor space.

Accessible

All parts of the latest House of the Week are immediately accessible from the main entrance foyer. Straight ahead is the combination living room-dining room; to the left is the bedroom wing; and to the right are the family room and the kitchen, each of which can be entered separately without crossing the other.

Because of its size and location, the family room tends to keep other areas of the house free from traffic, as it can easily accomodate a large table for informal family dining. Its proximity to the kitchen makes it convenient for the person who does the serving.

The step-saving kitchen arrangement has a full complement of appliances and is shielded from the dining room by a partition. It provides a large counter-top area and a maximum number of cabinets in a minimum amount of space.

The picture window in the dinette and the window over the kitchen sink assure plenty of light and air. That window overlooks a 12' 6" by 9" porch, which adjoins the rear service entry, mud room closet and laundry.

It is rare indeed when, as in this case, the lady of the house can move from the kitchen to the foyer, living room, dining room, laundry, family room, bedroom wing or basement—and never once set foot in any other room!

The three bedrooms are nicely arranged, with excellent ventilation and just enough hall space to permit easy circulation. The master bedroom has two closets and a full bath, including an oversized tiled shower stall. The main family bath is within a few steps of the other two bedrooms and the living section of the house.

With a habitable area of 1,680 square feet, this dwelling has a full basement that can add more living and storage space for the family that wishes it.

The two-car garage connects directly with the family room and is part of the house design rather than merely an appendage. Depending on the size of the lot and personal preference, the garage doors may be located at the front or to the right side rather than as shown in the plans.

Long Range Plan

A survey by the National Home Improvement Council shows that most homeowners would rather modernize than move. As a result, architects are designing homes that can be easily expanded and modernized repeatedly

Rose Convention Set in Oregon

Featured speakers include Sam McGredy IV of Northern Ireland, D. S. Butcher of New Zealand, Dr. Dennison Morey and Dorothy Stemler.

Pruning Flowering Shrubs

The time to prune flowering shrubs depends upon when the plants bloom. Shrubs that bloom in early spring, such as forsythia, spirea and lilac, are best pruned within two weeks after flowering. Do not prune them while dormant.

On the other hand, late spring and summer blooming shrubs should be pruned while they are still dormant. Shrubs of this type include althea or rose of Sharon, buckthorn and bush types of roses such as floribunda and hybrid tea roses.

ON THE HOUSE

By HELEN HAGGIE

Though last week's weather wasn't conducive to thoughts of long summer months and patio dining—real "outdoor living weather" is just around the corner.

Many families are lucky and have finished patios, which are ready to move onto when hot weather arrives. Other families depend on a portable grill, TV trays and kitchen chairs for outside dining.

Industrious do-it-yourself people have been successful in creating patios. First comes the floor of the outdoor living area—and several types have been used

One of the quickest methods of laying a patio floor is putting down a slab of cement More industrious and decoration conscious people have put down patio floors of brick and sand or stone slabs set in cement.

"It takes time to arrange the stones in an interesting design, but the satisfaction we have had with our patio floor has been worth it," one Lincolnite reports.

"We carefully marked off the area we planned to use as a patio, made the same preparations necessary for any cement laying, and placed the slabs where we wanted them The next step was 'cementing' them down."

All-Student Production at Wesleyan

Gilbert & Sullivan's 'Trial by Jury'

STAFF COLORPHOTO BY BOB GORHAM

Nebraska Wesleyan University students will present a musical parody of English manners and customs in the production next weekend of "Trial by Jury."

Curtain time for the comic opera by Gilbert and Sullivan is 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Auditorium-Arts Center.

In "Trial by Jury" the heroine, Angelina, hails her suitor, Edwin, into court for breach of promise. The arguments that follow poke fun at English speech, dress, manners and protocol.

Angelina is played by Jan Koon, a sophomore from Tempe, Ariz. Dennis Murphy, Lincoln freshman, plays Edwin, and Dean Zingg, Grant sophomore, is the judge.

"Trial by Jury" is the first musical stage production to be produced in the Auditorium-Fine Arts Center. It is an all student production

The production will provide training for students who will eventually be teachers and be involved with school productions, Jones said.

Scheduled to open Tuesday at the Varsity for its Midwest premiere is "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off."

Magic Words Empty OUR LITTLE TOWN

'We Can Get Into the Field'

By GERTRUDE SKINNER
Ruskin

The men who operate America's farms and ranches are the chief providers not only for the greatest portion of America's millions but for an increasingly large percent of the world's population.

To feed the world—what an opportunity and what a privilege and what a terrific burden that places on the shoulders of our men of the soil.

But duty has a glow and that shining, weather-beaten face so typical of a farmer is the trademark of a happy man. Happy, for in tilling the soil, he works hand in hand with his Creator.

Farm communities are beehives of activity on rainy days. Main streets find parking space at a premium with the overflow of cars parked any which-way on the side streets.

Farmers gather in small clusters of two or three to discuss the weather, politics, the latest local scandal. Or they may hie themselves to the local card parlor to play a few hands of Pitch or to quaff a little ale.

And then comes the magic words from some enterprising member of the brotherhood, "We can get into the field," and the town suddenly becomes as barren as the Sahara desert.

The predatory savages who lived by the spear and cudgel feared flood and fire but it was only in the civilized farm villages that man found something for which to thank God that he bothered to discover Him at all.

And men found Him not out of fear but out of a need to utter thanksgiving for the need of nature's blessing. Through the ages there has come about the happy blending of good fortune and the growing human intellect.

Mankind has made a momentous discovery — that although he has despoiled and ravaged the land the Creator still blesses him with more food than he can use. Divine munificence I hope that we are worthy.

Opening lead: heart six

Revealing Silence

By HOWARD SCHENKEN
And RICHARD L. FREY

Spades are a highly desirable commodity—so when the opponents hold eight between them and don't bid the suit, certain inferences can be drawn.

South realized that West's opening might be well below the usual 13-point minimum—a factor which did not help declarer in his search for the diamond queen. But E-W's strange silence about spades did help him.

East won the heart opening with the ace and returned the club jack. Declarer decided he had no chance unless the club jack was singleton. He therefore ducked the club lead as East shifted to the heart seven.

Declarer's heart jack lost to the queen and a third heart knocked out his king. Unless he found the diamond queen, the contract was down. But South didn't need to guess who had that card. He knew that if either opponent held five spades, he'd have bid the suit. That counted West for four spades, three hearts and five clubs—hence only the diamond. A low diamond to the king let declarer finesse against East's diamond queen as if it were an exposed card.

OPRY FOR PRISONERS

Acuffs Find One of Most Appreciative Audiences Behind Walls of Penitentiary

By MARJ MARLETTE

For four straight years, the cast of Grand Ole Opry has made an unheralded side trip in Lincoln to play to one of their most appreciative audiences — the inmates of the penitentiary.

"We enjoy it," say the heroes of country music as explanation of their afternoons-without-pay performing in the prison chapel. "And it raises morale."

On "Grand Ole Opry" day at the penitentiary, there's a noticeable lack of sound except that echoing from the chapel, which serves also as an auditorium.

And from the soulful mourn of George Morgan's "Rockin' Alone in an Old Rockin' Chair" to the howl of the harmonica in "Tennessee Fox Chase" and the familiar rollick of Roy Acuff's "Wabash Cannonba'" the inmates are with it.

Their love for country music is so great, in fact, that for three days prior to the last show, there was nary a disciplinary report at the institution. No one violated a rule, sluffed at work, or talked back to an officer. They were taking no chance of losing the privilege of seeing Grand Ole Opry!

When Opry day came, 900 inmates were allowed to attend — including 175 brought over by truck from the men's reformatory.

The other 200 prisoners were in essential jobs and couldn't be released from work for the concert.

Inmate cook serves the Acuffs, Jr. and Sr., as the Opry crew eats at Warden Maurice Sigler's home after penitentiary show.

Afterwards, he explained "Our business is like any other. We want people to realize we aren't just trying to make money — that we've got a heart like anyone else."

He said the troupe had performed at several other prisons in the midwest. He has also entertained servicemen overseas for the past 20 Christmases.

The dark-haired youth got a huge welcome from the inmates. And he appreciated it. This he said, was his first tour as a professional entertainer. Formerly in publishing work, he had unexpectedly decided a couple of months ago that he, too, wanted to be a singer like his dad.

Peebles

Harry "Hap" Peebles, one of the directors of the Country Music Ass'n, arranged each of the four stopovers at the penitentiary. He had, he said, been promoting country music for 35 years and "it gets greater as the years go by.

"There are now 2,500 radio stations playing country music full-time. They're changing at the rate of one a day."

One thing he would say, though, was that the Grand Ole Opry would be back in Lincoln soon for a regular appearance at Pershing Auditorium, and in a year, there'd be another morale boostin' show at the pen.

In Gold Rush

The city of Darwin, capital and chief port of Australia's Northern Territory, was founded in a gold rush in 1869.

The New Theater Education

New York (AP) — An upheaval in theatrical education is being plotted here to provide better actors and backstage craftsmen for the national culture boom.

"Within a decade resident theaters across the country will far outstrip New York in employment opportunities and that's where the significant American theater work is going to be done," says Theodore Hoffman.

The Hoffman program, which starts classes next fall and will eventually have about 300 students, is part of NYU's school of arts, recently established with Robert W. Corrigan as dean.

The two men are long-time associates as educational liberals. They succeeded each other as heads of the drama department at Carnegie Institute of Technology, shared in founding the Tulane Drama Review, an outspoken quarterly. Hoffman, 43, has also taught at Bard College, Stanford University and the University of California.

According to Hoffman the basic trouble with college and other drama schools so far has been lack of rigid entrance regulations.

At NYU, the criterion of admission is potential ability

rather than classroom credits "and an individual won't necessarily be dropped if he flunks the academic part of the curriculum."

A certificate is to be issued to course completers, with a Bachelor degree dependent on extra studies in customary university work. Training won't come cheap, averaging $1,800 annually, over a three-year term.

To emphasize the break with precedent, teachers (about 30) are to be called staff rather than faculty; students instead are participants; and "in effect there won't be formal courses, but projects."

Staff members will continue professional activity. Instruction will go on five days a week, with participants on call from midday to midnight.

Tennessee Parthenon

Replicas Also Include Fort

Because of its many schools and colleges, Nashville, Tenn., is often called "The Athens of the South." It was natural then that a replica of the famous Parthenon of Athens housed the "Gallery of Fine Arts" at the Tennessee Centennial Exposition in 1897.

The beautiful building of today is the second replica of the Parthenon built on this site. The first, using lath and plaster, was built to last only a year but it was not destroyed until 1920. Then it was replaced with a replica of permanent materials.

Nashville of today grew from Fort Nashborough, for which James Robertson and John Donelson were responsible. They named it to honor their friend Francis Nash, a North Carolina general killed in the Battle of Germantown in 1777.

Fort Nashborough was threatened by an attack of 400 Indians shortly after its founding—and for several years the pioneers used the stout fort to defend themselves against the savage attacks of Creek and Cherokee Indians.

The North Carolina legislature incorporated the settlement as a town in 1784. After Tennessee was admitted to statehood, Nashville was chartered as a city in 1806 and became state capital in 1843.

The fort is maintained by the Nashville parks board.

U.N. Offers Vacation Handbook

United Nations, N.Y. (UPI; —The U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), has published the 18th annual edition of its handbook, "Vacations Abroad."

Published in English, French and Spanish, the book serves as a guide for numerous educational and cultural vacation activities in all parts of the world. More than 900 organizations with headquarters in 63 countries have contributed information to enable young people to combine vacations abroad with courses of study, summer schools and educational tours.

Also listed are youth hostels and work camps, as well as international exchange plans.

Three types of vacation courses are offered: The first, dealing with the language and culture of a country, usually is arranged by universities and is intended for language students and teachers. The second is organized around a theme of a current social or economic question and offers opportunities for international discussion groups. The third consists essentially of summer schools run by national associations principally for young people of their own countries, but often welcoming foreign visitors.

The handbook also gives information in individual exchanges on a home-to-home basis, on-the-job training and paying-guest accommodations with families abroad.

The handbook Vacations Abroad, Vol. XVIII, 1966 is available from UNESCO for $2.

Sinatra Show 1-Man Affair

By GINNY FISHER

"Without a Song" is a fairly swinging musical number.

"Without a Song" the two-dozen plus TV specials this week would be bleak, several would be meaningless and some would be void.

"Without a Song" also just happens to be one of the numbers sung by Frank Sinatra on the lead-off special this week. NBC's "Sinatra: A Man and His Music," is in color at 9 tonight. The one-man, all-music program features favorite songs from Sinatra's 25 years in show business.

Nazis . . . Today

A news documentary special, "An Austrian Affair," on NBC at 5:30 this afternoon, reports on the revival and growth of the Nazi party in Austria today.

ETV's "America's Crises," telecast at 7 p.m. Monday, investigates American's Troubled Cities, pin-pointing urban renewal in New York; Negro education in Boston; anti-poverty drive in Newark, N.J. and Detroit's crime rate.

Later at 8 p.m. on Monday, NBC colorcasts a salute to winners of the recording industry's Grammy Awards. The stars appearing on the show somehow just seem to also name the program.

Tuesday at 9 p.m., "CBS Reports" offers a look at LSD, noted for its use by young people seeking thrills. However, this program examines the other side of the drug, reporting on the mental health benefits and possibilities.

Paar Stars

On Thursday, musical specialty numbers help film clips and monologues spoof the American way of politics on "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the White House." Jack Paar stars, hosts and carries the review of political humor, colorcast at 7:30 p.m.

Friday, NBC salutes Armed Forces Day with a report on American defense commands on "Anatomy of Defense," in color at 6:30 p.m.

That evening at 9, ETV's "Festival of Arts" presents Sheridan's farcial comedy about malicious gossips, "School for Scandal," starring Joan Plowright.

Beauty, Beasts

Saturday features old-fashioned Americana favorite entertainment. Besides the regular baseball programs, there is a boxing match (Cassius Clay vs Henry Cooper in Heavyweight championship bout on ABC's "Wide World of Sports" at 4 p.m.); a horse race (The Preakness on CBS at 3:30 p.m.) and a beauty contest ("Miss USA Pageant" on CBS at 9 p.m.).

Gemini Schedule

In a more serious and informative vein, the Gemini-Titan IX space flight program is tentatively scheduled for this week as follows:

Tuesday: 9 a.m.—Launch of Atlas-Agena rocket; 10:40 a.m.—launch of G-T IX; 2:40 p.m.—rendezvous; 3:10 p.m.—planned dockings.

Wednesday: 7:30 a.m.—Two and one-half hour walk in space by Cernan.

Friday: 9:30 a.m.—G-T IX splashdown and recovery.

The networks plan complete coverage of the main events plus brief reports continuously inserted into regular programming during the four-day flight.

However, CBS's coverage will be severely curtailed, much more than the other networks'. Following a pattern of less coverage on repetitions in news events started during the congressional hearings (which resulted in the resignation of Fred Friendly), CBS, under President Richard Salant will cover important happenings but will exclude "all the trivia and fill."

Next Sunday Is SE Arts Day

The Southeast High School instrumental music department will present its Fine Arts Day next Sunday in the school auditorium at 3 p.m.

In addition to a band concert, an exhibit of works from the Art and Industrial Arts classes will be shown in the main hall and lobby at 2:15 p.m.

Are Fads of Fading Term Phasing In or Out?

By HOLLY SPENCE

As the school year closes and seniors bid farewell to their alma maters, sit back and take a look at this year in perspective.

Have you ever thought about what has been "in" and what has been "out" this year?

Everything may fit into the scheme of things now, but perhaps 20 years from now you'll look back and chuckle at the ins and outs.

"Would you believe" that fads and fancies in the last school year have run from the ridiculous to the sublime?

It's been the year of "A Go Go."

Musically, the year has been a wild one. The swingers have "frugged" and "watusied" to the strains of the Beatles and Herman's Hermits.

Simon and Garfunkel . . . the Supremes . . . Roger Miller . . . and a host of others have hit the pinnacle of recording success.

And for the more subdued listeners—the Tijuana Brass has brought the colorful excitement of the Mexican bullfights into the teen-age realm of listening.

Wild Clothing

Sometimes parents have had trouble telling the boys from the girls. The guys — mop tops and long hairs. The girls—from the long swinging hair to the severe Sasoon haircuts.

But now for the "in" duds! Shoes. They get higher and higher for the guys—high heels and high tops. The gals —how low can they go — squatty cut-outs. And then saddle shoes are high camp.

Sixty-six has been the year for the daring miss. The least fabric is the "mostest" dress or swim suit. A session in the sun might result in a pretty interesting tan.

Hemlines are coming up—up and necklines are going down—down. The rage is for textured hose, little girl dresses and mini-skirts.

The maddest dash has been to the doctor to put those holes in the ears. The pierced ear fad has all the jewelers in a tizzy. Even Luci Baines joined the "in" crowd.

Year of the Bike

Transportation — motor-bikes, of course. Why, crash helmets are as popular as new Easter bonnets with the gals

Every year has its heros. And this year is no exception. But it must be a three-way draw for there are Batman and Robin -Barry Sadler and his Green Berets—and Bill Cosby

And Punch Cards

And you can't stifle progress. The age of the computer is upon us. With every punched card comes the recipe for compatibility. A mutilated card could result in the wrong date or an incompatable husband.

A Go Go—everything is! A Go Go discotheques and go-go boots. Who knows maybe everything will just go go out of the picture next year.

The old days of knock, knock jokes and elephant jokes are a thing of the past and now . . . Batman jokes, of course.

Fads — well, they aren't stuffing telephone booths, smashing pianos or eating goldfish—now they're seeing how long they can stay under the dorm showers or how many wads of bubble gum they can chaw.

Popular discussion topics—draft card burnings—male draft status — anti Vietnam demonstrations—and Is God Dead—and something from the outer world—UFO's.

Arty fads -pop art, op art, and mondrian. Hang them on your walls or have your glad rags fashioned in the art work of the times.

IN WASHINGTON

Priceless Philately Items on Display

The Smithsonian Institution in Washington will honor the Sixth International Philatelic Exhibition (SIPEX) there by installing for public display a series of new exhibits in the "Hall of Philately and Postal History."

Carl H. Scheele, curator of philately and postal history, said the new exhibits "will feature many portions of the Smithsonian's priceless reference collections, not normally on public view."

Among the objects to be shown are rare plate and die proofs, mail carried by balloons during the siege of Paris (1870-71), airmail covers flown by German Zeppelins from 1909 to 1936, rare foreign and U S covers, seldom-seen U S revenue stamps, and a selection of pre-canceled postage stamps

Visitors to the Hall of Philately and Postal History also will be able to view the unique cover and letter carried on the officially sanctioned flight of the balloon "Jupiter" from Lafayette, Ind , on Aug. 17, 1859

The Smithsonian exhibits will be among several attractions of special interest to stamp collectors during SIPEX, the first international stamp show in the United States since 1956 and the only one in the world this year.

SIPEX will feature 2,200 frames of top collections from all over the world, 80 dealers' booths, lounges of many stamp societies, lectures, seminars, meetings, tours of government agencies, social events and sightseeing.

It also will be the site of first-day sales of a U.S. stamp, souvenir sheet and airmail postal card honoring the show, and of two United Nations stamps

Airmail Card

The 11-cent airmail postal card to be issued May 27 in conjunction with SIPEX is the first international airmail postal card ever issued by the U.S. Post Office Dept.

It is the first to be printed in duotone, a lithographic process by which inks are blended for rich tones.

The stamp is based on the logograph of the Commerce Dept.'s U.S. Travel Service. To the left of an American Flag is a white panel in which appears in blue a map of the country. The panel is inset in a blue circle. Across the top of the horizontal stamp is "United States Postage," in blue, with the denomination "11c" appearing upper right in red. Across the bottom, in blue, is "Visit the USA."

Four photographs reproduced on the left of the card are indicative of the widely varying attractions awaiting the tourist. The imposing New York City skyline, the sand of Miami Beach, the grandeur of Mt. Rainier and a picturesque Indian on horseback typify this wide range of America.

Designer of the card is Robert M. Worley, chief illustrator for the Government Printing Office.

Honor Servicemen

Rep. Stanley L. Greigg, D-Iowa, has introduced a bill in the House to provide for the issuance of a special stamp honoring American servicemen.

The design for the stamp was created by the students at North Junior High School in Sioux City. In a letter to Robert Shockley, an instructor at North, Greigg said the measure he introduced in Congress is unique because the actual bill includes a picture of the stamp.

The proposed postage stamp is in the shape of an American flag with a single line reading "American Servicemen. We Appreciate You."

Lincolnites' New Opera Performed at Northwestern

Peters

The premiere performance of a new opera, "The Number of Fools", written by two Lincolnites is being presented at the Northwestern University School of Music in Evanston, Ill., this weekend.

The composer is Robert Beadell, professor of music at the University of Nebraska, and the librettist is Stanley L. Peters, a structural engineer.

"The Number of Fools" is an opera which takes as its point of departure, the American Revolution and the circumstances surrounding a group of Polish mercenary soldiers hired by the Continental Congress.

Prof Beadell has been with the University 12 years. He has written operas, choral pieces, a major symphony, chamber works, concert band pieces and other commissioned and published works.

Peters is a choral singer interested in the arts. He is a member of a small singing group specializing in 16th century polyphony and the Gregorian chant.

Auburn High School Sophomore Conducts Own Score

At the concert, Bob Fisher, 15 will direct "Fortitude Overture," the first performance of his original composition for band

As well as composing and directing the piece, young Fisher has also transposed the composition for all the instruments in the band.

His work started in February 1965 while he was a freshman He planned to write a dance band piece, but the result wasn't danceable in his opinion So he decided, instead to convert it to a concert band number

Work progressed for about three months until his father, Robert Fisher, thought the time spent on composing was interfering with the boy's other school work Bob dropped it until last fall when he secretly resumed work while still trying to maintain his grade average, "just to show Dad I could do it "

He Did It

And he did it. An honor roll student since junior high, he maintained straight A's while finishing his composition.

Ken Mathis, school band director, provided some help—but mostly moral support—as young Fisher set the basic melody on paper and then with the aid of a book on transposing, converted the music to instrument parts.

Auburn's high school band plans to record the overture and send it to the University of Nebraska where the music department has indicated an interest in its publication. Band members have exhibited a desire to perfect "Fortitude," said Mathis, because they know what it means to Fisher and the school for a good performance.

The overture, lasting six minutes and 45 seconds, is described as bringing to mind a picture of Roman gladiators entering the arena, with fanfare by the trumpet section, the tympani booming and then abrupt movements to a quieter tone.

THOSE BUONAPARTES

Acidulous Pen Leaves No Scion Unscathed

The Bonapartes. By David Stacton: Simon & Schuster.

It was to be expected that when David Stacton took aim at the Bonaparte brood the results would be devastating—and they are. No American writer wields a more witty, acidulous pen, and his favorite target continues to be the heroes of history.

Stacton

In this book, his first departure from historical fiction, he turns his attention to the huge Bonaparte clan and what became of it after the fall of the founder. It is no exaggeration to say that the Bonapartes out did and out-postured any family a novelist might conceive.

First, a word to the reader who has not yet made the acquaintance of David Stacton. He belongs to no school or movement, adheres to no writing formula. He is triumphantly himself, witty, fastidious, and a specialist in the deadly coup de grace. His style is reminiscent of Lytton Strachey but more corrosive.

BOOKS

Italian Descent

No family in history more richly deserves such treatment. Stacton carefully underlines what Napoleon preferred to leave unsaid — that the family name was Buonaparte, that he as christened Napoleone, and that his five brothers and three sisters all Gallicized their names from the Italian.

Thanks to the man who became Emperor, the clan spread and multiplied. Napoleon found thrones for them wherever he could. Today, Stacton tells us, there are still 280 surviving members of the family scattered through 10 countries, only two of whom, however, are Bonaparte males. The family bred itself out by producing a predominance of daughters.

The book opens in 1814, with Napoleon still in Elba receiving simultaneous visits from his mother, a truly formidable matriarch and perhaps the only person he ever feared, and his Polish mistress, Countess Marie Walewska. The Countess received precedence.

Prickly Barbs

One by one the various brothers, sisters, in-laws, and their progeny are presented, none without a subcutaneous thrust. Brother Louis, for instance, King of Holland, hated the damp climate and frequented the spas. "He spent more time in hot water than he did in Holland," observes the author dryly.

Stacton has exhumed fascinating minutiae concerning the American Bonapartes, including Jerome, a socialite who occasionally posed as a "gentleman of distinction" for whiskey ads. He died in 1945 after tripping over the leash of his wife's dog in Central Park.

Napoleon . . . feared only his Mother Buonoparte.

The book is anything but formal history: this writer cares less for events than for people — and their failings. I doubt whether you will read a more maliciously diverting work this season.

John Barkham

War Truth Plumbed

A Passionate Prodigality. By Guy Chapman: Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

It is easy to understand why Chapman's book, published in England in 1933, has now been published in this country. Why it took 33 years is the puzzler, for here is war literature at its greatest.

Chapman was an officer with the Royal Fusiliers from 1914 to 1920. Those who have experienced some of the horrors of war—and World War I is perhaps the most horrible example of human folly—must bow to his talents. He feels, he senses, he perceives where our poor minds might only crystallize in fear, boredom, despair or pain.

Not even the viscosity of Flanders mud escapes his descriptive moods, the smells of invaded orchards, the quality of sunlight in its victory over a morning haze.

But his extraordinary achievement is in probing the human spirit under stress. Here he transcends the gore and tragedy of his experience to plumb the truth of all wars.

Out of the muck, absurdities and ghastly butchery of combat arises a single surviving element of beauty and value: the irony of man's humanity enduring midst the most outrageous form of inhumanity.

Where many who write of war only assail our senses, the poet in Chapman makes delicate use of sensitivities only rarely exercised.—JCB

Humor to Relax By

The Best Is Yet to Be.
By Bentz Plagemann; Morrow.

This is a nice quiet little novel that doesn't attempt to be profound, a pleasantly humorous story.

There really isn't much plot. The Wallaces have reached the age when their son abruptly decides to get married.

After getting the young couple settled, the parents have a middle-aged fling on a trip to Europe.

There are some amusing and gently touching scenes as the parents try to be helpful—without interfering—as the newlyweds set up housekeeping in a low-budget apartment.

Then the adventure abroad. In Italy the Wallaces can't detach themselves from shepherding the younger generation, so they get involved with several young Americans, including a coed who doesn't realize an Italian boy is leading her on.

There also is a sly picture of one of their American friends who had married an Italian businessman, not exactly to her advantage.

Some readers may remember Plagemann's books about Google, a boy growing up, and they won't want to miss this one.

It's a nice relief to have this story. No black humor, no bitter satire, no social significance, no grotesque caricatures. Just a satisfying glow, some appreciative chuckles and apt turns of phrasing that create pleasure.

It's a book to relax with. Slump down in the wing chair and enjoy yourself.—MS

EOA Aid Provided 302,484

Nebraska Has 240 Enrolled

BY LLOYD MACDOWELL

U.S. Office of Education announces that 302,484 persons over 18 with less than a sixth-grade education have received basic education under Title II-B, Economic Opportunity Act.

Although nine states had more than 10,000 such students each, Nebraska had only 240, of whom 100 were enrolled in the Lincoln basic education program.

Of Schools & Scholars

Identified At Last

Ten-inch metal lettering will identify Charles Culler Junior High School in Lincoln from the Vine St. side as a result of two years of work by students.

Classes of 1965 and 1966 contributed to the project and will take part in dedication ceremonies scheduled for May 25.

Salaries Rise

Millard public schools have raised minimum salaries for teachers with bachelor's degrees to $5,000 plus payment of 100% of group insurance coverage.

Papillion and Omaha Westside have gone to $5,200 minimums, and Westside offers an incentive bonus of 10% for outstanding classroom work.

Norfolk and Mitchell have raised base salaries to $5,000, and Central City has gone to an index salary system with a $5,000 base.

ETS Asking Funds

The Educational Television Stations organization is urging lifting of the $1 million per state limit on federal support for ETV stations.

Nebraska is one of 12 states that have used or soon will use their million dollars and are still building. ETS is also plugging for 75% federal matching funds instead of the present 50%.

'Middle-Ability'

Norman C. Harris, University of Michigan professor of technical education, writes in the May issue of "School Boards" magazine of the extreme need for community colleges to educate "middle-ability" high school graduates who do not belong in a university.

The Lincoln public schools' community college is slated to open with the completion of the East High complex in 1967—provided that Lincoln's construction strike ends soon enough.

Dakotan 'Farm Battler'

Even Takes On Lyndon

By Ovid A. Martin

Washington (AP) — A quiet-spoken man who looks the part of a professor has become a leading figure among those classed as liberals on American farm policy.

McGovern

The man is George McGovern, Democratic senator from South Dakota. In recent weeks, he has attacked what he views as anti-inflation policies unfair to farmers with the combativeness he showed during World War II when he made 35 missions as a B24 bomber pilot.

McGovern has risen fast as a spokesman for those who have been insisting that the government carry out what they regard as its promises and commitments to the nation's food and fiber producers. He is serving his fourth year in the Senate and is a member of its agriculture committee.

When the Johnson administration took the line several weeks ago that food and farm prices were inflationary in character and were threatening to force the President to propose an income tax increase, McGovern promptly called this a misjudgment of the situation. He insisted that the administration back up.

He was among the first of the farm leaders to argue that farm prices cannot be a threat to economic stability because they are below the party-price goal of federal farm-aid legislation—a goal first set up in the New Deal days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In fact, when the administration took first action to put a lid on farm prices, the South Dakotan noted that those prices then were at only 82% of party. They since have declined to 80%.

Little Doubt

There can be little doubt that the drumbeat of McGovern's criticism of an administration of his own political faith contributed greatly to a change in tactics in farm prices. In fact, the administration has pulled back from some of the actions which McGovern criticized.

"I strongly resent the current efforts of some administration officials to blame farmers for the inflation caused by the Vietnam War," he told the Senate. "We are not rolling back wages and salaries.

"Instead, a bill is on the way through Congress with administrative backing to increase government salaries. We are doing nothing about the 3 to 8% increase in shoe prices . . .agriculture has been depressed in relation to the rest of our economy since 1953."

The South Dakotan said the president is allowing his Council of Economic Advisers to determine farm and anti-inflation policies in apparent disregard of Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

40 Colleagues

A measure of the degree of McGovern's new leadership is shown by the fact that he was able to get 40 Senate colleagues—Democrats and Republicans—to join him in sponsoring a resolution which would prohibit government action to keep farmers from getting parity.

Those joining him included Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and George T. Aiken of Vermont, ranking Republican member of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Of course, not all farm groups or leaders agree with McGovern in his support for federal farm programs. Naturally, those who want less government in agriculture disagree with him on many matters. These include the influential American Farm Bureau Federation. But he gets strong support from the National Farmers Union and the National Grange and some wheat grower organizations.

Building Height Problem

Restrictions Too Harsh?

By LEO SCHERER

It's about time that somebody in city government takes a long look at the present city height restrictions within the zoning code.

For example, no building in J business district classification can be higher than 12 stories or 150 feet.

Other zoning classifications also have rigid height limitations while cities around the country allow apartment complexes and other buildings much higher.

There is much merit in having strict height requirements directly around the State Capitol to help retain its view,

Around City Hall

but some builders feel that they are being seriously hampered from building expensive high-rise structures due to different height restrictions.

As the city expands and land becomes harder to acquire in heavily populated sections, buildings that reach over 12 stories could be much in demand.

Camp Nearly Ready

The City Council approved campsite near Interstates 80 and 180 reportedly will be ready by June 1 and should stop some campers.

The campsite, operated by private enterprise, will have many conveniences — even hot showers!

The site can be reached from all directions and is within five minutes of downtown Lincoln and other recreational facilities.

There were many interdepartment squabbles at City Hall before the campsite finally became a reality. Councilman John Comstock did much work trying to get the campsite through governmental red tape.

Good Example

The association spent much time in getting an well-organized cleanup of the West O area

Definitely other sections of Lincoln could use a cleanup such as the one on West O which got good support from city government and local garbage haulers.

Besides removing much junk, the cleanup also freed the West O area of some potential health problems and did much to inspire community betterment.

Vault Succumbs To 10-Year-Old

Las Cruces, N.M. (AP) — It takes a great deal of ingenuity to be a county officer.

When County Clerk Lorraine Gutierrez tried to open the office vault door recently, the handle came off.

Mrs. Gutierrez summoned her 10-year-old son. He pushed in an air conditioning vent in the rear of the vault, crawled through the small opening and opened the vault from the inside

Mrs. Gutierrez had her office open in time for the business day.

A young woman who will be doing a lot of talking about wheat — Lynda Kay Kain of Wallace, Nebraska's Wheat Queen for 1966 — is getting some pointers on her favorite topic from Ervain Friehe of McCook, chairman of the Nebraska Wheat Commission.

Research Saves Wheat Crop

Financial support provided by the Nebraska Wheat Commission has been credited by the Nebraska Grain Improvement Assn. for greatly accelerating wheat improvement in Nebraska

The Nebraska Grain Improvement Assn. notes the importance of wheat research was never more evident than last year when wheat stem rust could have meant disaster had the University of Nebraska not had ready new resistant varieties that played a large part in producing the 1965 crop.

The plant breeders, extension service, growers, many organizations and individuals participated in the program that supported the introduction of the new varieties and it is generally conceded that the modest plant breeding research expenditure might be one of the most important made from the Wheat Commission's total expenditures of $156,229.69.

Progress in wheat improvement through variety development since 1900 can be charted as follows

2—From 1935 to 1945 replacement of Turkey Red wheat with Cheyenne, Nebred and Pawnee varieties.

3—From 1960 to 1965 release of Warrior, Omaha, and the recommendation of Ottawa varieties was made in the state.

4—During 1965 three new varieties were released. Gage, Scout and Lancer.

It is estimated that 27.1% of the 1966 wheat crop will be planted to Warrior; 16.2% to Ottawa; 11.1% to Scout; 8.8% to Omaha and 8.3% to Lancer, placing five newly-released varieties in the forefront in the state

The Nebraska Wheat Commission, which has been collecting nearly $250,000 yearly and has a balance on hand of $63,902 at the beginning of the last fiscal year, has tended to favor wheat utilization programs on a national or an international marketing scale for the larger expenditures in preference to more extensive breeding or development programs on the state level.

With the outstanding success shown by newly-developed varieties comes speculation that the Nebraska Wheat Commission may strongly consider stepping up support of NU research programs.

Exercise May Be Last One

County 8th Graders To Graduate

By HAROLD SIMMONS

The annual eighth grade graduation exercise for county students being held next Thursday at the Stuart Theater may be the last for Lancaster County.

There will be 119 students from 18 Class I and II schools participating this year, County Supt. of Schools Glenn E. Turner said, and the number would probably be less if exercises are held next year.

Primary reasons there may not be a promotion exercise next year, Dr. Turner said, are the increase in the number of junior high schools with grades 7-9 and the reduction in the number of Class I and II schools.

"We must face the fact that the eighth grade is no longer the accepted division line between elementary school and secondary or high school," Dr. Turner said in a bulletin to county schools.

He said that soon all schools will be grades K-2 for elementary schools, 7-9 for junior high schools and 10-12 for senior high schools.

Junior high schools with grades 7-9 automatically eliminate the eighth grade graduate.

The number of schools participating in the exercises is also decreasing.

Last year 22 Class I and II schools participate. This year there are 18. And Dr. Turner said there will probably be two or three less if exercises are held next year.

Courthouse Call

It's a Law

Sports enthusiasts had better keep a close eye on the clock Memorial Day when getting ready for their games.

One of Nebraska's statutes reads:

"Whoever shall, before 12 o'clock noon on May 30, commonly known as Decoration Day, engage in horse racing, ball playing or in any game of sport which may tend to disturb the public peace, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or both."

Signs of Old Age

The old jailhouse is built of stone like the Courthouse but it has been plastered with cement and painted.

Jailors recently began noticing that the cement coat above the door and on the west side of the building was hanging pretty loose and began worrying that it might come tumbling down some day on someone.

So they had some men go along the building and chip away the loose cement.

The formerly all-white building now has a patchwork decour of white cement and brownish-colored stone

Talk Has Purpose For Club

Talking is the specialty of the Lincoln Toastmasters Club 403.

But, says Leo Allen, publicity chairman of the club, it is much more than just talking.

"Mastering the art of effective speaking helps make poised self-assured appearance before any audience, prepares for chairmanships and participation in meetings of all kinds, increased qualifications for civic and business recognition and provides an enjoyable fellowship and forum for the stimulation and exchange of ideas," Allen said.

The club meets every Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the University of Nebraska East Campus Library. Programs include table topics and regularly scheduled speakers.

The table topics are given extemporaneously by various members for two minutes. The several planned speakers are evaluated—for both good and bad points—either by individduals or a panel.

There are six Toastmasters clubs in Lincoln now. Club 403 has sponsored four of them and assisted with the fifth club as well as helping in the formation of the Lincoln Toastmistress Club.

The club has also sponsored the Homestead and Pioneer Gavel clubs at the penitentiary and the reformatory.

"We have had members of both gavel clubs join our club when they were released," Allen said.

The club will hold a 20th anniversary celebration of its founding on May 25, 1946 Included in the celebration, Allen said, will be the appearance of two charter mem- Miles Johnson and Charles Marshall.

Current of all the Lincoln clubs is over 100 active members.

Club 403 has about 20 members. Its officers include: Scott Miller, president; Don Crosier, educational vice president; Steve Laub, secretary-treasurer, and Al Yearley, sergeant-at-arms.
